Neutrality Showdown To Be Forced In Senate

Administration Seeks Action Now as 34 Lay Plans to Wage Last Ditch Battle

By Robert C. Albright.

Administration forces yesterday called for a showdown next week in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on proceeding at once with neutrality legislation as an isolationist bloc organized for the announced purpose of blocking repeal of the arms embargo.

Almost evenly divided on postponing neutrality action until next session, but with the Administration claiming a majority against further delay, the committee prepared to vote Tuesday on whether to proceed.

The balance of power on postponement was said to be held by one uncommitted Senator—Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa—who conferred yesterday with Secretary of State Hull and was also in contact with the President.

Others Divided 11-11

The remainder of the 23-man committee was reported to be divided 11 to 11 on the issue of delaying action. Although Gillette was understood to have given no assurances to either Hull or the President, he is expected to vote to go ahead this session.

A meeting of the Foreign Relations Committee had been called for yesterday to determine procedure, but Chairman Key Pittman called off the session because of absentees. It was the fifth consecutive postponement of a committee neutrality decision. Pittman set Tuesday as the next meeting date. He would make no prediction on committee action.

But Majority Leader Barkley forecast "There will be a bill."

Coincident with the committee delay, a score of mandatory neutrality bloc Senators, claiming a total strength of 34 votes, met in the office of Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, and drafted a statement of unyielding opposition to the Administration's neutrality recommendations. The statement was tantamount to a warning to debate the neutrality issue all summer, if necessary, to defeat arms embargo repeal.

Against Discretion

As announced by Senator Johnson, the declaration read:

"We are unalterably opposed to the repeal or modification of the present neutrality law prohibiting the sale or exportation of arms, munitions or implements of war to nations engaged in war.

"We are against any discretion being lodged in the hands of any Chief Executive to determine an aggressor or aggressors during any war abroad. We believe in the real neutrality of our Nation in case of any armed conflict.

"We are determined to maintain our position by every honorable and legitimate means at our command."

It was the second Senate statement in opposition to the Administration foreign policy. The first, sponsored by a smaller mandatory neutrality group, led by Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota), was circulated six weeks ago, but obtained only a few signatures.

Thirty-four invitations were issued for yesterday's meeting and, although that many did not attend, Johnson and Nye said the declaration would have support from 34, and probably more. No list of the Senators was made public. Republicans predominated at the meeting.

Pittman Skeptical

Some skepticism as to claimed support for the declaration was voiced by Senator Pittman. The Nevadan, who said, "I am going right on," added that he had no means of knowing "whether they have 34 or not."

"People sometimes guess in making their polls," said Pittman. "I've done it myself."

Divers Rig Lines To Raise Squalus

Portsmouth, N. H., July 7 (AP).—Undiscouraged by a mishap which set back operations almost a week, salvage experts went ahead today with preparations to raise the submarine Squalus, which, barring further interruptions, should be lifted from her resting place 240 feet deep in about seven days.

Divers were engaged today in rigging lines with which three huge chain slings will be drawn beneath the flooded after section of the submarine, which still contains bodies of 26 of her crew who perished May 23.

Commissioners Act to Open All of School Playgrounds

This seems their only alternative as playgrounds are closed because funds necessary for their operation are being delayed by the deadlocked District supply bill

Board Named to Direct Recreation Program in City-Wide Drive to Remove Children From Traffic Hazards

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Determined that lives of Washington children shall no longer be jeopardized by slow-moving wheels of legislative machinery, the Commissioners yesterday took matters into their own hands and acted to prevent additional juvenile tragedy on city streets.

Without waiting settlement of the Congressional deadlock over District appropriations, they attacked the currently acute problem of child safety by establishing a new commission that may throw open 112 school playgrounds now padlocked.

Leaders Back Plan

At the same time, local educators, civic leaders and public officials voiced unanimous approval of the proposed action.

"Get the children off the streets," they demanded in urging that every available playground be thrown open to vacationing youngsters.

The Commissioners' step to establish new play facilities is provided for in the deadlocked District supply bill, but with growing agitation for action, Commissioner Hazen decided to delay no longer. The provision calls for consolidating control of local recreation facilities.

The new playground commission is composed of the three Commissioners and three members of the Board of Education. Their broad function is to control and administer supervised recreation, but Hazen announced the present problem of inadequate play spaces is urgent.

Mrs. Doyle Is President

The program was organized at a joint meeting of members of the Board of Education and the Commissioners yesterday. It was ratified at a later sesion of the school officers. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle was named president of the new commission.

She in turn appointed C. Melvin Sharpe and John H. Wilson to serve for the board. A sub-committee, composed of a Commissioner and a board member, will be appointed to handle routine control of recreation. It is expected that Sharpe and Commissioner Allen will be named to these posts.

Full administrative authority for the new recreational setup will be vested in a recreation director, who also is yet to be chosen. It was indicated, however, that Lewis R. Barrett, director co-ordinator of recreation, will be selected for the job. He is expected to establish offices in the old Force School on Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Favor Adult Control

A pool of prominent local leaders revealed overwhelming sentiment in favor of opening all school playgrounds to the city's juvenile population. Some said adult supervision should be provided. Others demanded opening of the grounds, with or without play directors.

"What's a broken pane of glass or two compared to the life of a child?" said Sharpe, newly appointed

Foreign Loans Plan Reported Abandoned

Export-Import Bank May Get $100,000,000 More by Compromise

Administration leaders were reported authoritatively yesterday to have agreed to eliminate a provision for $500,000,000 in foreign loans from legislation authorizing the President's lending program.

As a result, some critics of the foreign-loan proposal were said to have given assurances they would not oppose an increase of $100,000,000 in the Export-Import Bank's funds.

They were known to have conditioned their acceptance on a provision that loans by the bank should be confined to the financing of export transactions.

Jones Plans Compromise

Calculated to eliminate much of the criticism which greeted the President's program in the Senate, the move to compromise the foreign-loan provision was credited to Jesse Jones, administrator of the new Federal Loan Agency. He has been active with Secretary Morgenthau in whipping the legislation into shape for Congressional study.

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, was understood to have told Jones he would not oppose the Export-Import Bank increase if the money were made available only to American exporters and no funds were to be loaned to foreign governments.

Borah led Senate criticism last week of the President's proposal to advance $200,000,000 next year and $300,000,000 the following year. This would have gone chiefly to South American governments to promote our foreign trade and to finance development and reconstruction projects in Latin-American nations.

Senator Austin, of Vermont, acting Republican leader, said that if the compromise was effected, Republican opposition to the lending proposals would be weakened.

It Took Whole Gang to Get His Cash and Watch

Although he was out $0.75 and a dollar watch last night, Samuel Harris, 21, of 1737 P street northwest, at least could claim to have put up a terrific battle to save it.

As he was walking in the 1600 block of Church street northwest, he told police, two strange men approached him and, without warning, struck him with their fists and tried to take his billfold and watch. When Harris put up a fight one of the men whistled, bringing nine cohorts, who held him while the first two beat and robbed him.

D. C. Chinese Solemnly Parade, Avow Faith in Final Victory

In this day of travail for the dragon 300 Washington Chinese marched in solemn procession yesterday—at the end of the second year of resistance to Japanese encroachment on China's good earth.

What they felt was behind their faces, when they came from their places of business to march, solemnly and without display of feeling, to the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, where a portrait of Dr. Sun Yat-sen was hanging and where the Ambassador, Dr. Hu Shih, told them that China's struggle for independence was not unlike America's. China, he said, will win.

The people on the sidewalks, from Sixth and H streets northwest, where the march began, to the church, looked solemnly at the solemn march. There was no ceremonial in the parade, no display of the dragon. They just marched, in the clothes they had worn from their occupations. Occasionally their steps were lifted when the blue-uniformed Chinese band flared on "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

Then the members of the On Leong Business Men's Association, marching in the lead, stepped more briskly, and the children, carrying tiny American or Chinese flags

Murray to Ask Restoration of WPA Rates

100,000 Reported on Strike Over Longer Hours at Same Pay

Spurred to action by the growing number of protest strikes throughout the country, a Senate New Dealer yesterday announced he would propose an amendment to the relief act restoring the prevailing wage to WPA workers, and in effect the former hours.

As news of work stoppage on WPA projects poured into the Capital, Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana, indicated he was planning to reopen the relief question in the Senate by asking for alteration of the relief law that was passed only a week ago.

Chief points of issue, responsible for an estimated 100,000 men voluntarily leaving their WPA jobs, is the new requirement that WPA workers receive for 130 hours a month approximately the same monthly pay that they formerly obtained for as little as 40 hours under the "prevailing hourly wage" rule.

Insisting that abolition of the prevailing wage for WPA workers would encourage lower wage rates in private industry, leaders of both the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. bitterly assailed the new regulations. WPA Administrator Harrington, however, stood firm on his decision that persons on the rolls who do not return to work within five days will be dropped.

2 Youths Burned Here as Fuel on Boat Explodes

Two youths were burned, one seriously, yesterday, when gasoline exploded aboard the 26-foot cabin cruiser, Idle Hour, docked for repairs at the District Yacht Co., Fourteenth and Water streets southeast.

Joseph Marchant, 18, and Phillip W. Smith, 24, both of Arlington, were taken to Casualty Hospital. Marchant suffered severe burns to his face, head and body and is in a critical condition. Smith was burned on the hands and arms.

They were working on the motor of the boat. A backfire ignited the fuel, spreading flames over them.

Norway Papers Report U. S. Offer To Buy Greenland

Oslo, Norway, July 7 (INS).—Negotiations between Denmark and the United States Government for purchase by America of the Island of Greenland for use as an airplane and military base were reported tonight in several Norwegian evening newspapers.

In Washington a State Department official said last night no conversations have been held or are under consideration between the United States and Denmark relative to the possible purchase of Greenland by the United States.

Poles Trying To Negotiate, London Told

Efforts to Settle Danzig Dispute Seen Holding Up British Warning to Reich

By William Hillman
International News Service Correspondent.

London, July 7.—Strong indications Poland hopes to avert a conflict with the Reich which might precipitate a general European war, by settling the Danzig dispute through negotiation with Reichsfuehrer Hitler, came tonight from authoritative diplomatic quarters.

At the same time, however, the London Daily Telegraph reported from Danzig that Nazi military preparations within the Free City continue with machine guns being mounted in houses in anticipation of street fighting.

The newspaper also stated 20 young Danzigers were arrested for refusing to answer summons to serve in the free corps.

A request by the Warsaw government to withhold the projected declaration of British policy regarding the Danzig crisis in which Britain makes it clear to Hitler that unilateral attempts to disturb the status quo in the Free City by "internal or external" means will mean immediate British intervention to preserve Polish integrity, caused further postponement of Prime Minister Chamberlain's announced statement to the House of Commons.

Secret Talks Reported

Warsaw, according to well informed circles, still hopes to be able to negotiate a settlement without resort to arms. The London Daily Mirror, in fact, went so far as to state that secret talks between Germany and Poland began yesterday in Berlin and Warsaw. Diplomats were reported as saying a peace formula is possible if Germany refrains from aggressive acts.

Basis for direct Warsaw-Berlin negotiations was reported to be identical with a declaration of Polish policy regarding Danzig voiced earlier this evening by a Polish foreign office spokesman in Warsaw.

Polish demands will include insistence that Danzig remain territorially outside the Reich and within the Polish customs jurisdiction.

No Concessions Indicated

Poland will also insist that Polish minorities be respected and that Polish interests within Danzig must not be at the mercy of any outside power.

The program does not in any way indicate any concessions to Germany and is not considered here as a feasible basis of negotiations with the Nazis. Polish sources, however, were described as "most hopeful" Hitler will agree to talk on these lines.

Without explanation the British government through a spokesman tonight announced that London has refrained from influencing Warsaw in solving the Danzig crisis "one way or another."

The government's assertion was apparently due to renewed reports in diplomatic quarters that Britain had counseled Poland to use caution in dealing with the situation.

Such reports were considered by

Five Men in Jail For Taking 15 Tons Of Pork on Hoof

Five colored men, accused of supplying themselves with several tons of pork chops and cornbread in the raw from St. Elizabeths Hospital farm, were languishing in Eleventh Precinct Station last night. A few hours before their capture three of them had been arrested for speeding and released to appear in court.

Their depredations were discovered early Monday by John Grimes, night watchman at the farm, when he heard an undue commotion among his porkers. Grimes snared two of the five, who implicated their confederates.

The others were arrested when the driver of their automobile was called into the precinct station on the speeding charge. Confessing the thefts, according to police, the men said they turned to stealing hogs after they had lifted 90 bags of cornmeal and needed something to consume the meal. Altogether, police said, the quintet admitted taking more than 100 hogs weighing up to 300 pounds, and cured hams valued at $2,000 to $3,000.

Swanson to Be Given State Funeral Monday

Death claimed Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson early yesterday at Rapidan Camp, in his native Virginia, removing from the national scene a man who as legislator and executive had a leading role in launching every regular naval vessel afloat.

Ironically, the last hours of the man who built the Navy to its greatest strength were spent on the spot where a decade ago the heads of two great nations laid plans for naval disarmament. It was at this mountain fishing camp that President Hoover and Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald sat on a log and sought means for reducing the world's navies, plans that fate was to doom during Swanson's regime at the Navy's helm.

The elder statesman of the Democratic Party will be given a state funeral at 1 p. m. Monday. His body will lie in the well of the Senate chamber during services expected to be attended by the President and virtually all ranking officials of the Government.

As an expression of national mourning the President directed that all flags be displayed at half mast on all public buildings, military posts, naval stations and vessels of the United States until sunset Monday. He instructed Secretary of State Hull to issue a proclamation to the people of the United States, giving notice of the Navy Secretary's passing.

McNutt Urges U. S. to Retain Philippines

Extinction Threatens Filipinos if Cast Off, He Says in Va.

By Hedley Donovan.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charlottesville, Va., July 7.—High Commissioner Paul V. McNutt tonight called on the Nation to keep the American flag flying in the Philippine Islands.

The United States must proceed without delay, the silver-haired proconsul said, to a "realistic re-examination" of Filipino needs and American interests in the Far East. He clearly indicated his hope that such reappraisal would lead to "a permanent political and economic relationship" between this country and the Philippines.

As the alternative to dominion status for the islands, he saw "a very real threat of racial extinction" for the Filipinos and—for Americans—the loss of "our voice in Oriental diplomacy," a barrier to "our intercourse with China" and a shameful reputation as "quitters."

McNutt's first platform appearance since his recent return to the mainland drew an audience of 1,200 to McIntire Amphitheater, on the historic grounds of the University of Virginia.

Labor Peace Formula

The same Institute of Public Affairs session heard from William M. Leiserson, member of the National Labor Relations Board, that America will never achieve industrial peace until employers recognize that labor's "only substantial property" is its right to organize and bargain collectively.

"We feel outraged, and rightly so, when working men stage a sit-down strike—which simply amounts to the seizure of someone else's property," Leiserson pointed out. "Neither our Government nor our civilization can be maintained without respect for private property."

The whole institution of private property "depends on the willingness of those who enjoy a larger share of physical property to see that the worker, under modern industrial conditions, has no important property except his right to associate with his fellows for the protection of certain standards," the newest NLRB member declared.

McNutt, his bronzed features set off by an all-white ensemble, appeared before the Institute barely

Ohio Butcher Admits 1 of 12 Torso Killings

Prisoner Takes Officers to Where He Threw Victim

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, July 7.—Frank Dolezal, a short, heavily-muscled bricklayer and butcher, tonight signed a confession of one of Cleveland's 12 "torso murders," Sheriff Martin L. O'Donnell announced. Authorities continued to grill the prisoner in an effort to solve the deaths of the other butchered victims.

"We think he is involved in at least two more," O'Donnell said. "He signed a confession, but I don't think all of it's truthful. When he signs one we're satisfied with, we'll charge him with first-degree murder."

Knew Two Other Victims

The prisoner is a Bohemian, the sheriff said. He and county detectives manacled the 52-year-old Dolezal and took him to point out where parts of the body of Mrs. Florence Polillo, 42, were thrown on a rubbish heap, and then to the shore to show where her head and other parts were tossed into Lake Erie.

"He showed us where he threw the torso on the rubbish heap," O'Donnell said. "Then we got neighbors to point out where it was found, and it was the spot.

"I really think he's in on some of the other torso murders. We think he is involved in at least two more—Mrs. Rose Wallace, 40, colored, and Edward W. Andrassy, 28. He knew them both."

Settlement Moves Stalled in Auto Strike; 6,000 Idle

Detroit, July 7 (AP).—Settlement moves stalled in a strike of General Motors skilled workers as additional walkouts today in four plants brought the number of idle employes to approximately 6,000.

James F. Dewey, Federal conciliator, said he has postponed until next Monday or Tuesday any attempt to bring together officials of the corporation and of the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers.

Prior to such a conference, he said, "both must decide the stand they wish to take on several issues."

U. S. Antarctic Expedition Gets Orders to Leave by Oct. 15

President Roosevelt yesterday gave the green light to the Government's first official attempt to earmark a slice of the Antarctic region for American ownership.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, veteran polar explorer who was named to command the expedition, announced that he and his party would sail between October 1 and 15 and reach the area in January.

This would be in time to head off German occupation of Little America territory, the potential threat of which caused Congress to hasten appropriation of $340,000 for the undertaking.

Byrd said he was particularly interested in staking out claims in the Western Hemisphere portion of the polar region, as he felt the Monroe Doctrine covered them.

Three bases will be established, each manned by 22 men, he said. The three ships taking the party of approximately 100 to the area will return immediately. The personnel will remain a year, at the end of which exchanges will be made.

It is expected that the bases will be continued until "effective occupation" is realized, since the State Department has contended that this is necessary to make good claims to new territory.

Lump-Sum Fight Again Threatens D. C. Funds

Conferees Limit Income Tax to 'Those Domiciled' in Capital; Meaning Debated

By James D. Secrest.

Senate and House conferees yesterday agreed to restrict a proposed District income tax to persons actually domiciled within the National Capital as the entire revenue measure was again threatened with being snagged by the House's refusal to accept the $1,500,000 lump sum increase.

District officials were working last night to devise a schedule of income tax rates that would produce between $750,000 and $1,000,000 as Senate and House conferees differed on whether or not the tax can be collected from thousands of Government employes who maintain legal residences in the States.

Graduated Tax Planned

The tax schedule, which will begin at the Federal bases of $2,500 for married couples and $1,000 for single persons, and allow $400 for dependents, is expected to be graduated with lower rates than the 2 to 7 per cent in the House bill.

Other developments in the legislative tie-up of the District supply and revenue bills were:

President Roosevelt indicated he will advise Congress early next week that the District is operating in an extra-legal capacity because of the Senate-House deadlock over the appropriations bill.

Chairman Collins of the House subcommittee on District appropriations, said he will not consent to any lump sum boost in the supply bill unless the House reverses its two previous votes.

Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, said he will call up the tax conference report in the Senate at the first opportunity next week, probably on Tuesday.

As heretofore, the success of the compromise agreement on the revenue measure rests on the attitude of the House toward the lump sum controversy.

Must Accept Whole Report

The House must either accept the whole conference report, which includes the income tax that it voted and other concessions, or reject it in its entirety. An acceptance will be a signal for the House conferees on the supply bill to yield accordingly.

Collins said he had no intention of taking the floor to fight the tax conference report, but when asked whether he would oppose it otherwise said: "I will defend my handiwork."

He also indicated he would stand pat against any increase in the relief appropriation. Senator Overton, who had raised this item by $600,000, yesterday agreed to reduce it to $300,000 to hold down the revenue requirements.

Collins declined to comment on the statement from the White House relative to the serious status of the District due to the Senate and House controversy.

Stephen Early, one of the White House secretaries, told newspaper men that he was authorized to state that the President is concerned over the fact that the National Capital is operating without legal status.

Questions Legal Status

There may be some question as to the right of District officials to perform their customary functions, the President believes, although they are obligated to maintain peace and order.

The President believes, however, that the exercise of these functions, including the making of arrests, might be challenged in court due to the "extra-legal" status of the District government operating in an "emergency" manner.

Should the compromise tax bill be enacted into law in its present form, the District income tax would

Giant Missouri Utility Held Holding Unit

SEC Sets Precedent In Ruling Against Union Electric Co.

By the Associated Press

The Securities Commission ruled yesterday that the $250,000,000 Union Electric Co. of Missouri is a holding company subject to SEC jurisdiction.

In a precedent-making opinion, the commission declined to grant the company's application for exemption from the utility holding company act, turning down its plea it is not subject to the act since it is a subsidiary of the North American Co., a registered holding company.

Commissioner George C. Mathews dissented. Commissioner Leon Henderson did not participate.

Under the commission's order the company must continue to file reports and other data called for by the utility holding company act.

The majority opinion said, "The conclusion is inescapable under the terms of the statute that Union Electric Co. of Missouri is in a very substantial sense a holding company.

Sees It Public Utility

In his dissent, Commissioner Matthews said the company was predominantly a public utility, but observed that "to whatever extent it is considered necessary that Union Electric Co. of Missouri be subjected to regulation as a holding company, it seems to me it may be so subjected. . . ."

The company had argued that as a subsidiary of the North American Co. it was already subject to most of the regulatory provisions of the act.

On this point, the commission ruled:

"The mere fact that the applicant may now be subject to many of the sections of the act does not empower us to grant it an exemption as a holding company unless it comes within those provisions authorizing us to grant exemptions.

"It may be observed that several provisions of the holding company act apply to registered holding companies and not to their subsidiaries.

Subsidiaries Creditors

"For example, Section 12 (A) forbids 'upstream' loans to its parent.

"The evidence in the present case shows that many of the applicant's subsidiaries are its creditors in large amounts.

"Under these circumstances, the necessity of regulation of such loans would require us . . . to deny the exemption . . . as being detrimental to the public interest and the interest of consumers."

The commission stated that as of December 31, 1937, balances due from the company to various of its subsidiaries included:

Cupples Station Light, Heat & Power Co., $364,231.71; St. Charles Electric Light & Power Co., $110,130.45; Mississippi River Power Co., $5,607,042.92; Iowa Union Electric Co., $727,083.03, and St. Louis Alton Railway Co., $178,509.83.

Postoffice Sees Autogyro Service For Washington

The flying of the mail from the roof of the Philadelphia postoffice to the Camden (N. J.) Airport—an innovation in speeding the mails—now makes postoffice officials ponder the possibilities of an autogyro service from the new Washington Airport to the Washington postoffice.

They have not tackled the question directly, but, say such a service will some day be used here.

Eddie Richenbacker, president and general manager of Eastern Air Lines, commenting on the Philadelphia-Camden autogyro mail service, said yesterday: "As a prophesy, I venture to say after the first year of operation, the postal authorities will establish similar service in New York, Chicago, Atlanta and other metropolitan areas on our system."

Navy Approves Bill to Block Forced Retirement

The Navy Department indorsed yesterday legislation to prevent involuntary retirement of naval officers holding the rank of rear admiral or above, by virtue of the office they hold until termination of their service in the rank.

A bill for that purpose by Representative Maas (Republican), Minnesota, was approved by the department in a report to the House Naval Affairs Committee.

The bill would apply, the department said, to line officers below the grade of rear admiral hereafter serving as commander in chief of the fleet or subdivision thereof, with the rank of admiral or vice admiral, or as chief of naval operations or judge advocate general of the Navy with the rank of rear admiral.

death of their chief. He ordered all saluting ships and stations to fire a 19-gun salute at noon today and again at noon Monday, and proclaimed a month of mourning for the Navy, with all officers wearing mourning badges until sunset of August 7. Local commanding officers were instructed to hold special memorial services.

The Secretary, 77, had been resting at the camp since June in the in February, 1936, when he was stricken with pleurisy. In the interim, his enfeebled condition left him barely able to attend the increasing duties surrounding the enlarged naval affairs.

President's Tribute

Almost immediately after word reached the White House that the Secretary had died at 8:06 a. m., in his native State, the President declared:

"It is with profound sorrow that I have learned of the death today at tthe Rapidan Camp, Va., of the greatly loved Secretary of the Navy, Claude A. Swanson.

"I join with the entire country in mourning him as one whose many years of faithful service to the Nation have endeared him to all. His wise counsel and his philosophic understanding of human problems will live after him in the hearts and minds of those of us who have had the privilege of being his associates.

"He brought to the public service not only ability and integrity, but a loyalty to principle and to duty from which no consideration could move him. By his example he has provided an inspiration for all public servants.

"I personally mourn the passing of a steadfast and intimate friend for more than a quarter of a century."

Full military honors will be paid the Navy Secretary during the Capitol sevices. The Navy high command will serve as honorary pallbearers, while columns of sailors, marines and the Navy Band will escort his body to the Union Station. Interment will be the same day in Hollywood Cemetery, Richmond, Va.

The pallbearers will be Acting Secretary Edison, Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations; Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the Marine Corps, and Rear Admirals Chester W. Nimitz, William R. Furlong, Harold G. Bowen, John H. Towers, William G. DuBose, Ben Morrell, Ray Spear, Ross T. McIntire and Walter B. Woodson, all bureau chiefs.

Representative Rayburn (Democrat), of Texas, Speaker pro tem of the House, named the Virginia delegation to a committee to officially represent the House at the services. Others on the 16-man body are Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee, and Representatives Schuetz (Democrat), of Illinois; Sutphin (Democrat), of New Jersey; Shannon (Democrat), of Missouri; Maas (Republican), of Minnesota; Church (Republican), of Illinois, and Mott (Republican), of Oregon, all members of the Naval Committee.

Garner Names Delegation

Vice President Garner named a Senate committee of like size. It includes Senators Glass and Byrd, of Virginia; Vice President Pro Tem. Pittman, Majority Leader Barkley, Minority Leader McNary, and Senators Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas; Norris (Independent), of Nebraska; King (Democrat), of Utah; McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee; Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi; Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts; Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland; Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina; Gerry (Democrat), of Rhode Island; Hale (Republican), of Maine, and Johnson (Republican), of California.

The body was brought to the Naval Hospital here by Navy ambulance, later moved to Chambers' funeral parlor, and then taken to the Capitol late last night.

Besides his wife, the Secretary is survived by his brother, Henry C. Swanson, postmaster at Danville, Va.; two sisters, Miss Sallie H. Swanson and Miss Anna B. Swanson, of Swansonville, Va., and his stepson, Douglas D. Hall.

Grover Cleveland, the New York Democrat, was President of the United States when Claude Augustus Swanson took down the shingle, closed his law office in Chatham, Va., and moved to Washington.

History records no unusual stir as the former editor of the weekly Hanover and Carolina News came to the Capital as a Representative in the Fifty-third Congress.

There were no indications then that the lanky Virginian was starting one of the longest and most varied careers ever written into political annals. For Claude Swanson's background was similar to that of a score of new Congressmen who entered the House of Representatives with him. In fact, it was not unlike the background of any number of members coming to Capitol Hill today.

He was born in Swansonville, Pittsylvania County, Va., March 31, 1862, the son of John M. and Catherine Swanson. The little village of his birth that bore the family name consisted principally of his parents' plantation. His mother was a Pritchett. His father was a tobacco manufacturer and merchant.

But the parent's tendency toward speculation, crop failures and other setbacks interrupted young Claude's education in 1875, when he was 13 years of age and he was forced to shift for himself. Here at an early age he displayed a charactertistic that was typical of his later career. He had a taste of education and he liked it. A genuine desire for learning burned within him.

The mere fact that economic setbacks made the acquisition of a complete schooling difficult did not deter him. He started farming in his own right and saving money. Soon he found that he might put the little training he already had acquired to good use by teaching elementary courses. The classes he conducted at age 16 included many pupils twice his age. But both teacher and pupils learned, and Swanson earned dollars for his future training.

Coming to Washington he found he was fascinated by the activities and ramifications of the National Government. As economic setbacks had not discouraged him in 1876, so he was not deterred by the fact that his background was limited.

And as he had started years ago to improve himself in Virginia before he turned to Washington, so he further trained himself here for the long and distinguished career that was to be his as a public servant. Although he was comparable in many respects to the scores of young lawyers who came to Washington, in his first year on Capitol Hill he soon displayed his individuality, the vigor and determination that changed him from a provincially minded country lawyer to a Cabinet officer with an international outlook.

The training that aided him in this remarkable development, although somewhat abbreviated, was of the best. He attended the Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College. This school was the early predecessor to Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Got Law Degree in Year.

His ability and forcefulness as a talker impressed a number of Danville's leading citizens. Following a Sunday school assembly at which he spoke he was offered the opportunity to further pursue his education at their expense.

Refusing to accept the money as a gift he agreed to take it as a loan providing it covered the entire time he was in school. Enrolling at Randolph-Macon College he won medals in oratory and debating. He was graduated in 1885.

He then enrolled for a two year's law course at the University of Virginia, which he promptly completed in one year, receiving his LL. B. degree in 1886.

Then followed six years of law in Chatham, Va., during which time he paid back his educational benefactors. In his spare time he made a few thrusts into local and county politics which served as an apprenticeship for his career in the national scene.

Swanson's first committee assignments in the Fifty-third Congress were Ways and Means, and Postoffice and Post Roads. The largest share of his time was devoted, however, to representing carefully his constituents and attending to their multitude of requests. At this time he had not become attached to the Naval Affairs Committee.

Swanson felt the limitations of the lower body of the Congress, and as he traveled to Chicago in 1896 as a delegate to the national Democratic convention he decided he would make a change if the cloak room conferences of the convention offered him the proper opportunity.

And they did. Senator Thomas Martin, who at this time was probably the foremost political leader in Virginia, already had taken a liking to the young Representative. He was further impressed with his political acumen as displayed at the convention. Martin cornered Swanson at the convention and when their talk was over it was decided that the latter would become the next Governor of Virginia.

In 1905 Claude Swanson, then 43 years of age, became the forty-second Governor of his State.

School promotion and the construction of new school buildings attracted the attention of this young Governor who had been obliged to struggle for his own educational training. He was successful in obtaining a $2,000,000 appropriation for new buildings at a time when the discussion of million-dollar measures was greeted with hostile opposition.

In 1910 Senator John W. Daniel died and Gov. Swanson was appointed to fill his vacancy. This appointment was renewed in 1911 to provide for the interim preceding the regular session of the Virginia Legislature, which elected him to the succeeding term ending in 1917.

He was re-elected to the Senate in 1916, 1922 and 1928, the first and last times without opposition. And it was during this period of service in the upper chamber that the tall Virginian from land-locked Swansonville and Chatham turned his attention to naval matters.

Navy His Interest.

How Claude Swanson became interested in nautical affairs perhaps never will be known definitely.

But the important thing is that he did become interested in the Navy, and wholeheartedly. He studied its problems, learned to know the admirals that put to sea and the men, in and out of the service, who directed its destinies from the shore.

In 1916 a year before the United States entered the World War he sponsored a $500,000,000, three-year building program which provided for 16 capital ships.

Two years later he became chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee succeeding Senator Tillman.

In these days as chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee one of the men with whom he came in direct contact was Franklin D. Roosevelt, then Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Together these two formulated many important naval policies. Swanson saw that they were carried through Congress, and Roosevelt was largely responsible for their administration.

In addition to this official relationship, the two developed a warm personal friendship. Both respected the other's abilities highly. Roosevelt saw in Swanson a man who had become a naval authority with no native background of the sea and also a man who held legislative power firmly in his grasp.

Swanson saw in Roosevelt the youthful enthusiasm for the Navy that the President still possesses, as well as a man who was schooled at an early age in nautical tradition and technique, a background that he probably coveted.

Their personal friendship, firm through many years of official relationship, was renewed three years ago when President Roosevelt named Swanson Secretary of the Navy.

Together they planned the reconstruction of the United States fleet, a gigantic task in which they were assisted by numerous leaders in both Houses of Congress.

During Swanson's term of office 110 naval vessels of all types, aggregating more than 600,000 tons of sea power, have been completed, and construction initiated on some 400,000 additional tons, including a start on rebuilding the powerful battleship fleet.

Many Pay Tribute

The Nation was quick to pay tribute to the veteran statesman. After voting a state funeral on Monday, the Senate adjourned in respect to his passing. Senator Glass, of Virginia, lifelong friend of Swanson's, proposed the adjournment resolution, declaring he was "dreadfully distressed" at the Secretary's passing.

Another old personal friend, Secretary of State Hull, said that Swanson had rendered the American people "services of inestimable value." "His high ideals, unselfishness and steadfastness of purpose," he added, "have always been a source of inspiration not only to those who were closely associated with him but to the entire country."

"He was one of the most lovable men I ever served with in Congress," said Senate Majority Leader Barkley, "and one of the wisest counselors in public and private affairs I ever knew."

Praised by Price

Acting Secretary of the Navy Edison said: "A long and brilliant career of usefulness has come to an end."

Admiral Leahy bemoaned the Secretary's death as "an irreparable loss to the Navy," and from the West Coast Admiral C. C. Bloch, commander of the United States Fleet, expressed the sorrow of his command.

Gov. Price of Virginia said: "No public man of my acquaintance occupies a warmer spot in the hearts of the people of Virginia than Secretary Swanson. He was able, efficient and faithful to every trust imposed, and his life and career are an inspiration."

Edison Held Likely to Get Swanson Post

Puerto Rico Job, and Preference for Civilian Seen Bar to Leahy

Charles Edison, Assistant Secretary of the Navy and son of the famous inventor, may be appointed to the Cabinet post vacated by the death of Secretary Swanson, informed quarters reported yesterday.

Friends say that Edison has now practically recovered his health. He suffered an attack of intestinal influenza last March and took a couple of months off to rest up. He has been back at work, however, since June 13.

President Roosevelt is expected to defer appointment of a successor for some time.

Admiral William D. Leahy, Chief of Naval Operations, who recently was appointed Governor of Puerto Rico, also is mentioned as a possible successor.

There had been reports that Secretary Swanson might resign, owing to his protracted illness, and that Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri, would be named in his place.

Stark, however, has virtually eliminated himself by announcing that he will finish his term as Governor, which expires in January, 1941. He also has indicated that he may run for the Democratic senatorial nomination against Senator Truman next year.

There was considerable speculation in Senate cloakrooms yesterday over the possibility that Leahy might be named. Two things, however, argue against this. One is that Leahy has already been confirmed as Governor of Puerto Rico and the other is that the Navy portfolio is looked upon as a civilian position.

Precedent could be found for the promotion of Edison, Secretary of War Woodring was moved up from Assistant Secretary following the death of Secretary Dern in 1936.

It is possible that an appointment may be made which would figure in the 1940 campaign strategy. In view of the Administration's national defense plans, however, this would appear to be a doubtful move.

Swanson's death recalls the wide rift whcih has developed in Democratic ranks under the New Deal. The former Virginia Senator was appointed in 1933 after Senator Glass had been offered the position of Secretary of the Treasury and had declined. The purpose in appointing one of the Virginia Senators to the Cabinet was to clear the way for the appointment of Harry Byrd to the vacant Senate seat.

Glass has consistently opposed the Administration's fiscal and monetary policies. In recent years, Byrd, who was elected to the Senate for a full term in 1934, has become an uncompromising foe of the Administration "spending for recovery" theory.

On Capitol Hill

Notice was given by the Republican high command in the Senate yesterday it will force many quorum calls "to keep Democrats here on the job" if the Administration insists upon neutrality legislation and enactment of a new $3,860,000,000 lending program before Congress adjourns sine die.

SEN. AUSTIN

Acting Republican Leader Austin, of Vermont, said his side does not consider either neutrality or the lending proposal as "must" legislation.

Congress should speedily consider the bill to amend the social security act and other "necessary" measures, tie up loose ends and go home, Austin insisted.

Revealing there had been comment among Republicans over the "frequent absence" of many Democrats, Austin said:

"In the future we will demand quorum calls when it appears necessary. We are ready to stay here and work through the summer if it is necessary, but the heavy Democratic majority must stay here and work, too."

President Roosevelt and his fiscal advisers agreed yesterday to have a comprehensive study made of the tax structure during the Congressional recess, with a view to having a bill ready at the next session of Congress.

They decided, however, the study would be made by a House Ways and Means tax sub-committee headed by Representative Cooper (Democrat), Tennessee, instead of by a temporary national committee as suggested recently by the Treasury.

Chairman Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, of the Senate Finance Committee, said that since the House originates revenue legislation "we thought it best that the House committee work on it first."

Friends and foes of the Tennessee Valley Authority laid plans for a fight in the House Monday over legislation to authorize TVA to issue bonds to finance private utility purchases in Tennessee.

A meeting was held in the office of Representative Sparkman (Democrat), Alabama, a few hours after Representative May (Democrat), Kentucky, a TVA foe, announced meeting Monday morning between Senate and House conferees in a further effort to reach a compromise on widely different bills.

May said that if a further conference failed, he would ask the House to instruct its conferees to insist on House amendments reducing the proposed TVA bond issue from $100,000,000 to $65,000,000 and restricting TVA's power sales to the Tennessee watershed.

Papers for a California "Vandenberg for President" club were filed at Sacramento, Calif., describing Senator Vandenberg, Michigan Republican, as the man "best qualified to restore the form of government to that originally contemplated by the signers of the Constitution."

Donald Kolts, Los Angeles attorney and a member of the State board of prison directors, was listed as one of the club's directors.

Byrd Maps Antarctic Expedition

Byrd will make the expedition to claim land he explored for the United States

McNutt Plans To Open Drive At Pittsburgh

Address Before Young Democrats Scheduled Aug 11

Paul V. McNutt, high commissioner to the Philippines, who has definitely announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency, will open his campaign August 11 in an address before the Young Democratic clubs of America at Pittsburgh, it was learned last night.

The address will signal the start of a national stumping tour by McNutt, just after his expected resignation from his Philippines post a month hence.

But if the President should seek a third term, McNutt will support him, the former Indiana Governor announced yesterday after interviews with Mr. Roosevelt and several other high officials.

It is possible the President and McNutt will be making Nation-wide tours at the same time.

Mr. Roosevelt plans to start his transcontinental tour, he said recently, four days after Congress adjourns. If Congress becomes deadlocked for the remainder of the summer on the neutrality and lending proposals, however, he may start out while McNutt is campaigning.

Essence of the McNutt strategy is to court favor with the New Dealers and the faction pushing Vice President Garner. If the President should win a third term nomination, McNutt would be in line for the Vice Presidential nomination.

If the Democratic Convention should become deadlocked, he might be available as a compromise nominee.

McNutt went to the Capitol yesterday and chatted with Senator Van Nuys, Indiana Democrat, who was re-elected with a big majority last year after he had been marked for a purge. Van Nuys emphasized his opposition to a third term and reassured McNutt he would support his candidacy.

This week McNutt again will go to the Capitol and discuss strategy in detail with Van Nuys.

Besides talking with Attorney General Murphy, Secretary of State Hull and Assistant Secretary Sayre on Philippine matters, the High Commissioner formally reported yesterday to his new chief, Secretary of the Interior Ickes, leading Administration third-term champion. Ickes assigned him an office in the Interior Department Building.

In the reorganization of departmental functions, the Bureau of Insular Affairs, which has jurisdiction over the Philippines, was transferred from the War Department to the Interior Department.

Senators to Hear Hull's Views On Purchasing Foreign Silver

The second Senate move in a week to ban Treasury purchase of foreign silver was held in check temporarily yesterday as a Senate Banking sub-committee agreed to hear the views of Secretary of State Hull.

The sub-committee adjourned without a vote on a bill by Senator Townsend (Republican), of Delaware, to prohibit purchase of foreign silver after Majority Leader Barkley requested testimony by Secretary Hull.

Hull, who is expected to go before the sub-committee this coming week, will be asked to explain how a silver purchase repealer might affect America's "good neighbor" policy with Mexico and silver-producing South American republics.

Meanwhile, the Treasury left unchanged the new low price of 36.75 cents an ounce it agreed to pay Thursday for foreign silver. Previously the Treasury's posted foreign purchase price had dropped steadily for two weeks from 43 cents as of June 26.

Originally, the Senate last week amended the President's money bill on motion of Townsend to stop further foreign purchases of the white metal. In conference with the House, this amendment was dropped. After a bitter Senate battle, the President's currency powers were extended Wednesday, foreign silver purchases were permitted to continue and the domestic silver purchase price was stepped up to 71.1 cents an ounce.

Townsend immediately pressed a second measure calling exclusively for repeal of foreign silver purchase authority and at his request the Banking sub-committee was called to act yesterday. Townsend claimed the votes in the Senate to pass the bill if it is approved by the Banking Committee.

As Mexico and other nations whose domestic economy has been built around silver and who have sold heavily to the United States would be affected seriously by the action, the subcommittee is understood to have assented to Barkley's request to hear from Hull. He may be asked how the proposed action would affect negotiations with Mexico on compensation for American oil properties expropriated by the Mexican government. He also may testify on trade implications.

Maintenance of the low Treasury price for foreign silver was taken in some quarters to mean the Treasury will not again attempt to lead the world price for silver.

Canadian press dispatches from Ottawa said Canada would be affected seriously if the United States Treasury ceased buying foreign silver, according to authorities there. Although Canada last year sold the United States almost all of its silver output—about $11,000,000 worth—it was said the amount was not large enough materially to affect Canada's export situation.

Sabath Throws Support to Hatch Bill

House Rules Chairman Says It Will Stop Firms' Vote Coercion

The Hatch bill "to prevent pernicious political activities" will stop large corporations from intimidating their employes at election time, said Chairman Sabath of the House Rules Committee yesterday.

A new recruit to the ranks of supporters of the measure, Sabath pointed out that if the bill is passed, "big industries and big banks will have to give up their current custom of threatening their employes with dismissal unless they vote in a certain way."

Meanwhile, it was reported that House Democratic leaders have decided to support the House Judiciary Committee's action in striking from the Senate bill a prohibition against Federal administrative officers taking part in political campaigns.

On the other hand, backers of the measure predicted it would not be approved unless it contains the controversial Senate provision.

Representative Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, sponsor of the bill, said he would fight for restoration of the ban on Federal officials engaging in campaigns, but would propose an amendment exempting the President, Vice President, members of Congress and the Cabinet.

MacLeish to Take Librarian Post About Oct. 1

Archibald MacLeish is expected to assume his duties as librarian of Congress about the first of October, it was stated at the Library yesterday. Meanwhile MacLeish, whose appointment to the top library post in the country drew fire from professional librarians, is at his home in New England.

The American Library Association, through its president, Ralph Munn, has extended MacLeish its "sincere good wishes."

"We all regret that our attempt to secure a professionally trained librarian had to take the form of a protest against your confirmation. I am sure that you realize, however, that your lack of library training and experience was the sole basis of our action. We all recognize and admire your personal qualities and talents," the A. L. A. letter stated.

Social Security Outlay Already $844,649,116

Collections in Over 3 Years of Operation Total $1,483,813,860

By the Associated Press

The Federal Social Security system, which soon may be broadened by Congress, already has paid out $844,649,116 in the three years and four months of its operation.

In this same period, $1,483,813,860 has been collected in social security taxes. Most of this has gone into Government bonds which have been placed in a reserve fund for old-age insurance benefits. Expenditures so far have been chiefly from appropriations made by Congress from general funds.

Treasury reports show that the bulk of the expenditures—$665,358,118—went to the States as grants to match State contributions for care of needy aged, dependent children and blind.

An expenditure of $17,844,954 in payment of benefit claims arising from death of workers insured in the old age insurance system also was made.

Remainder for Operations

The remainder went to pay administrative costs of the program—$55,891,864 for the Social Security Board and its staff, and $105,554,180 to States to cover costs of their unemployment compensation agencies.

Collections under the program have been $1,235,822,586 from pay roll taxes for old-age insurance benefits and $247,991,274 from employers subject to Federal tax for unemployment compensation.

The Treasury's May 31 accounting showed $1,098,814,347 in the old age reserve account. This is the fund from which old-age pensions will be paid. There have been no payments from it as yet except for the lump sums paid to estates of insured workers.

However, if Congress approves pending social security law amendments, the time for starting old-age insurance payments will be advanced from January, 1942, to January, 1940.

Payments Equal Benefits

The old-age reserve account, through investment in 3 per cent Treasury obligations, has received $17,674,043 in interest payments, almost equal to the death benefits paid to estates of insured workers.

Cash outlays for grants to States for assistance to the aged, the blind and dependent children have increased steadily since the Government started social security in February, 1936.

The combined Federal-State contribution has provided an average of $19.20 a month to the needy aged; $23.13 to the blind, and $31.42 to families caring for dependent children.

Rolls of the aged receiving Federal-State aid increased from 602,672 in June, 1936, to 1,848,700 in June, 1939.

In the same period, the number of dependent children receiving aid increased from 177,466 to 690,400, and the blind, from 17,508 to 44,400.

The Treasury also maintains a trust fund in which States deposit their tax collections from employers for unemployment compensation.

On May 31 State deposits totaled $1,852,062,339 and withdrawals for payments to idle workers, $592,617,000.

Dr. Townsend Wary

By the Associated Press.

Dr. Francis E. Townsend has made it known he does not want to risk another Congressional beating for his old-age pension program at this session.

Senator Pepper (Democrat), Florida, a Townsend plan advocate, made public yesterday a letter from the pension leader which asked that the plan be withheld from consideration in Senate debate on proposed changes in the social security act.

Townsend wrote that an adverse vote on his plan undoubtedly would "intensify our so-called 'defeat'" in the House. The House recently voted overwhelmingly against the plan for pensions up to $200 a month.

Ousted L.S.U. Official Held as WPA Grafter

New Orleans Papers Report It as 'First Down and Four to Go'

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New Orleans, La., July 7.—George Caldwell, former building superintendent at Louisiana State University, who was "fired" summarily by Acting President Paul M. Hebert, following the disclosure that he had been collecting a 2 per cent "cut" on construction costs there, was arrested here this morning on a Federal warrant, charging him with the diversion of WPA materials and labor to the use of private persons.

Almost concurrently with the arrest here, L. P. Abernathy, chairman of the State Highway Commission, resigned in Baton Rouge from his position as member of the board of supervisors of the university. His resignation was the second from that board to be announced by the newly inaugurated Gov. Earl K. Long, following the resignation and indictment of Dr. James Monroe Smith, former L. S. U. president.

According to Gov. Long's announcement, more resignations from the board of supervisors are impending, the governor indicating that political figures on the board will be replaced by prominent citizens devoid of political tie-ups.

WPA Foreman Arrested

James Marshall, 42, was arrested tonight at Baton Rouge on an affidavit issued by U. S. Commissioner Clive Kernan charging misuse of WPA materials and labor. Marshall had bee ns WPA foreman on many L. S. U. projects. iHs bond was set at $7,500.

Here in New Orleans a newsboy was yelling this afternoon: "Uncle Sam nabs Two-Per Cent George; first down and four to go," as passers by laughed and grabbed for papers. George Caldwell, first of the State political figures to face Federal charges since the resignation of Dr. Smith, is nephew of the Caldwell brothers, Summa and Verne, contractors, who with Monte Hart in the firm of Caldwell Bros. & Hart, have almost monopolized construction work at Louisiana State University, and got many other public jobs during the regime of former Governor Richard W. Leche.

Mr. Caldwell, a 300-pound jovial man, attired in natty Lincoln green, with white shoes, was arrested by Chief Deputy United States Marshal P. A. Caudet this morning as he emerged from testifying before the Federal grand jury before Judge Wayne Q. Borah, now investigating charges of corruption in the WPA, the income taxes of some of the State officials and the whereabouts of a 5 per cent political tax on the salaries of State employes.

Bail Fixed at $10,000

He was taken before United States Commissioner R. H. Carter, jr., on complaint of Paul Hansen, chief WPA investigator, and his bail was fixed at $10,000. It was promptly supplied, and he was released, after counsel entered his plea of not guilty, the defendant, seemingly unworried, left immediately for the Hotel Dieu, where his wife has been a patient for several days.

Although details of the charges were not revealed, it was reported they included details of work upon Caldwell's fine home just outside the university campus, where the bathroom accessories are of gold plate or silver. It also has been alleged that Caldwell used WPA labor on a farm and other outbuildings at the ranch of former Gov. Leche.

The Federal law under which Caldwell was arrested carries with it a possible punishment of a $2,000 fine, or imprisonment for one year, or both, for persons convicted.

Stolen Election Charged

As the two inquiries into Louisiana's political administration were proceeding today, here and before a grand jury in Baton Rouge, La., James H. Crutcher, administrator of the WPA in Louisiana, replied in detail to charges lodged with the Department of Justice that the WPA added 14,000 men to the rolls in the Sixth Congressional District just before the last September primary, at the behest of the State machine, thereby helping United States Representative J. K. Griffith win a solen election from young "Jimmy" Morrison.

His figures revealed that during the period which Joseph A. Sims, campaign manager for Morrison, charges the additions to the pay roll were made, only 4,458 persons were added in the Congressional district, about one-half of which were Negroes and therefore non-voters.

In the grand jury investigation at Baton Rouge, today, the jury listened to Acting President Hebert, of the university, and to two women who were secretaries in Dr. Smith's office.

Biologist Dies Seeking Cure for Sleeping Sickness

Kansas City, July 7 (INS).—Dr. Charles E. Salsbery, 57, a veterinary biologist, died today of equine sleeping sickness contracted while he sought an anti-toxin that would save horses from encephalitis.

Some of this serum was given him in a final attempt to save his life, as was the blood from innoculated guinea pigs. It was believed the first time guinea pig serum treatment was used in this manner. The sickness which claimed his life seldom attacks humans.

Relatives of Raymond Pulzone, 20, of 16 East Peyton avenue, Alexandria, yesterday asked police to help locate Pulzone, who, they said, disappeared June 28.

Baltic Deals Reported

British Ambassador to Moscow Sir William Seeds has been instructed to push immediately for a triple alliance linking France and Britain with the Soviets in a mutual self-defense pact against possible attack from the Nazi-Fascist bloc.

Meanwhile the British government has quietly begun paving the way for broadening of the alliance in a second stage by seeking to overcome the objections to Soviet protection on the part of Latvia and Estonia, both of which have rejected a priori all offers of assistance from the big three on the ground they do not want Russian troops on their land.

Britain, it was understood, has secretly guaranteed to Latvia and Estonia that Soviet soldiers will depart after any war to protect Latvian and Estonian independence.

Six Jews Assigned By Nazi Police To Speed Exodus

Berlin, July 7 (AP).—Six leading Jews selected by the Gestapo (secret police) tonight headed the machinery of the new "Reich's Union of Jews in Germany" whose main task is to speed Jewish emigration.

All Jews excepting foreigners must belong to the organization. It was established by law yesterday and was worked out by secret police in co-operation with prominent Jews to promote an orderly and unified exodus.

Jews said at least five years would be required even under the new arrangement for Jews able to leave Germany to emigrate.

Harry E. Maull In Treasury Post

Harry E. Maull was announced as the new assistant director of procurement in the Treasury Department by officials of the department yesterday. He succeeds Harry E. Collins, who has been named director of procurement.

Maull came to Washington in 1920 to serve in the Army Ordnance Department. He was later assistant general comptroller of the Emergency Fleet Corporation of the United States Shipping Board. In 1925 he was transferred to the Department of Justice, where he served as chairman of the general supply committee.

Coffee Urges Them to Keep On

In khaki uniforms and chanting the Chinese national anthem, a delegation from the Chinese Youth Club marched along, the dragon's travail secreted behind their faces. The Washington Committee for Aid to China brought up a float and was represented at the church program by its chairman, Dr. Mortimer Graves, Harry Douglas and Horace Truesdale. Near them were the Chinese counselor and military attache, Chang Lok Chen and T. C. Kuo.

Filling the lower auditorium of the church, and under the pictured eye of Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, the Chinese heard Representative John Coffee (Democrat), of Washington, urge them and their countrymen "not to give up the ship."

"The Chinese people are not going to surrender," he said, adding that he "blushed for shame" that this country should profit from the sale of munitions. He condemned the "scandalous" exportation of scrap iron to the Orient from this country. Three times, during the program, the Chinese applauded.

Five Minutes of Silence

Congratulatory messages were received from Dr. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches; Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, and Gov. Fred P. Cone of that State; former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Lieut. Gov. Ellis E. Patterson, of California; Senator Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah; William Green, American Fderation of Labor, and Harry C. Lamberton, of the American League for Peace and Democracy.

Dnring the services in the church auditorium, the Chinese lowered their heads in a tribute to Dr. Sun, and closed the rites with a five-minute period of silnce for their country's war dead.

Japanese Bomb Hurts American In Chungking

British Warship Badly Damaged in Raid on War's 2d Anniversary

By the United Press.

Chunking, July 7.—An American citizen was injured probably fatally, a British warship damaged, and scores of Occidentals were endangered today when more than 60 Japanese planes bombed this capital of nationalist China on the second anniversary of the undeclared Chinese-Japanese war.

The injured American citizen is Jasper Shen, born of Chinese parents in Hawaii. He is one of the chief pilots of the China National Aviation Corp.

British Man Guns

Physicians said he was wounded in both kidneys and that his recovery is doubtful.

The damaged British warship is the gunboat Falcon. Five bombs hit within 50 yards of the ship which was anchored in the Yangtse River off the business area of the city. The Falcon's doors were blown off, her port windows smashed, and a deck cargo of gasoline drums lost when waves washed the decks of the careening vessel.

British bluejackets manned the Falcon's guns as big Japanese Savoia type bombers roared over her but did not fire.

The British embassy planned an immediate protest.

American Flag Ignored

Another hit a vacant Chinese-owned building which formerly housed the United States Navy canteen. An American flag was painted on the building's roof.

Fires started over an area about 400 yards long and 40 yards wide on the river front, threatening the Canadian mission and damaging a business agency where many Occidentals were congregated.

The bombing was heaviest on the tip of the peninsula formed by the confluence of the Kialing and Yangtse rivers extending through the banking area.

London Mourns Gorilla Widow Dead From Grief

London, July 7 (U.P.).—Moina died tonight. The doctors said death was caused by a wound in her foot, but all London was convinced she died of a broken heart, grieving over her widowhood.

Moina, the London zoo's famous gorilla widow, delighted thousands of visitors in the last seven years. She had so many friends that, during her last illness, the newspapers carried daily health bulletins on the front page, even during the blockade of Tientsin and war scare over Danzig.

Tonight, the British news agencies carried on their wires the flash: "Moina died 7:45 p. m." Tomorrow, London newspapers will carry long obituaries and will recall her happy life with Mok, her mate, who died January 1, 1938.

Ex-Supreme Court Attache Blames Plight on Liquor

New York, July 7 (AP).—A man booked as John Reynolds Robertson, a 35-year-old attorney, who said he had served as law clerk to two Chief Justices of the United States pleaded vainly today for parole on charges that he passed bad checks on the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

He told Magistrate Curran that liquor was responsible and promised restitution if released.

Curran, however, ordered him held in lieu of $1,500 bail for trial.

The defendant told the court he had served as law clerk for Chief Justice Taft and for a short time under Chief Justice Hughes.

Store Proprietor, Shot, Scares Off Holdup Men

A dry goods store proprietor was shot by one of a pair of colored men yesterday when he attempted to resist holdup of his shop at 410 Eleventh street southwest.

According to police, Nathan Broidie, 59, of 4715 Fourth street northwest, frightened off the holdup men but one fired as he fled. The men escaped in a waiting car. Broidie was treated at Casualty Hospital for a superficial wound to his abdomen and released.

Seaton Gets 10-Day Manslaughter Term

Joseph S. Seaton, 34 who pleaded guilty of manslaughter this week, was sentenced to 10 or 30 days in jail by Justice Proctor yesterday.

Seaton was blamed for the death of Mrs. Lucille Cryer, 42, three days after he attacked her in her apartment March 26. Medical testimony at the trial had indicated the woman might have died of natural causes.

Reich Moves To Strengthen Bulgar Ties

Attention of Nazis Again Is Focused On the Balkans

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, July 7.—Nazi attention was centered on the Balkans again tonight as an official communique said Germany's "political, economic and cultural ties" with Bulgaria were to be strengthened.

Officials and the press expressed warm sympathy for Bulgaria's desires to regain territory she lost in the World War settlement to Rumania and Yugoslavia.

Meanwhile the controlled press pounded away against Britain's decision to provide credits for arming her allies.

Der Angriff, newspaper of Propaganda Minister Goebbels, called the project "death credits for British vassals" while Nachtausgabe said "the pound flows for war purposes."

A communique was issued at the close of the three-day state visit of Bulgaria's prime minister, George Kiosseivanoff, during which he had long talks with Chancellor Hitler, Field Harshal Goering and Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop.

It said the conversations dealt with "the general situation as well as specific German-Bulgarian questions" and were carried on in the "natural and traditional" spirit of friendship between the two countries. Italy was mentioned as sharing Germany's interest in Bulgaria.

An economic agreement between Germany and Bulgaria is understood to be under discussion. One result of the premier's visit may be a state visit to Germany by King Boris.

Rumania Alarmed

Budapest, July 7 (AP).—Rumania, richest of the Balkan powers, was openly alarmed tonight over what diplomatic circles described as a German plan for a "little axis" in southeastern Europe.

Rumanians charged that the cordial reception given Bulgaria's premier, George Kiosseivanoff, in Berlin this week was indication of Germany's efforts to weld Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Hungary into a pro-axis bloc. Hungary and Bulgaria were Germany's World War allies; Yugoslavia (or Serbia) was on the other side.

Significantly, Rumanians said, Kiosseivanoff's visit coincided with attendance of Gen. Henry Werth, chief of staff of the Hungarian army, at German maneuvers.

The regent of Yugoslavia, Prince Paul, made a similar trip to Berlin last month.

En route to Sofia, Premier Kiosseivanoff is scheduled to confer with Prince Paul at Bled, Yugoslavia, Sunday.

Bucharest newspapers demanded to know whether Fuehrer Hitler had promised Bulgaria help in regaining the Black Sea region of southern Dobruja, which was lost to Rumania in the 1913 Balkan war.

They recalled that Minister of Justice Hans Frank had told Sofia newspapermen June 24 that Germany expected Bulgaria to be on her side "in the next war."

Newspapers of Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, commented cautiously on the probable outcome of Kiosseivanoff's visit, although they criticized the "injustices of the post-war system." They added: "Revision means peace"—revision of the World War settlement which gave Bulgarian lands to Yugoslavia and Rumania.

Student Nurse Gets 2,000,000th Red Cross Award

A pretty girl, Miss Ann Miller, Gallinger Hospital student nurse, yesterday was honored by the American Red Cross when it awarded Red Cross first-aid certificate No. 2,000,000.

Miss Miller is 20, and a brunet. She came here two years ago from New Philadelphia, Ohio, to obtain a nursing degree. Her name chanced to be No. 2,000,000 among those up for certificates.

Therefore, many photographers took her picture while she sat in a primly starched nurse's uniform in the office of the Red Cross chairman. The award was made by Harold F. Enlows, national director of Red Cross first-aid and life-saving activities.

No one knows who received certificate No. 1. The millioneth certificate went to William Henry Nutt, of Perth Amboy, N. J. Nutt was received in the office of Admiral Cary T. Grayson, then Red Cross chairman, for the ceremonies in November, 1935.

Between 1909 and this year, the organization certified 2,026,575 as qualified first aiders.

Chicago, July 7 (AP).—Mrs. Helen Marie Szymczak, of suburban Oak Park, sued for divorce today, alleging Wenceslaus S. Symczak, a member of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System, deserted her. Attorneys said a property and financial settlement had been reached and no alimony would be asked. The Szymczaks were married January 15, 1916, and have two children. The husband lives in Washington, D. C.

Swooping Gulls Attack Kennedy Family at Beach

Hyannisport, Mass., July 7 (AP).—Five terns, graceful, swallow-like members of the sea gull family, are menacing the safety of persons who venture upon the beach at the summer home of Joseph P. Kennedy, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, but there really isn't anything that can be done about it.

That is what the State conservation department advised John F. Fitzgerald, father of Mrs. Kennedy and former Mayor of Boston, after he had protested it was necessary to wear baskets over the head as protection from the sharp beaks of the darting birds.

Conservation officials explained this is the mating season for terns and that it was only natural they should protect their nests. Anyhow, they added, the migratory bird law forbids the killing of terns at any season of the year.

Florid Drama Opens on the Capitol Screen

Walter Pidgeon and Virginia Bruce Star; Lampkin's Goodbye

"STRONGER THAN DESIRE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a novel by W. E. Woodward with Virginia Bruce, Walter Pidgeon, Lee Bowman, Ann Dvorak, Ilka Chase, Rita Johnson, Richard Lane, Ann Todd, Margaret Burke, Leonard Carey, Reed Hadley, Barbara Bedford and Paul Stanton. Directed by Leslie Fenton. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Capitol Theater.

Likeable Walter Pidgeon and blonde Virginia Bruce have the leading roles in the Capitol's new film, "Stronger Than Desire," a puzzling title for a film which seems to prove that the lofty, legal life is full of ennui and that wives of successful lawyers should not relieve their boredom by taking ferry boat rides with strange men.

Everything about "Stronger Than Desire" is inevitable and the fact that it is so haltingly told, with both the sound track and the camera about three leaps behind the audience, makes it an inconsequential photoplay.

In the spacious apartment of Tyler and Elizabeth Flagg in the East Sixties—smart lawyers have moved from flashy Park Avenue, now, to the more sedate side streets—there is unrest. Elizabeth sits home with daughter Susan, while Tyler collects fat fees from big cases to pay the rent. A close female friend, coyly called "Joe" and played by Ilka Chase, sees through Elizabeth's boredom and urges her to take up a flippant man-about-town to while away the weary hours. The faithful wife is cold to this idea, until she comes upon evidence that her husband has been "carrying on" with a debutante client.

So She Shot Him Dead

You and I and everyone else know that Walter is doing nothing of the sort, but Miss Bruce is considerably more gullible. She begins to meet this man-about-town and he really is a snake. He makes a practice of toying with dissatisfied wives and then, when it suits his purpose, he forecloses on them, demanding a payoff for the harmless letters they have written him. To retrieve her letters, Miss Bruce grabs a "rod" and lets him have it. She leaves the body just in time for the rat's hard-working wife to come home and investigate. The grocery boy catches the innocent woman with the gun in her hand and it looks as though she is caught bloody-handed.

The lawyer husband takes up the case for the indicted widow as a matter of duty, and, in a big court room scene, he learns that his own wife is the other woman he has been seeking. With consummate understanding, he wins acquittal for both women, and that is "Stronger Than Desire."

Pidgeon turns in a wholesome and natural performance as the lawyer, but Miss Bruce appears even more dazed than the part suggests. Ilka Chase has a role of stuffy humor, and little Ann Todd is the child who is never sure where her daddy is. Ann Dvorak, whose husband, Leslie Fenton, directed, does what she can to make the rat's wife credible.

Phil Lampkin's Farewell

Phil Lampkin, after all these years, stops the stage show. Spotted in the coveted "next to closing" position, the Capitol's Orchestra leader this week is completing a seven-and-a-half years' engagement at the theater and his potpourri of overtures, winding up with excerpts from "Faust," wins him an affectionate ovation.

The Kidoodlers, from the radio networks, are the headliners in "Slap-Happiness," the stage revue. These four young men have a refreshing act, with their novel songs and unorthodox instruments.

"Carlton Emmy and His Wags" is an excellent dog act. The "wags" are humorously clever and their antics rated the hand they got. Bea Saxon, who was at the Capitol not long ago, returns to sing some more current ballads and revive a medley of past hits. The Grays are five sisters and a brother, a song and dance act that climaxes with a Loch Harlem version of "Loch Lomond."

A film demonstrating the advantages of remodeling through the FHA plan, a Terry Toon cartoon and the Fox Movietone News complete the bill.

RICHARD L. COE.

Columbia

"Invitation to Happiness," which tells what happens when a lady marries a prizefighter, is now to be seen at the Columbia. Irene Dunne and Fred MacMurray make the two people believable and a smooth-working group of writers, directors, et al. make it easy to like.

The girl is rich; her father buys a half-interest in the fighter; they fall in love; he insistently fights toward the championship; they have a son, a divorce and a reconciliation after pa loses the big fight. What makes it all stick together is the fine humanity and delicate humor which Irene Dunne brings to such roles as this one of the rich girl, who all her life has longed to get over the twin barriers of money and social position. Fred MacMurray handles his healthy mugging with vigor and bounce and comes a cropper in endearing fashion.

Charles Ruggles, the trainer who believes woman's place is not by a prizefighter's side, is an elegant old gentleman who sees straight to the bull's-eye. William Collier, sr., as the father of the girl, is full of wisdom and grace.

While not pretending to prove oil and water can mix, the plot skirts adroitly around the fantastic and makes the story of the two particular young people and the life they live an enjoyable experience.

Pete Smith has a short on "radio hams" and how they help people and have fun in leisure time. The newsreel completes the program.

Groucho Can't Help Merry Quips

Recently, after a mechanical gag failed time and again to work on the set of "A Day at the Circus," Director Eddie Buzzell finally blew up. "This is the last picture I direct that's filled with props that don't work!"

Groucho Marx, standing nearby, chided: "Don't say that, Eddie. Harpo is very sensitive!"

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

'Daughters Courageous,' at the Earle, Is a Lively Domestic Comedy-Drama

'Four Daughters' Cast Are Seen Again; Ice Revue Offers Colorful Diversion

"DAUGHTERS COURAGEOUS." Warner Brothers picturization of a film play by Julius J. and Phillip G. Epstein, suggested by a play by Dorothy Bennett and Irving White, featuring Lola, Rosemary and Priscilla Lane, Gale Page, John Garfield, Fay Bainter, Claude Rains, Donald Crisp, May Robson, Jeffrey Lynn, Frank McHugh, Dick Foran, George Humbert and Barton Churchill. Directed by Michael Curtiz. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Earle Theater.

So they resurrected the story of Enoch Arden to supply the foundation of the sprightly comedy-drama of American home life that is occupying the screen at the Earle Theater this week.

BELL

But before we get around to that, it might be said that "Daughters Courageous" is a less deeply appealing picture than "Four Daughters," its predecessor in the same series, although the generous measure of comedy with which it has been imbued may, perhaps, lend it a more immediate superficial effectiveness. It seemed to me yesterday afternoon that the authors had done just a little straining for their comic cliches, loading the lines with wisecracks and injecting humorous speeches in scenes that were essentially serious. However, all that makes for glib conversation and excellent listening, even if, at times, slightly out of kilter with the spirit of the drama.

The Enoch Arden business—the return of a prodigal husband and father who had unceremoniously walked out on his family 20 years before and never been heard from since—occurs at a most inopportune time in the lives of the Masters family. Nan Masters has managed to bring her four daughters to maturity, all are sought by worthy young swains and she herself is about to marry Sam Sloane, a wealthy dullard, who can assure the fulfillment of her highest hopes for her family, when who should walk in but Jim Masters, back from the seven seas?

Some Heart-to-Heart Talks

The daughters at once set up a popular front of disapproval of their father and pledge themselves to freeze him out. But Jim Masters has a way with him. In no time at all he is his daughters' best friend and wisest counselor and even seems to be threatening the impending marriage of his former wife—she evidently has picked up a divorce somewhere along the way—and the town's moneybags. In two quietly and rationally played scenes, Jim and Sam have it out in the matter of Nan's best interests and Jim and Nan come to as complete an understanding concerning the desirability of his going back to wherever he has come from. So Jim does go back to his "rendezvous with the universe" and takes with him the strange Gabriel Lopez, a man much like himself in character and instinct, with whom Buff Masters, youngest of the daughters, has become insanely infatuated.

The romantic interest of the play has been pretty heavily concentrated in the characters of Buff and Gabriel, played with disarming naturalness by Priscilla Lane and John Garfield. Gabriel is the indolent and rebellious son of a fisherman, who feels the urge of an overpowering wanderlust and expounds a strange and specious philosophy as to just what his place may be in the general scheme of things. Buff is an independent youngster, who acts largely on impulse, but, nevertheless, acts. Garfield is at his best in his present assignment and the youngest of the Lanes shows remarkable development as a young actress of unusual promise. Her reading has improved immeasurably.

The father, mother and ostensible stepfather are admirably "played down" by Claude Rains, Fay Bainter and Donald Crisp—veteran artists all—and May Robson, as the housekeeper, contributes a steady flow of comedy to the action. So, in large measure, do Lola and Rosemary Lane, Gale Page, Frank McHugh and Dick Foran as the other romancers in the Masters menage. Jeffrey Lynn is rather left out of it this time in a colorless part which affords him no such opportunities as he had in "Four Daughters." George Humbert does an effective bit as Gabriel's harassed father and Berton Churchill manages to extract humor from the role of the judge to whom the family always appeals in times of difficulty.

The production deserves an "A" rating and Michael Curtiz' direction is more swiftly paced than in the first of the "Daughters" pictures, which he also directed.

And Nobody Fell Down!

The "Lake Placid Ice Show," on the stage, comes off with complete success. With the stage completely covered with synthetic ice, ample skating surface is provided for a full display of the unique talents of the featured performers. Foremost among these are Ted Meza, a comedian on blades, whose inebriety, acrobatics and tricky dances stopped the show cold in its tracks, and Brunet and Joly, Olympic champion figure skaters, dancers and whatnot, who ran Mr. Meza a close second. Dick Salter, Al Clark, with his barrel jumping, and Sonja and Margo, two more dancers on steel, executed their graceful chores expertly. The Roxyettes cover themselves with glory in several intricate routines.

The "extra added attraction" this week is Gloria Blake, a young coloratura soprano, billed as "the find of the month." Her three numbers and the skill with which she sang them demonstrated beyond cavil that she is a "find" and a very valuable one.

The new issue of the Paramount News completes a bill that packed the house yesterday and probably will throughout the week.

Four Daughters and One Bear

AMONG PRINCIPALS IN EARLE FEATURE

Reading around the clock, Rosemary Lane, Lola Lane, Gale Page and Priscilla Lane, framing the smiling Mr. Jeffrey Lynn. These are five of the reassembled cast of "Four Daughters" who appear advantageously in "Daughters Courageous," its sequel, currently on view at the Earle Theater. John Garfield, Fay Bainter, Claude Rains, Donald Crisp and May Robson also are conspicuously cast

JOHN N. GARNER: At Elliott Roosevelt's first broadcast for his current sponsor he told his listeners that he would invite answers to such questions at "Do you favor a third term for the President?" . . . He's still getting mail in response to that. Elliott told me last night that the mail showed 70 per cent for a third term and 30 per cent against. . . . District Attorney Dewey: Are you arranging, secretly, for the release of some of those you convicted in the restaurant racket cases? . . . Ford Frick: This, perhaps, may have no relation to the recent Durocher-Bonura fight—but the Dodgers' manager had made a wager that Ducky Medwick would have a higher batting average than Bonura this season.

SPENCER TRACY: Father Flanagan, whose "Boys Town" was the basis of the movie which won the Academy Award this year, has learned not to have to depend on Hollywood's voluntary support of his truly admirable project . . . Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was anxious to reach Father Flanagan for discussion of a follow-up film. "You may reach Father Flanagan," came the response, "through Frank Orsatti, his agent."

F. D. R.: The current issue of the Saturday Evening Post includes an article about your son-in-law, John Boettiger. That article is not at all flattering to him . . . But a forthcoming issue of that magazine, however, will include an article by Boettiger—in which he will advocate your candidacy for a third term . . . Alice Faye: Tony Martin was all set to realize his ambition—by signing to appear in George White's new "Scandals." He withdrew because he didn't want to leave you and provide material for the gossipers who are ready to announce your separation . . . Harry Richman: Helen Kane, who made "Boop-boop-a-doop" famous, auditioned for your next show at the International Casino. Now she's singing swing tunes.

CLARE BOOTHE: Last week an editorial assistant to the president of Time magazine sailed to Europe on the Bremen . . . On the eve of her departure she received a cable instructing her to take along a large package which could be found at Henry Luce's apartment . . . The editorial assistant obeyed, took that package into her stateroom—and wondered at the importance of such a large package which was being transported across the Atlantic at the special order of the owner of Time . . . That package contained something you had said you missed while in Europe to relieve your boredom. It was needlepoint material—and knitting.

GEN. FRANCO: If your new Ambassador to America hasn't told you about it yet, here's what happened when he presented his credentials to President Roosevelt: The President discussed the number of loyalist prisoners now held by you, and the reports that they would all be shot. He compared the war in Spain with our own Civil War and reminded your ambassador about the mercy extended to all the Confederate prisoners after the war was over . . . B'way Assn.: Because of the new surge of business on Broadway, the Rivoli Theater—which still announces that it will be closed until July 26—will reopen on the twelfth, with a new Universal picture . . . Jack Dempsey: Tony Galento, who substituted for you at the Toledo ceremonies July 4, got $1,000.

J. EDGAR HOOVER: When Dorothy Lamour was here last the newspapers front-paged the story of the extortion note she had received. The alarmed Miss Lamour got a police bodyguard—not only here but also in Chicago and Hollywood . . . Dorothy, who is returning to California tomorrow, received another extortion note from the same person this week. She no longer is alarmed. The sender still asks for $250 and pleaded "Have faith in me." He explained: "I read in the film magazines that you appreciated all those people who helped give you a start. So now I want you to help start me in life by giving me $250—or else."

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF ACTORS: The three Slate Brothers aren't speaking to each other—although they're appearing at the Strand Theater—because one of their respective wives insists upon joining the act, while another of the wives is part of it already.

HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE: A G. Vanderbilt's new filly, out of "Hindu," was to have been called Levant, in honor of Oscar Levant. Levant objected to his name being attached to a female horse . . . Vanderbilt adopted his suggestion—to name the filly "Seven Pillars."

HARRY HOPKINS: Gov. Chandler of Kentucky, still feels that the power of WPA was pressed into use against him, when he campaigned last year against Senator Barkley . . . Chandler visited the New York Giants baseball squad a few days ago, and was told of the Louisiana scandal, involving the WPA and Gov. Leche . . . "I'll say one thing," was Chandler's comment. "That WPA sure gets a lot of people in trouble."

Smalltown Life Forms Basis of Film at Keith's

'Career' Is Story Of Warring Factions In the Midwest

"CAREER." RKO-Radio picturization of a story by Phil Stong and Chester Erskine, adapted to the screen by Dalton Trumbo and Bert Granet, costarring Edward Ellis and Anne Shirley, with Alice Eden, John Archer, Samuel S. Hinds, Leon Errol, Janet Beecher, Raymond Hatton, Maurice Murphy, Harrison Greene, Charles Drake and Robert Cavanaugh. Directed by Leigh Jason. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

"Out in Io-way" atmosphere dominates "Career," adapted from one of Phil Stong's popular stories of small town life in the Midwest. The picture, like the story, is an honest and optimistic reflection of the tall corn and deep-dish pie school of American living.

Edward Ellis, as a sturdy storekeeper with hardboiled notions of fair dealing, has a part almost as strong as that of the small town doctor in which he recently scored. He plays it with fine force and soundness; makes it the outstanding feature of the picture.

In "Career," the stout Mr. Ellis has to contend with the machinations of the local banker, a tricky leading citizen with a finger in every pie of the community, and, like little Jack Horner, pulling a plum out of almost every pie. Samuel S. Hinds, as the banker, plays with almost the same virtuosity as Mr. Ellis, though his role is far from endearing.

Talks Mob Into Sanity

The story is laid in the period of the bank crash epidemic. Mr. Ellis has a nose for oncoming disaster, pulls his money out of the bank just before it goes ker-flump. Banker Hinds, frantically looking for an "out," tells the townsfolk that the Ellis withdrawal is to blame for the bank trouble, also alleges that Ellis is taking this method to gain revenge for the loss of a sweetheart some thirty years ago. The crowd gets a rope, transforms itself into a mob and marches on the Ellis home. But the stern Mr. Ellis marches out on his front porch and lectures the mob until it blushes collectively. This is the big moment of the picture.

Through this starker story are woven a pair of juvenile love themes, involving the children of the main protagonists.

Producers of the story have chosen to stress the greatness of Iowa by leading flashes describing the State and its agricultural products, also by interpolations culled (we think) from author Stong's descriptions of the Iowa manner of living. The title "Career" applies to the devotion of Ellis' son (John Archer) to his scientific work and the loss of his first love and fiancee, Anne Shirley. With Actor Ellis and his financial and civic complications actually dominating the story, this makes for some confusion of theme.

Errol Supplies Comedy

Leon Errol, the indestructible, is responsible for all the fun in this opus. His legs are of rubber but he's copper lined, being addicted to drinking liniment. He finally vows to do better and consume nothing but bonded whisky.

"Career" has many elements of what should be success, but, somehow, doesn't jell. The unhappy ending just doesn't fit into the public conception of small-town life.

Donald Duck and his three nephews romp through "Sea Scouts," another top Disney conception, with Donald as a deep-sea sailor who falls afoul of a terrible monster of the deep.

"The March of Freedom," with the voice of Graham MacNamee shouting patriotically, tells the story of these United States with unadulterated enthusiasm, practically no shading of the golden picture.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., July 7.—(Even babies work for me while I galavant. But I think you'll go for this fresh point of view from real parents.—H. H.)

By Mr. and Mrs. Roy Henville

Last January we read a piece in one of the papers that a baby was needed for a part in the Universal picture, "East Side of Heaven," so we at once thought of our Sandy.

She's been called "Sandy" since she was born. We named her Sandra because we both liked that name. If she turned out to be the "Sandy type," we would call her Sandy. Otherwise, we'd call her Sandra.

Her success since she started has been like a dream. A day at the studio is like showing off your baby to visitors in your own home. By that we mean the usual procedure is getting the baby to do all of the cute things she usually does when she's free to do as she pleases.

It's funny watching directors, their assistants and technicians cut up and go through a thousand and one antics in order to get the proper reactions from the baby. Everyone has been very helpful and we certainly appreciate their patience and consideration.

Sandy is allowed to be at the studio only four hours a day. She usually works in the morning. Then, after she's had her nap at home, she plays in her back yard just like any other child. Our happy home hasn't been affected by the good fortune Sandy has had. We have the same friends and spend our time same way that we always have.

You'd expect a baby's relatives to make more of a fuss over her when she turned out to be a movie star. But in Sandy's case that hasn't been true though. Being the only grandchild has meant that she always has had the undivided affection of four grandparents. Even before her success in pictures her grandparents thought her the only baby in the world.

Our neighbors haven't gone crazy just because she's in the movies either. They regard her as just another baby. We appreciate this because it will help keep her from becoming spoiled. She gets enough attention at the studio, when they're trying to get her to do something, to last a long while. At that, it's natural for a baby to get a lot of attention when there are only grown-ups around.

One of the biggest advantages of having Sandy is that our relatives back in the Middle West have the opportunity of seeing her just as she is "in action." We all came from the Middle West and we have many relatives back there. Of course, they all saw her first picture. And all are quite anxious to see "Sandy Takes a Bow," the one she is making now. They're very much interested having an actress in the family and send us clippings about her from their local community papers.

Our main reason in allowing Sandy to be in pictures is to give her advantages when she grows up that she couldn't have otherwise. Everything she earns is put aside so that when she goes to school, and even after her school days, she'll have things that a father on my salary would never have the means to provide.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, July 7 (INS).—One of the guests at Sam Goldwyn's party after his preview was Rene Ray, who, I had heard earlier in the day, was here for a test for "Rebecca." So quietly was Miss Ray brought to Hollywood, that there wasn't a word of publicity about her arrival. Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, who went to the party with me, knew her well in London.

LOUELLA PARSONS

A well-known British actress, she is the wife of George Potsford, who wrote the beautiful music for "Balalaika," which M-G-M is now in the midst of filming, with Ilona Massey and Nelson Eddie.

I must say for Miss Ray that she is a very diplomatic and cagey young lady. Repeated questions about "Rebecca" brought utter silence and, even to the Lyons, she wouldn't admit that it was Alfred Hitchcock, director of "Rebecca," who brought her here for a test. But there are ways of finding out and, if she is what David Selznick wants for the Du Maurier role, she will be "Rebecca."

The sarong gal, Dorothy Lamour, trains in Sunday, after her Eastern jaunt. But even before she reached home, she sent a telegram commenting on the Ruth Etting trial, in which she was supposed to have kissed Miss Etting's bridegroom. "I deny I ever kissed Myrl Alderman and if my friends want to believe a bartender's word against mine, I have nothing more to say." You may remember that Dot was accused of kissing the thrice-married pianist in the Melrose Grotto. Her first assignment at Paramount after her return is "Typhoon," a story of the South Seas, in which she again wears a sarong. She will be costarred with Robert Preston. Maybe, when Dorothy gets here, she will tell us whether or not she will reconcile with Herbie Kay. Her best friends doubt it.

If the preview audience which saw "They Shall Have Music" is any criterion, the picture is a smash hit. I never, in all my years of reviewing, have seen an audience react with greater enthusiasm than to Heifetz's playing and to the comedy, which is really very good. A little 6-year-old pianist, Mary Ruth, was actually cheered. Now, it develops, the little girl is under personal contract to Ed Finney, a monogram producer, who will star her in "Lil Louisiana Lady," a costume story of the old South. Finney's contract with the little genius was reapproved in court last week by Judge Emmett Wilson and her Monogram picture is her second appearance on the screen.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: That very pretty maiden at the House of Murphy with Bob Ritchie, was Jean Myras; the Jack Bennys have adopted another little girl, as a playmate for Joan; Hedy LaMarr and Bebe Daniels met for the first time in front of the theater after the Goldwyn preview. Both Bebe and Ben were curious to see her and both commented on her resemblance to Barbara LaMarr. Gene Markey, Hedy's bridegroom, was busy dodging autograph hounds; Bob Riskin escorted Loretta Young to the theater, but took Kay Francis home from the Goldwyn party; James Roosevelt, who gave "Wuthering Heights" such a sendoff in London that the town is still talking about it, was questioned at the Goldwyns by some of us curious ones about the King and Quen's visit. He was very entertaining and complimentary to Their Majesties.

Frances Fonda, who came without Henry, who was working, said she was getting fat, but she looked as thin as a string bean to me; Ann and Jack Warner talked for a long time with Sam, and their praise of the picture was as spontaneous as if it had been made by Warners.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Trujillo Sees Hull, Lunches With Senators

Press Conference Curtailed; Other Parties Canceled

Santo Domingo's generalissimo and former president, Rafael L. Trujillo, called on Secretary Hull, lunched with United States Senators and held his first American press conference yesterday, to inaugurate his first visit to the United States.

His calls on American officials were pronounced a success, but despite the presence of an American public relations counsel, his press conference did not quite go off so well. Delaying the conference for 40 minutes, the generalissimo had only a few minutes to answer questions before leaving for his appointment with Secretary Hull.

Today, Gen. Trujillo goes to Fort George G. Meade, Md., where the Army will stage a review. Monday night, Gen. George C. Marshall, acting chief of staff will give a dinner for the visitor.

Other scheduled arrangements have been canceled or postponed due to the death of Secretary Swanson. The Navy canceled a dinner by Maj. Gen. Thomas C. Holcomb, commandant of Marines, and reviews and parades at the local Marine barracks, and the Quantico Marine base.

A White House tea scheduled for yesterday afternoon was postponed until Tuesday, legation officials said, while the large reception at the Pan-American Union tonight was postponed. Minister Pastoriza, the host, said it would probably be held late this month when Gen. Trujillo returns from a tour of the United States.

Clown, 73, Still Brightens Lives Of Children, Offers Playground

Buck Baker Thinks Youngsters' Lack of Place to Play Is No Laughing Matter, So He Promises Free Pony Rides to All Who Come

Moved by closing of District playgrounds because of delay in enactment of the 1940 appropriations bill, a 73-year-old former circus clown yesterday invited Washington youngsters to come out and enjoy the pony track and playground he is developing in nearby Maryland, on a plot about 5,000 square feet.

"It's a shame, that's what it is," said Buck Baker, 25 years with Ringling shows. "My playground won't accommodate all of these shut-out kids, maybe, but it will take care of a good many."

The place is on Eldridge avenue in Brentwood, just two blocks off Rhode Island avenue northeast. Four ponies were on the job yesterday, drawing children around the track which Buck built.

"What I plan to do," he said, "is to make this a miniature circus. I'm putting in a trapeze, slack and tight wires arranged so that no one can get hurt, little sideshow tents and other features. Kids who have the circus bug can come out and get some practice."

Everything will be free, he declared, including pony rides from 3 to 4 p. m. daily. At other times it will cost a nickel to drive Spunky, Punky, Silver or Blackie. There will never be any charge, however, for admission to the circus or use of its non-pony attractions.

Buck said he hopes the play center will be used by Washington youngsters, as well as those living in Brentwood and nearby Mount Rainier and Cottage City.

Showdown Sought On Neutrality

to sidetrack the proposed neutrality law changes were signed by Senator Johnson, Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri; Senator Nye and Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin.

Besides these four, among those attending the conference were said to be Senators Borah, of Idaho; Reed and Capper, of Kansas; Vandenberg, of Michigan; Danaher, of Connecticut; Lodge, of Massachusetts; Holman of Oregon, and White, of Maine (Republican); Bone, of Washington; Clark, of Idaho, and Holt, of West Virginia (Democrats), and Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota.

Will Fight All Summer

Senator Johnson, veteran leader of the fight against American entry into the League of Nations under President Wilson, and later against the World Court, compared the present fight to the earlier efforts of the noted 13 "irreconcilables" who blocked Wilson.

"We are determined to fight this thing out if it takes all summer," Johnson told newsmen. "I don't see any room for compromise. There is just one thing in this—we are determined to keep out of any European war."

Reminded that the President likewise contends the Administration's neutrality law changes are designed to "keep out of war," Johnson said: "The President was joking."

Two motions are expected to be offered when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee meets Tuesday to determine its neutrality course. One, originating with the isolationist group, would call for postponement until next session. Another, offered by the Administration, would put the committee on record for proceeding at once with the House approved neutrality bill as a basis.

Adoption of the postponement motion would preclude further action this session. Should it be approved, leaders believe the President will call Congress back into special session should another war crisis develop in Europe.

This latter probability is a factor that may influence Gillette to cast what might prove the deciding vote for proceeding with the House-approved bill. The Iowan is on record as opposing action designed to meet a specific crisis, believing it would be unneutral. He has offered a "trade at your own risk" bill, believed to carry indorsement of Secretary Hull, which is similar in many respects to the original House bill before it was modified by substitution of a partial arms embargo for outright repeal.

Gillette said last night he was faced with a difficult choice. Postponement of action, he said, was certain to give encouragement to the totalitarian powers. On the other hand, he said he did not want to be in the position of "taking sides" with Britain and France. He flatly declined to say how he will vote.

The tentative line-up of other committee members on a motion to postpone action appeared to point to the following division:

Committee Line-up

Against postponement—Pittman, Barkley, Harrison, Wagner, Connally, Thomas, of Utah; Murray, Pepper, Green, Guffey and Schwellenbach.

For postponement—Clark, Van Nuys, Reynolds and George (Democrats), and Borah, Johnson, of California; Capper, Vandenberg and White (Republicans), LaFollette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, and Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota.

Of these, at least one of the prospective postponement votes was uncertain. Although claimed by opponents of the Administration's neutrality policy, George has refused to commit himself.

Should the committee refuse to postpone action, the House-approved neutrality bill immediately would come up for consideration. Greatly modified from its original form, it would ban shipments of "arms and ammunition" in war time, but would permit trade in other "implements of war."

Treason Suspect Trusts Justice Of Franco Spain

Madrid, July 7 (U.P.).—Julian Besteiro, only key figure of the republican regime to remain in Spain after the collapse of loyalist resistance and the end of the civil war, will go on trial on treason charges tomorrow before a nationalist court-martial.

"I am convinced I have nothing to fear," said the 68-year-old socialist leader, who served as President of Spain in the last turbulent days of the civil war.

"I trust the justice of Franco's Spain, and I am ready to go on trial tomorrow, confident of justice."

Chlorine Gas Fells 75 in City Pool at Utica

Utica, N. Y., July 7 (A).—Seventy-five persons, including 30 children, were overcome by chlorine gas which a change of wind swept across the new municipal swimming pool today.

Officials at Faxton Hospital said William Rubin, 60, New York City; Leonard Nunno, 42, and Clarence Mosher, 17, both of Utica, were in serious condition.

Nerly 50 others were expected to be kept in the hospital over night. The remainder were sent home after receiving inhalator treatment.

City Acts to Open All Playgrounds

member of the recreation commission. "I am in wholehearted favor of greater utilization of school playgrounds. Let the youngsters on, but keep the grown-up 'kids' off."

Commissioner Hazen said that school grounds now closed should be thrown open to the children.

"In some instances, where the grounds are near residences," he said, "I feel they should have supervision. But if they are isolated from private or public property which might be damaged, I say open them up anyway and never mind the supervision."

Urges Trained Personnel

Said Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer:

"All school grounds should be opened. I always have contended that every available play spot should be used during the summer months. We don't want to repeat our child-fatality toll of last July, and our only hope is to keep the youngsters off the streets."

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, wants the school grounds open, but with trained supervising personnel.

"We should do everything in our power to get these children off dangerous streets," he said, "but I am fearful of the damage to school property if trained play directors are not in attendance."

Keneipp Backs Move.

George Keneipp, manager of the Keystone Automobile Club and long an advocate of ample play facilities, said:

"For several years we have urged that all school grounds be kept open during the summer as a safety measure. To keep the grounds locked and barred to children, forcing them to play in the streets, is absolutely indefensible. A few broken window panes is a small price to pay for saving a life or sparing a limb of some boy or girl."

Mrs. Doyle said she felt "strongly" that all playgrounds should remain open, and suggested supervision by volunteer members of parent-teacher associations.

"I feel the grounds should be supervised not because of any possible damage to buildings or school property, but for the protection of the children themselves," she satid.

Safe Place Held Need

Whitney Leary, chairman of the Commissioners' traffic advisory council, declared:

"Unquestionably, all grounds should be opened to the youngsters. Of course, adult supervision would help, but better opened without supervision than not open at all. Just to unlock those gates would provide a haven of safety to children in all sections of the city."

Gratz E. Dunkum, member of the Board of Education, had this to say:

"I think the grounds should be opened and I don't think supervision is of major importance. Give the children a safe place to play and they'll take care of themselves."

Butcher Admits Torso Murder

found in Cleveland since September, 1935. Parts of the body of Mrs. Polillo, a 160-pound woman, were found on a rubbish dump January 26, 1938. She was victim No. 3. Andrassy, No. 2, was found September 20, 1935, and Mrs. Wallace, June 6, 1937.

Coroner S. R. Gerber and other authorities previously expressed opinion all 12 killings were the work of one surgically-skilled maniac, who mutilated some of his five female and seven male victims. Among the mutilated were Mrs. Polillo and Andrassay. Dolezal worked several months as a slaughter house butcher.

Denies Other Slayings

Dolezal denied any connection with the torso killings except the slaying of Mrs. Polillo, the sheriff said.

O'Donnell declared the bricklayer said a butcher knife fight resulted in the slaying "because I did not give her any money." They were drinking in Dolezal's room. The sheriff gave this version of Dolezal's story:

"She wanted to borrow some money.

"I did not want to let her have any money because she once tried to lift $10 out of my pocket. We sat around drinking. About 2 a. m. she became mad because I did not give her any money. Then she picked up a butcher knife that was lying on the table and swung the knife at me.

Watched Head Float Away

"I took the knife away. I punched her with my fist. Then I cut her head off and then I cut her body into pieces. I put pieces of her body in a basket. It took me two or three trips to dispose of the body. I took the head down to the foot of East Forty-ninth street. I threw it into the lake. I did not weight it down. The wind was blowing out into the lake.

"I saw the head float out into the lake. I was afraid it was going to float in. I went down to the lakefront about four times to make sure the head was not washed ashore.

"Protect me. Please help me. Don't let them send me to the electric chair."

Pat Lyons, special deputy sheriff, asserted that in Dolezal's quarters, traces of human blood were found on the bathroom wall and several bloody knives.

Lump-Sum Fight Renewed in House

be imposed only on bona-fide residents of Washington.

Members of Congress, their secretaries, all elective officials of the Federal Government and others whose appointment terms are fixed would be exempt on the ground that their "domicile" is elsewhere.

Whether Government employes permanently employed in the District, but keeping a legal residence in the States, would be subject to the tax is not certain.

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, one of the conferees, said he believed they would not, although he explained he had opposed any exemptions.

Dirksen Gives View

"Domicile is decided on the basis of intent of the person concerned," he said.

Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, House champion of the income tax and one of the conferees, expressed the opinion that the mere maintenance of a voting or legal residence in a State would not exempt a Government employe or other District resident who earns his living in Washington.

Suburban Washingtonians, living in Maryland and Virginia, are clearly exempt from the District tax under the "domicile" provision although they earn their entire livelihood in the District.

Auditor Daniel J. Donovan gave the conferees estimates upon which the decision was reached to make the income tax rates very low.

Using calculations of the yields from other taxes in the compromise bill and anticipating the final total of the District supply bill, Maj. Donovan at first stated that the income tax would have to produce $1,600,000 to balance the 1940 budget.

Senator Overton then stated his willingness to cut the Senate relief increase in half or to $300,000 and to reduce the new school construction items which the Senate added from $804,550 to $250,000.

$750,000 Deficiency Seen

Maj. Donovan then, after more figuring and adding an estimate for increased utility taxes in the revenue bill, said that the deficiency to be met by an income levy would be $750,000 or less.

Should the relief increase, so strongly opposed by Collins, be eliminated, the income tax would not need to yield more than $500,000.

The total estimated yield from the tax bill, including the difference between a $1.50 and $1.75 real estate tax, is $7,540,000.

This comprises a return of $3,300,000 from the 25-cent increase in the realty tax, which has been in effect for the last two years; $2,200,000 from a 5 per cent corporation tax; $100,000 from the District's share in Federal Court fines; $40,000 extra from prorating the personal tax on motor vehicles; $400,000 additional from utilities, and $1,500,000 more from the Federal Government.

Municipal Center Workman Injured

Pete Chicciarelli, 53, of 4303 Ninth street northwest, suffered head lacerations and injuries to his chest yesterday when a caisson shell he was hoisting at the Municipal Center site, C street and John Marshall place northwest, toppled, pinning him to the ground.

Other workmen quickly lifted the 800-pound steel casing from Chicciarelli's body. Unconscious, he was removed to Emergency Hospital.

WHAT DOES YOUR MAN THINK OF THE BEER YOU SERVE HIM?
Why not give him the local beer that International experts prefer to many of Europe's most famous beers? Order Gunther's "Special Dry Lager"... only 10¢ here!
GUNTHER'S IS DRY AND BEER-Y_NO MORE OF THAT ORDINARY "SWEET" BEER FOR ME!
I WISH MORE PEOPLE KNEW HOW LITTLE THIS GLASS OF GUNTHER'S COST. IT'S A TREAT FOR REAL BEER DRINKERS!
GUNTHER'S APPETIZING FLAVOR SEEMS TO INCREASE MY INTEREST IN FOOD IT DOESN'T SEEM TO "FILL" ME UP... IT'S NOT HEAVY!
HOW CAN GUNTHER'S DO IT?
HIGH QUALITY BEER... fine enough to outrank some of the finest beers ever made... yet it sells at the same cost as ordinary beer!
Why Gunther's Costs Less
How can Gunther's afford to sell such a great beer for less than a dime? There are three big reasons: 1. Gunther's makes hundreds of thousands of BARRELS of beer (the equivalent of over 90 MILLION bottles) ...more than any other beer in this part of the country! This big volume means big savings on ingredient and brewing costs. 2. Most all of Gunther's is sold to folks right here in Maryland and D. C.... this means that no long haul shipping charges are added to the cost of Gunther's. 3. Most of it is delivered direct from the brewery to your dealer in our own trucks ...another enormous saving, because breweries from other states have to pay as much as 30 to 50¢ per case to the wholesalers who handle their beer.
Put all these big savings together and you can see why folks around here can have Gunther's quality at a dime, whereas if you lived in New York, Milwaukee, St. Louis, etc., you would have to pay at least 15¢ per bottle for it.
Try Gunther's today. It is the only "Special Dry Lager" sold around here.

EXCERPT FROM L. B. A. LETTER

Strike Against The Law

The strike called by various groups of skilled workers employed by the WPA can have only one outcome. It is a strike against the law. Leaders responsible for the walkout understand clearly that Works Progress Commissioner Harrington has no authority to restore union wage scales on WPA projects. Their action is directed solely against Congress and is therefore certain to fail of achieving its purpose.

Congress could not possibly reverse itself on this issue in order to end a strike. The Senate and House agreed after long study and discussion to abandon the wasteful policy of paying prevailing hourly wage rates to relief workers. Their action was designed to curtail well-known abuses which had developed under that system and to enhance the efficiency of the WPA as a public works agency. The views of organized labor and of relief beneficiaries on the subject were well known to Congress. Action was taken, in spite of opposition from these groups, to promote the national welfare.

It is wishful thinking of a most dangerous sort to suppose that this decision might be reversed by coercive action on the part of WPA workers affected. Congress could not yield to such pressure without acknowledging subserviency to a relatively small group of citizens. In spite of Senator Murray's bill to restore prevailing wage rates on WPA projects, therefore, acquiescence in the strikers' demand is out of the question.

Instead of building up a case against the new law which requires them to work about five hours per day, the striking relief workers have succeeded only in emphasizing how far the old WPA had deviated from a sound relief policy. It was attempting to pay union wages under conditions that no private employer could have accepted. Of course, it creates dissatisfaction when the unreasonable privileges thus created are withdrawn. But a strike to restore such privileges quickly suggests that the participants have graduated from the relief category.

Authorities are showing an entirely proper attitude in dealing with this strike against the law. Beneficiaries unwilling to accept "security wages" under the conditions Congress has laid down will not need to remain on WPA. If a substantial number separate themselves from the rolls in this way, the WPA will have more ample funds to provide for others who are not averse to working five hours per day for a subsistence wage.

The Tyrol And The Axis

Under the terms of the Treaty of St. Germain, which Austria was forced to sign in 1919, the 250,000 German-speaking inhabitants of South Tyrol were placed under the sovereignty of the Italian kingdom.

In more than one respect, the South Tyrolese have been among the worst-treated minorities in Europe. So far-reaching has been the effort made by the Fascist government to denationalize them that even the inscriptions on the tombstones in South Tyrol have had to be changed from German to Italian.

The Nazis shed crocodile tears over the plight of the Sudeten Germans in Czecho-Slovakia, where minority rights were more generally respected. Now they are clamoring for the return to the Reich of Danzig, which enjoys complete cultural and political autonomy. Yet the very real grievances of the South Tyrolese have been conspicuously ignored by the Nazi regime.

The reason for this silence is not far to seek. A Nazi attempt to incorporate the 250,000 inhabitants of South Tyrol in the Third Reich would unquestionably break the Rome-Berlin axis. For the time being, Germany finds it necessary to reckon on Italian support. So Hitler has found it expedient to exclude for the moment the South Tyrol from among the German areas he wants ultimately to include in the expanding Reich.

Indeed, it is now reported from Berlin that the German and Italian governments are considering a plan for the mass "repatriation" of Germans from South Tyrol. The fact that these people and their ancestors have occupied the beautiful slopes and valleys of the Dolomite region for a thousand years does not bother the dictators. The important thing at the moment is that, insofar as it could be carried out, such a mass migration would end for Mussolini the constant danger of a German irredentist agitation regarding South Tyrol and at the same time ease Hitler's pressing labor shortage.

If the minority problem as between Italy and Germany is to be settled in this Greco-Turkish fashion, with the individuals concerned being treated as so many head of cattle to be moved from one pasture to another, there is no reason why it could not be applied with equal justification to other areas over which Germany lays claim because they happen to contain German-speaking inhabitants.

After all, if 250,000 Tyrolese can be moved as a peace gesture, why cannot the 405,000 inhabitants of Danzig? Yet one suspects that the Fuehrer would never consider treating the Polish gander as he now proposes to treat the Italian goose.

A Charter For D. C.

In spite of the delay in presenting the District reorganization bill, it comes at an appropriate time. Congress is unquestionably weary of the fight over the local tax and appropriation bills. It should welcome the opportunity of voting for a measure that would permit the District, under strict limitations, to manage its own affairs.

While the new bill is frankly a compromise, it retains most of the constructive proposals of the original Griffenhagen report. Some of the changes made, moreover, are less sweeping than they appear to be at first glance. The Griffenhagen experts recommended the creation of a new governing body for Washington. The Kennedy bill would retain the present Board of Commissioners. Actually, however, this board would be transformed into a policy-making body similar to that suggested by the experts. Its executive powers would be assumed by a District administrator or business manager responsible to the board.

Presumably this compromise was necessary to obtain Administration support for the bill. But its effect is to weaken the proposed new government. A board of these is not large enough to permit proper representation of different viewpoints in the community. Since the proposed board would exercise only legislative, investigatory and supervisory powers, the salaries paid the Commissioners might well have been divided among a larger number of representative citizens serving as a local governing body.

Particularly anomalous is the retention of the Engineer Commissioner in the new set-up. Army officers assigned to this post have rendered valuable service chiefly because they have headed the engineer department. With the board stripped of its administrative duties and transformed into a policy-making agency, there seems to be no place on it for a representative of the Army.

A good deal of confusion exists as to the meaning of those provisions in the bill giving the District the power to levy and assess taxes and to appropriate and spend its own revenue. Experts who helped to draft the bill say that it would permit the Board of Commissioners to prepare its own budget and to allocate funds among the various local departments. But Congress would each year appropriate a lump sum, including the Federal payment, to be thus apportioned by local authorities.

Some officials at the District Building hold a different view as to where the power over the city's purse would lie. They believe that the local government would be permitted to fix tax rates and to appropriate local funds without action by Congress. Obviously the language of the bill should be clarified to eliminate these divergent interpretations. And the adjustments ought to be in the direction of full local control over municipal expenditures.

It is doubtful whether Congress could feasibly appropriate a lump sum to be apportioned by the Board of Commissioners. Congress would have no way of measuring the adequacy or inadequacy of the total sum requested by the local government for any one year, except by examining the budget in detail. And if that were done, appropriating committees would find it difficult to resist direct apportionment of funds to local departments. The plan would leave Congress with responsibility for the District budget, but without effective controls over local spending.

Assuming that these provisions can be satisfactorily modified, the bill would give the District the modern, unified government it has so long sought. Administrative functions would be divided in orderly fashion among 12 departments. Schools and libraries would be left to function independently, just as they do at present. A new personnel system organized on the merit principle would be created. And, most important of all, the new government would be given power to perform all routine municipal functions, without going through the laborious process of securing acts of Congress.

This proposed centralization of municipal powers now scattered among numerous Federal and District agencies is in itself ample justification for the bill. It would give the District a definite charter in place of the vague and complicated system under which it now operates. It is true that the bill leaves some large gaps in its list of powers to be granted. Control of the city's parks, for example, would be left to the Office of National Capital Parks.

But, viewed as a whole, it would give the District a far more efficient government than it has today. It would set up a basic structure that could be further improved, even to the extent of granting local suffrage, as rapidly as Congress can be converted to additional reforms. Active community support may well be added, therefore, to the indorsement which the measure has already been given by the President.

Who's A Dictator?

Someone has observed that an impassable psychological chasm separates each generation from the one that preceded it. Possibly that is why some of us find it so difficult to follow the logic of the American Youth Congress which lately met in New York.

At Monday's session the delegates to the congress permitted representatives of 14 organizations to withdraw rather than accept an amended resolution whereby Communist dictatorships would be as unequivocally condemned as the Nazi and Fascist kind. At Tuesday's session with but a single dissenting vote—and that one afterward withdrawn—the congress recorded itself as "opposed to all forms of dictatorships whether they be Communist, Fascist, Nazi or any other type."

Of course it was well known that a demand for an explicit condemnation of Stalinism by the congress, under penalty of being branded as part of the "Communist Front," had been made in a pamphlet bearing the signatures of several prominent persons, themselves neither very youthful nor members of the congress. Thus it may have been that the majority of the delegates are so much down on dictatorships that they couldn't bear the idea of being dictated to in this fashion. This seemed to be what young Mr. James B. Carey, chairman of the resolutions committee, meant when he declared that the point at issue Monday was, "Could American youth be stampeded into doing something under outside pressure and outside of proper procedure?"

Plenty of oldsters will sympathize with the disinclination of American youth to be bossed around by Gene Tunney, Victor Ridder and David Hinshaw. But how can we hope to understand the reasoning of Mr. Gil Green, delegate from the Young Communist League, who voted as heartily as the rest for this resolution? Mr. Green's explanation was that communism is itself opposed to Communist dictatorship.

Since the Young Communist League is known to hew pretty closely to the party line, this seems tantamount to saying that Stalin is the enemy of Stalinism. Or possibly the real explanation is that what Messrs. Green and Stalin understand by "dictatorship" and "democracy" is one thing, what Father Coughlin and his friends understand is another thing, and what the rest of us understand still another thing.

"The question is," said Alice, "whether you can make words mean so many different things."

"The question is," said Humpty Dumpty, "which is to be master—that's all."

And, come to think of it, that's all there is to dictatorships, too.

Claude A. Swanson

In the death of Claude A. Swanson, member of the Cabinet since the beginning of the present Administration, President Roosevelt loses a loyal and devoted friend of many years standing, and the Nation is deprived of a conscientious public servant.

Because of chronic illness, Mr. Swanson's tenure as Secretary of the Navy was more nominal than actual during the last few years. He, perforce, had to sit on the sidelines while the Navy was being expanded at a more rapid rate than at any time since the World War. But this development had his whole-hearted approval and support.

It is not, however, as Secretary of the Navy that Mr. Swanson will best be remembered. Cabinet membership merely put the capstone on his already highly distinguished career as a member of the House, Governor of Virginia and Senator from that State for five terms. In those capacities Mr. Swanson proved himself to be a man of statesmanlike caliber, of high idealism and of profound devotion to the public weal.

'Blow For A Landing'

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Commercial transportation by water between Kansas City and Omaha was resumed last week after a lapse of more than 50 years. Delegations from Iowa and Nebraska saw a forerunner of upper Missouri River development in the Diesel-engined tugboat that pushed two lumbering gasoline barges to the river bank at Omaha. No doubt many of the members had in mind the record of the Kansas City-St. Louis stretch of the Inland Waterways Corporation during the two years that section has been open—49,000 tons in 1937 and then 113,000 last year.

It is worthy of note that officials of the Union Pacific Railroad were among the welcomers at Omaha. They realize, as all railroads should, that river transportation creates new business and that there is a definite field for barge lines in carrying bulky cargoes suitable for slow transport. As James J. Hill once said, "God Almighty built the greatest railroad in the world in the Missouri." That remark, as well as the fact that this river has a predestined commercial function, has been too long forgotten.

So blow for a landing, tugboats, blow long and frequently up and down this new addition to the system of navigable waterways.

Lesson From Los Angeles

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Last week I returned from a month's visit on the West Coast and while in Los Angeles I was amazed at the courtesy of automobile drivers.

Every time I crossed the street, the cars stopped or noticeably slowed at a distance of several feet. The first time this happened I looked around thinking something must be the matter but I soon discovered that this is the regular custom. They do not bear down upon a pedestrian at a mile a minute speed to within a few inches, scaring him almost to death so that he thinks this is surely his last moment on earth, all the time sounding the horn as much as to say, "Get out of my way, here I come." No, they sound no horn and stop far enough away to give one a chance for his life and a feeling of security and good fellowship.

I am not one to dawdle in crossing the street, all the time eyeing the driver with a look of "run me down if you dare." I drive a car myself and know the problems of a driver and never do I sound my horn at a pedestrian. I always slow up and let him cross peacefully and with a degree of dignity. I have traveled in many places and Los Angeles is the only city I have found where courtesy is universal. I wonder how the city fathers accomplished it?

"Campaign Guff"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Mr. Roosevelt must run for a third term to save the country from ruin."—Jay Franklin.

"The New Deal (and its high priest, Mr. Roosevelt) must be put down to save the country from ruin."—Senator Vandenburg and others.

Well, having heard the testimony and ballyhoo from both sides and the jurors having filed out, a baffled bystander asks feebly: Where does this leave us? And, worse still, whence are we headed?

But isn't this why elections are held? Or were held until their control by WPA sugar out of the national till was developed into a fine art?

If there's no answer I'll bow to the inevitable. But a soul in the wilderness cries out: Can't we cut out the campaign guff in advance and balance the budget by savings on aspirin? J. WINSTEAD.

School Playgrounds

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Just before school closed I had occasion to go into a school building. Posted on the assembly doors right in front of the entrance were two posters urging boys and girls not to play in the street. This school has a playground, but I understood that the principal of the school doesn't want the children to play on the playground because she fears that they will break the windows. The police won't let them play in the alleys. I would like to ask, "Where are they going to play?"

Congress can appropriate millions of dollars, much of which is uselessly spent for the WPA, but quibbles and argues over appropriating a few dollars to open playgrounds.

Last year the Parent-Teacher Association started a drive to eliminate some of the window breaking in the public schools. In my neighborhood they sent letters around to parents asking their cooperation. To me this seems to be the wrong approach. Boys and girls are going to play. If they have proper supervision and adequate facilities for play they will not have time to think of destroying property, public or private. It is up to Congress and the community to see that they get such facilities.

"Enthuse"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I had gathered from lexicographers and other men of letters that use of the word "enthuse" or "enthused" is bad form, and that one should use enthusiastic or enthusiasm instead. Yet, you break out with this word in oversize type on page 15 of your July 5, 1939, issue.

What is one to do? Listen to the lexicographers or follow Washington's leading newspaper?

The Third Term

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with your comment of July 5, on Senator Guffey's radio talk in favor of a third term for the President, it might be well to mention the obvious fact that the "paramount issue" is the New Deal. Whether so stated or not, the issue to be decided is: Shall the New Deal be continued by its friends or by its opponents?

Whatever the outcome, it can hardly be doubted that the New Deal will go on in the sense that drastic changes are necessarily being made in an economic "system" which multiplies human productivity by power-machinery and obtains as a result starvation amidst plenty. This result, of course, is wrong and measures are being taken in an effort to find the right answer. This is the New Deal.

If the answer is not found by a democratic process, it will be just too bad. Senator Guffey sees this. He sees that the New Deal should be carried on under the leadership of the man who, above all others, feels the necessity of finding the answer; the man who typifies and personifies the New Deal and has shown himself best able to represent it.

It appears that we the people are entitled to a third term.

Mr. Hoover's Article

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in The Post of July 6, under the caption "The President Is Right," strikes me as just another example of fallacious subterfuge and war-gendering propaganda now being insidiously forced upon the American public, ostensibly to condition it for participation in another foreign war.

If you, the President, Secretary Hull and other misguided political leaders will read with open, unbiased minds former President Herbert Hoover's masterly article, "Shall We Send Our Youth to War?" which appears in the August, 1939, number of The American Magazine, you and they may hereafter serve the American people and the rest of the world to decidedly better advantage.

Arming Japan

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recent dispatches from Tientsin and Shanghai indicate that Japan's fascist military clique is not content to pursue its ruthless policy of aggression in China but is boldly determined to abolish the "Open Door" in defiance of the Western democracies. The situation becomes ironical when we consider that Nippon obtains 54.4 per cent of her war supplies in the U. S.

Perhaps we might well use our influence as groups and individuals to bring about peaceful pressure in the channels of trade and finance, thus making clear to Japan that we are no longer willing to aid, even indirectly, her imperialistic ambitions on the Asiatic continent.

Safety For Children

American Isolation Vs. Intervention

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was much pleased to read the letter of Miss Eleanor H. Finch, which you very appropriately printed on July 4. It is evidence that the thinking people of America are being aroused to the danger inherent in the present foreign policy of their Government and the international interventionists in this country who are fostering that kind of policy under the influence of foreign propaganda. I notice that you dub Miss Finch "an isolationist."

Mr. W. Gerald Downey published recently a very able exposition of the history of international law and American foreign policy, in which he said: "The concepts of isolation and intervention are poles apart. In international parlance, isolation connotes a withdrawal of one nation from the internal affairs and external disputes of other nations. Intervention, on the other hand, means interference by one nation in the internal affairs and external quarrels of other nations." According to this definition, Washington, Jefferson, and Adams, and all their successors in the Presidency of the United States to the advent of Woodrow Wilson were strict isolationists. Then, rather than a stigma or something ignoble, as some journalists would have it, "isolationist" is a badge of honor to be proudly worn by all Americans who are determined to preserve the fundamental and historic principles of the founders of the Nation, and to continue those proven policies and principles by which it has grown to greatness, and to be recognized as one of the most unique institutions of free people the world has ever known.

The implications of the terms "isolation" and "intervention" are as far apart as the continents of America and Europe.

Isolation, in its broadest sense, means the maintenance by America of the policy of honest neutrality toward foreign nations, whether they be engaged in peace or war, as established by President Washington and assiduously built up by American statesmen through the years into modern international law. Intervention, on the other hand, means pursuing the foreign policy which Col. House prevailed on President Wilson to inaugurate in 1914 to 1917, the inside secrets of which as they are being revealed, make the blackest page in American history.

The Post Impressionist

The Lonely Ones

HE CAME SLOWLY along the tree-darkened sidewalk, moving with the unhurried, aimless gait of a man who has no destination. George saw him before they met. They met under a street light, at the intersection of two busy streets, and George, waiting for the traffic signal to turn green, saw the other man's face.

He was young with a sun-browned face that wore an expression of extreme patience as if long ago he had learned the futility of asking for anything. His shoulders, George saw, hung down; still, their angle was not dejected, but instead only resigned and acquiescent. His shirt was open at the throat, he wore no hat and there was in his carriage, in the look on his face, an air of close acquaintanceship with all weathers and with all types of people. Nothing, George was sure, could ever surprise him.

"I wonder if you could let me have a match?" he said, offering George a cigarette from a crushed package removed from his shirt pocket.

He drew on his cigarette and as they waited for the light to change, he said:

"Washington's a funny place."

"In what way?"

The man cleared his throat. He seemed glad to talk.

"Well, I guess you'd say it was because it's a small town that's big but not grown up. It's different from other cities. The people are different too. Now take New York. In New York, you don't expect anything, but here you see people going to work in the morning and going home at night and then you see them sitting in houses with the shades up or on steps talking. Everybody's got some place to go. I guess that's why it seems like a big little town to me."

He coughed almost apologetically and George realized the man had a cold.

"It isn't that the world owes me anything," he said. "I've seen a good bit of it. I've had a good time. I'm not one of these guys who thinks the world owes him a living."

Suddenly, for no reason he could think of, George remembered a line or two from a book. There was a little man with a keen, sharp face, who always walked in front, and a big hulking man with a vague, child-like mind who followed behind. The little man was talking. "Guys like us are the loneliest guys in the world. They got no fam'ly. They don't belong no place. . . . They ain't got nothing to look ahead to."

The light had changed, but neither of them moved.

"Where's your home?" George asked.

"I guess you'd say I haven't got any," the young man said, and George waited for him to go on. "I was born in a little town in Montana, but when I was 17 I left home and joined the Navy. I don't regret it. There wasn't anything for me back there and I've done as I pleased. I've been to Panama and the Philippines and China. I'm here now to get my papers straightened out and to get a passport photo."

"Are you in the Navy now?"

"No."

He didn't explain, and George asked no further. He coughed again and threw his cigarette butt into the street.

"I caught a cold," he said. "It rained and I caught a cold from sleeping in the rain down by the river. I've been in Washington eight days and I haven't got my papers yet. But I found a little cafe where I been going at night and washing dishes and they give me my supper. You learn to do a lot of things in the Navy."

"When you get your papers are you going to re-enlist?"

"No. I'm going to try to get on a merchant ship. I like shipping. I guess I'm not the kind of guy that stays in one place. I remember one summer I harvested wheat out in the Middle West. But I didn't like it. Too dry. Everything the same. I like things that change."

"Had you ever thought of going back to Montana?"

"I thought of that once or twice, but there's nothing there for me. There wasn't before and there wouldn't be now."

For a moment they stood in silence watching the cars go by, glimpsing the people in those cars "who had some place to go." It was George who broke the silence.

"Look at them," he said, "they're the same people you spoke of a moment ago who go to work in the morning, go home at night, who sit by windows or on steps talking. You envy them their security and the routine of their lives. Then you say you like change. But don't you see their lives are always the same, that their lives don't change? If you really wanted it you could marry and you could settle down. You could have what they have."

But as he spoke George knew this wasn't true. This man, like the men in the book, would never settle down.

"I guess I don't really envy them," the man said at last. "I guess I can't help being the kind of guy I am."

George looked at his watch. There was one more question he wanted to ask.

"What about the future?" he said.

The young man's answer came from his years of roving, from his patient resignation, from his inability to be surprised. It was the same answer, the only answer that even the wisest man in the world could give.

"I don't know," he said.

Reaching into his pocket, George gave him the money he had not asked for. The light was green. George turned and said, "Good luck," and without looking at the man, walked away.

Communist Evidence

THE DISSENTING groups which walked out of the American Youth Congress in New York may have included some paper organizations and Nazi, Fascist and anti-Semitic bands, as charged by some of their opponents who remained to run the show. But the charge of those who withdrew that the congress is dominated by Communists and is part of the Communistic United Front is not answered by the evasive resolution which the congress was forced to adopt condemning dictatorships, whether Communist, Nazi or Fascist. The resolution did not repudiate or condemn Communism itself, and, while the congress retains its present character, it can work for Moscow in the manner described by J. B. Matthews, the backslid fellow traveler, who testified before the Dies committee last fall.

Touching on the subject of an organization which Mrs. Roosevelt honored with her presence, thus again affirming the sympathy of the New Deal with organizations in which Communists are influential, Mr. Matthews wrote that the Young Communist League, in concert with left-wing Socialists, captured the congress in its infancy.

Communist Youth's 'Success' Is Cited

"THIS IS MADE clear in Wolf Michal's report to the Sixth World Congress of the Young Communist International," Mr. Matthews wrote. "Writing of this capture, Wolf Michal said: 'Thanks to the joint participation of the young American comrades with the Socialist and other non-Fascist youth at the congress, our Young Communist League helped to bring about the unity of several non-Fascist organizations with a membership of over a million. This is an example of how to influence the masses of youth instead of commanding them in a bureaucratic way.

"The words of O. Kuusinen, addressed to the Seventh World Congress of the Communist International, are equally plain. Kuusinen said: 'Our American congress achieved a great success at this youth congress. The congress was transformed into a great united front of radical youth. And when a second general youth congress was held our young comrades already enjoyed a position of authority in it. The Young Communist League of the United States has learned that it is essential to enter the big youth organization led by the bourgeoisie. The Communists alone have been able to foster the radicalization of the youth in the bourgeois organization.

Disguised Communists In Minority Groups

"'AT THIS POINT,' Mr. Matthews explained, 'it is important to state that the Communists use so-called fractions which they organize within such groups as churches, the Y. M. C. A. and trade unions to elect delegates to united front gatherings. Ostensibly a delegate may be an ordinary member of a union or the Y. M. C. A., but actually the delegate is a Communist or, better yet, a fellow traveler in bourgeois disguise.'

"'We want',' he quoted again from Comrade Kuusinen, ' 'to attack our class enemies in the rear when they start the war against the Soviet Union. But how can we do so if the majority of the toiling youth follow not us but, for instance, the Catholic priests or the liberal chameleons?' "

Continuing, Matthews wrote: "Kuusinen is as bluntly forthright as it is possible to be. The American Youth Congress, he said, is to come to the aid of the Soviet country by transforming the imperialist war into a civil war against the bourgeoisie. All these words were uttered in 1935 and are part of what is sometimes called the new 'line' of the Communist International. They are published in pamphlet form by the Communist Party and are on sale at its book stores.

Youth Congress Called Soviet Movement

"MY TESTIMONY before the Dies committee, in which I stated that the World Youth Congress was a Communist United Front maneuver, was based on my extensive and intimate knowledge of the whole united front movement, upon my knowledge of the personnel of the organizers, with a number of whom I have worked in united fronts, and upon my personal knowledge of the Communist views of many of the delegates."

It should be added that the American Youth Congress last fall was host to the World Youth Congress at Vassar College, which Mrs. Roosevelt attended; and keep in mind that, although Matthews was fiercely abused and ridiculed with distorted and false versions of his testimony, he never was discredited. He knew his stuff, and he has condensed it in a mournful little book called "Odyssey of a Fellow-Traveler," from which I have quoted the evidence here presented.

Old Heidelberg Ordered to Close Church Schools

Berlin, July 7 (AP).—Three of Germany's 16 Protestant theological schools today were ordered to close by October 1 in a move churchmen said was part of a Nazi campaign to push the church to the wall. Bernhard Rust, minister of education, issued the order.

The three schools are those of ancient Heidelberg University and the universities of Leipzig and Rostock.

No official explanation was issued. The order coincided with an article in the Nazi magazine Nordland, which declared the study of theology was "without value and unnecessary."

"Self-Made Man"

SPEAKING AS an archeologist, V. Gordon Childe's idea of what constitutes a revolution is not the same as that of a political historian. In "Man Makes Himself" (Oxford, $2.50), Mr. Childe finds that there have been three great revolutions in the long ages of human history. These are the Neolithic revolution, the urban revolution and the revolution in human knowledge.

The Neolithic revolution consisted of man's changing himself from a "food gatherer" to a food producer. Instead of depending solely upon what he could pick up to eat from the natural bounty of the earth, for clothes on the pelts of animals, and for shelter on caves, Neolithic man learned to plant and sow, and to domesticate animals.

Mr. Childe does not affirm the long-held theory that the pastoral age necessarily antedated the agricultural phase. He thinks the two new economies may have developed more or less simultaneously in different places or groups, or even that one group may have been working toward both ideas at the same time. Anyhow, "even today there are tribes of cultivators who possess no domestic animals."

The mental change between food gathering and food producing was tremendous; it is tied up with the mechanism of thought itself, since it predicates a responsible recognition of the future. The psychological change also was profound, as it involved immediate self-denial, not eating the seed grain or the breeding stock, for the sake of next season's supply.

This also made a preliminary step toward the urban revolution. It gave men a little leisure occasionally from the constant quest of a bite to eat, and in that leisure the crafts progressed. This was the era of specialization; and yet it was also the prerequisite of genuine communal effort, as distinguished from mere gregariousness. When two men could pursue different occupations, instead of following the same occupation (food hunting), those two men, and many more, would ultimately unite their products and their efforts in some joint undertaking, such as digging irrigation ditches, building houses, and at length achieving the intricate material and social inter-relationships of a city. A Neolithic village was a simple aggregation of persons, half a dozen families perhaps: it couldn't be much larger, else it would exhaust the near-by food.

CONTROL of the food supply was the origin of mathematics, astronomy, the whole framework of science, as well as of the arts.

The urban revolution signified the beginning of commerce, the birth of nations, and, contradictorily, the discovery of the world as such, by purposeful instead of casual travel. Caravans crossed the desert; ships explored the seas conveying goods for exchange.

Religion developed into politics, an established social structure, with an accordant economic system.

The revolution in human knowledge was continuous, but became capable of systematization with the invention of writing and numerals.

The lesson is that though "tradition makes man, it is equally true that man makes the traditions. Man makes himself." He is his own supreme invention.

There is a classic anecdote of an amateur explorer who was asked to fill in a form on the customs and manners of some benighted tribe. He made the simple entry: "Customs: Beastly. Manners: None."

The report of Charles Miller on the savages of the jungle river region of Dutch New Guinea conveys much the same impression, though in more detail, in "Cannibal Caravan" (Furman, $2.75). Anthropologists or students of primitive cultures will not find any extensive additions to their scientific lore in this volume; it is largely in the "movie" mood, with reason, for Mr. Miller was taking film on the trip. But some shots are included as illustrations, and they give you what might be called a rough idea, because it's a rough life. A better country for the average person to stay away from would be hard to name.

THESE NEW GUINEA natives, specifically the Digoels and Marind-Anims, appear to be extremely dressy, but not for purposes of concealment. They wear nose-plugs, which are sometimes wild boar tusks; grassy woven armlets, which also serve as lunch baskets, being hung with portions of dried meat; headdresses resembling a half-portion of hut thatch; necklets apparently jewel-ed with shark's teeth; and a woven cross-harness remarkably like a Sam Browne belt in design. One warrior in field uniform also has an earring which looks like a coil of telephone wire augmented by a medium-sized trace chain. He might belong in the communication corps.

Grass skirts and cloaks form the ceremonial dress of the women, especially for mourning; negligee or street dress consists of a varying number of armlets and leg bands, and the hair in a braid, or many braids.

In face, some of these Digoels look like the accepted Paleontological model of the Neanderthal Man, beetle-browed and with brutal, projecting jaws. Yet it is only fair to mention one photo of a head-hunter of noble physique, regular though Negroid features, and a finely shaped, ample forehead.

They are largely in a Stone Age culture. Knobbed clubs are weapons of war and the chase, though aided by bows and spears. There is one photo of a steatopygous damsel whose outline recalls the queer archaic statuettes of the European glacial age.

MARRIAGE AMONG the Digoels is of an ultimate simplicity. It consists in the groom's oversleeping. When the community thus discovers where he has been calling, he is married, and that's that. It would seem that matrimony might be easily avoided on those terms; yet sooner or later, the author says, the men all get married.

Mr. Miller saw dinosaurs in an upland swamp, a place of the legendary "lost world" layout. Dinosaurs and sea serpents are not subjects to argument. You either see them or you don't. Those who do have the right to say so.

The WPA Strikes

By Mark Sullivan

Loaded With Dynamite

THE STRIKES of WPA workers against working longer hours for the same amount of money per month, as required in some cases by the new act of Congress, contains more fireworks than any other incident in a current of news already crowded with explosives. But if it contains more fireworks, it also contains more light. It contains fireworks, indeed dynamite, if we go the wrong way—but it contains light to show us the right way.

First the facts: In the past, up to the new act of Congress, July 1, WPA attempted two things about wages. It tried to keep the amount paid each worker per month reasonably low, just enough to live on. But at the same time it tried to pay the "prevailing wage rate" per hour. For example: In large cities, WPA has been paying plumbers the prevailing wage rate, $2 per hour. But in order to keep the total paid to any individual reasonably low, WPA required that a plumber could work only 42 hours per month. In short, a plumber in a city has been getting $84 a month for 42 hours work per month, about an hour and a half per day. The same principle applied to all skilled trades. This was the condition until the new act of Congress.

THE TROUBLE here lay in the attempt to maintain "prevailing wage rates." For this, let it be said at once, President Roosevelt and the heads of WPA were not responsible. When WPA was first set up, Mr. Roosevelt said that—I quote from memory—the pay should be enough to provide necessities, yet not as much as is paid by private industry for the same work, so that no person on WPA should be under temptation to refuse private employment.

The prevailing wage rate provision was inserted by Congress. Congress did this under pressure by labor unions. The concern of the unions was that the per hour wage rate be kept sacred. Their fear was that if a skilled worker on WPA was given a per hour rate lower than the union rate, the tendency might be to undermine the union rates in private industry. Organized labor has always been jealous about this.

What Congress has done in the recent act, in effect July 1, is to abandon the "prevailing rate" idea. The new act says that everyone on WPA, regardless of his trade, skilled or unskilled, must work 130 hours per month. With the total paid per month kept about where it is, the result is that skilled tradesmen must work at a rate per hour which is not materially above the rate for unskilled labor. For example, in cities, a plumber will be required to work 130 hours for approximately $84, about 65 cents per hour. This causes the strikes.

A. F. L. Sponsorship Called Disturbing

THE STRIKES are against an act of Congress, against Government. Among disturbing aspects, we find the American Federation of Labor indorsing this strike. A. F. of L.'s interest, now as before, is in keeping the per-hour wage rate sacred. It is not so much interested in the rate within WPA; its primary concern is about the possible effect on wage rates in private industry.

When we find such a completely American institution as A. F. of L. supporting a strike against the Government, there must be something fundamentally wrong somewhere in the prior conditions that gave rise to the present situation.

The fundamental mistake, the place where we first went wrong, was in confusing two objectives—a frequent cause of incorrect reasoning, and of bad practice arising from incorrect reasoning.

The first objective was to provide unemployed persons with the necessities of life. That simple objective was easy to follow. We could follow it, and at first did, by giving the unemployed, as a gift, what money was necessary for food and clothes and shelter. This was called direct relief.

But to this objective of direct relief, we added a second. The second objective, or principle, as put in the words of former WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, was—I quote from memory—"Every man is entitled to a job—as a right."

ONCE THIS PRINCIPLE was put in practice, there flowed from it other practices. It was said that since a man was entitled to a job, he was entitled to the prevailing wage rate that goes with that job. This is the basis of the present difficulty. It was said further that not only is a man entitled to a job—he is entitled to a job of the kind he has been working at, or which he prefers. This is the doctrine underlying the Federal Theater Project—if a person is an actor, or prefers acting above other jobs, then the Government is under obligation to provide him with a job as an actor.

Today, yet another development, of a different kind, arises. To the men who refuse to work at WPA wages, we say that they have got to work. The organizations which give direct relief, gifts of food or money for food, now deny these gifts to the strikers.

By this we discover that Mr. Hopkins' so-called "principle" carries a corollary we had not thought of. With rights go obligations. If everybody has a right to a job from Government, then he is under obligation to work at whatever job the Government gives him. From this, it will be a short and logical step to say that Government can compel everybody to work. Presently, unless we stop, we will be saying that everybody must work at whatever job the Government assigns to him. That will be either Nazi-Fascism or Communism. In either event it will be authoritarian government.

China Fights On

By Barnet Nover

Two Years Of Undeclared War

THE BEGINNING of the third year of Sino-Japanese hostilities finds the spotlight focused not on the main theater of operations but on what are essentially sideshows.

The dispatches continue to tell the grim tale of repeated bombings of Chungking and other places in the unconquered part of China by Japanese planes and of guerrilla warfare going on in many areas nominally under Japanese control. But what is taking place along the vast and amorphous front of the undeclared war is, temporarily at least, overshadowed by what is happening at Tientsin and along the Outer Mongolia-Manchukuo border.

Nor is the attention being given to these sideshows unmerited. Quite the contrary. It is a most revealing fact that while they have failed to conquer China, despite the most tremendous military effort the island empire has ever made, the Japanese army is now beginning to take on Great Britain and Soviet Russia as well.

AT FIRST GLANCE this would seem to be the very acme of foolhardiness. If victory over China has proved so difficult of accomplishment, victory over China plus Soviet Russia plus Great Britain plus those powers that may support the British in their resistance to Japan's pretensions of overlordship in China, would seem to be wholly out of the question.

The Japanese militarists do not, however, reckon that way. Their ultimate program involves not merely the conquest of China but the establishment of a Japanese hegemony in eastern Asia that would be subject to no challenge by any other power. The blockade of Tienstin and the attempt to penetrate Outer Mongolia, which protects the flank of Soviet Siberia at its most vulnerable point, are, therefore, of a piece with the war on China. And, as the Japanese see it, the time to strike a smashing blow at British interests and Russian influence in China is more propitious now than it is likely to be at any time in the near future.

THERE IS a possibility that through strengthening of the peace bloc in Europe, a period of stalemate may ensue on that continent. Should that happen, Japan would have to recoken with Russia to a greater degree than before while Great Britain and France would also be in a better position to defend their stake in China against Japanese aggressions.

Japan's recent efforts at Tientsin and also the Outer Mongolian frontier thus take on the aspect of precautionary moves as well as of being set stages in a program which aims at overlordship.

But that is not all. The present sideshows in the grim Far Eastern circus also have a far-reaching psychological importance to the Japanese.

THE TIME TABLE of the Japanese army in China has gone completely awry. When the undeclared war began two years ago this week, Japanese military leaders assumed that Chiang Kai-shek would be on his knees pleading for a truce in six weeks or at most three months. Eight times three months have elapsed and Chiang is still in the field.

They assumed that after the fall of Shanghai, China's greatest port, whose tariff receipts had provided the Chinese government with its greatest sources of revenue, Chinese resistance would collapse. It did not. But the setback to their hopes was only temporary. They were certain that once Nanking fell into their hands, as it did at the end of 1937, the war would be over. It was not. Nor was the situation materially altered after the fall of Canton and Hankow.

HOPE DEFERRED maketh the heart sick. The Japanese army has used its whole bag of tricks in China. The tricks have worked. Battles have been won. Cities have been captured, railroads have been taken over, the effort to demoralize the civilian population by a campaign of unmitigated ruthlessness has been unending. But the ultimate objective has not been attained and gives no promise of attainment for a long time to come.

The reason why it has not been attained is plain to all the world. Chinese nationalism today is a tremendously powerful force. And it is a force which far from being destroyed by the tactics which Japan has employed is nourished by them. Bombs which the Japanese have launched over defenseless Chinese cities have been missionaries of the most virulent type of anti-Japanism. Every such manifestation of barbarism as the sack of Nanking has had a similar effect.

THE JAPANESE militarists do not like to admit these facts. They used to attribute the continuance of Chinese resistance to Chiang Kai-shek's malevolence. Now they also attribute it to the support which Russia and especially Great Britain have given China. Without such support, they feel the long-deferred collapse of Chinese resistance would soon take place.

There is obviously a good deal of wishful thinking in this belief but also the need of a new hope with which to counteract the growing war weariness of the Japanese people.

The diversion at Tientsin and the reports of what may prove to be nonexistent victories along the ill-defined frontier of Outer Mongolia thus constitute an effort by the Japanese army, to divert attention from the mess into which they have plunged the island empire.

After two years of war and a vast expenditure of blood and treasure, Japan's books are decidedly in the red.

Murray to Fight For Old WPA Rate

WPA strikes had been ineffective and men already were returning to work, many cities found WPA projects seriously crippled, according to the Associated Press.

In New York City, Thomas A. Murray, president of the A. F. of L. Building and Construction Trades Council, said 60,000 of the 75,000 relief workers on construction projects had quit work. But Col. Brehon Somervell, New York WPA director, retorted "that is absolutely, utterly and completely ridiculous," and set the figure at 12,000.

Other cities reporting major strikes included Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Detroit, Cleveland, Toledo, Chicago, Rochester and San Francisco. Cleveland's figures ranged from 5,000 to 15,000; 2,000 were said to be out in San Francisco and 7,000 in Toledo, while in Chicago a walkout of 2,500 mechanics affected 10,000 other workers on WPA projects.

In Indianapolis, the Associated Press reported, the only strikers were 11 carpenters engaged in building a high school gymnasium; the total for the State of New Hampshire was given as 14 woodchoppers.

Claiming his proposal was supported by other New Deal Senators, Murray said yesterday that "WPA workers resent attempts to portray them as too lazy and shiftless to go out and get a job; they feel that the new provisions of the law represent an effort to punish them." Murray said that, in addition to restoration of the prevailing wage, he would seek to prevent reduction in the security wage and to knock out the new requirement of a 30-day furlough after 18 months of WPA employment.

Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), of Washington, indorsed Murray's proposals, but added that "the only way to handle the situation is by legislation; it cannot be properly handled by strikes." He pointed out that the WPA administration is powerless to alter the law.

In the House, even one or two members who support the WPA asserted it was far too late in the session to consider amendments to the present relief law. Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, leader of the fight to place restrictions on WPA, said that "there's not the slightest chance that Congress will restore the prevailing wage," and he added that there will be more "squawks" on September 1, when the one-month furlough provision takes effect.

The 130-hour provision was, in fact, recommended by the WPA as an aid to efficiency and economy, Harrington told a group of protesting labor leaders yesterday. The delegation included Harry C. Bates and Daniel O. Collins, president and vice president of Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers of America; Herbert Rivers, secretary of the Building Trades Department, American Federation of Labor, and D. W. Tracy, president of the International Brotherhood of Electric Workers.

"This bill has the administrator's blessing," said Tracy, "and the building trades are not going to take it lying down." Rivers contended that, despite Harrington's denials, the present bill gives WPA discretion permitting restoration of the prevailing wage.

Following the interview with Harrington, the group held a conference and announced it would meet Wednesday with presidents of all A. F. of L. units to determine the course of action.

"The building and construction trades department of the A. F. of L. shall use its political power and the economic strength at its command to protect the interests and wages of its workers," they stated. Statistics show, they said, that construction workers average only $1,172 annually, despite their relatively high hourly wage rate.

In a statement wholeheartedly supporting the fight for prevailing wage restoration, the unemployment committee of the C. I. O. said the strikes showed "just resentment" against the action of Congress.

"Congress must not adjourn until it has righted the wrongs for which it is responsible," the C. I. O. declared. "If labor is to protect the gains it has so hardly won, the fight must not only be for the prevailing wage, but—and these are even more important—against a cut in the already inadequate monthly security wages and against layoffs which would flood the labor market with starving workers."

The Workers Security Federation, a union of WPA workers, indorsed the walkouts, which it termed "three-day demonstrations" against the relief act. On the other hand, Edgar G. Brown, president of the United Government Employes, urged colored WPA workers "not to strike under any circumstances against the WPA law of the United States Government and to speedily report to those in authority all those who urge them to defiance, violence and disloyalty at this time."

Evidently angered by the protest against the 130-hour rule, several members of Congress yesterday compared their own hours with the new WPA hours. One member remarked "these people are forgetting that the WPA is for relief and is temporary in nature; it's meant to tide folks over, not to give them careers."

In contrast, Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, a leading defender of the WPA, said he thought Federal work projects should not be considered as "relief" but as "legitimate public works." He added that while he opposed abolition of the prevailing wage, he favored the 130-hour month.

Relief Change Kills D. C. House Survey

The new Federal relief act, provisions of which have precipitated a Nation-wide strike of WPA workers, in which 48 local relief employes are taking part, has doomed a proposed project to employ 400 persons taking inventory of Washington's sub-standard and unhealthy dwellings, Assistant WPA Administrator Ross Haworth disclosed yesterday.

At the same time, outside his office local relief employes, protesting the new law, circulated handbills calling for a mass meeting of Washington WPA workers. The call was seen as a threat for widening the local scope of the strike.

Haworth said the survey, which was almost ready to get under way after eight months spent in raising the necessary $30,000 for administrative expenses, would be canceled unless local sponsorship for it were found within two months, a development he believed highly improbable.

Workers protesting outside the local WPA offices were members of the District Project Workers Union, an unaffiliated organization. Their handbills announced a mass meeting at 1623 H street northwest Wednesday night.

Haworth has given Washington participants in the strike until Wednesday to return to work or lose their jobs. Twenty-six of the strikers were employed on the construction of an orchestra shell barge for the National Symphony's Watergate concerts, the first of which is to be held Wednesday. Haworth promised that despite the strike the barge would be completed on time.

McNutt Urges U. S. Keep Philippines

24 hours after announcing in Washington that friends are free to promote his Presidential candidacy.

Although the retiring commissioner confined his remarks chiefly to Philippine affairs, many listeners heard an overture to the 1940 campaign in McNutt's repeated linking of insular issues to the larger aspects of American foreign and domestic policy.

The former Indiana Governor also took occasion to affirm his faith in "the destiny of America . . . the future of America, the same faith which has been the essence of the American spirit.

"I scorn the suggestion of surrender to the demands of difficult circumstances," he said. "I believe we have the power within us to solve our problems with fairness and justice to all. We must not, we will not, lose our sense of direction."

He described the Philippines as "the one place in the Orient where decency, democracy and peace reign," but expressed grave anxiety for the continuance of these blessings if the United States withdraws its protection from the islands in 1946, as now provided by law.

In retort to the argument that the Philippines are far removed from the major sphere of America's interests, McNutt demanded, "Whenever have we not had outposts?"

The United States should allow the Filipinos "every ounce of domestic autonomy they can absorb," McNutt said, "while holding in our own hands foreign affairs, tariffs, immigration, currency, and public debt—scarcely more than marks the necessary reservation of a dominion."

This country "should feel free in case of any crisis to help preserve the democratic basis of the Philippine government," he added.

In the economic sphere "we should give the Philippines the best trade deal we can without injuring our domestic producers," he urged. "We must admit the possibility of competition . . . Our aim should be to assist with captial and men, with good will and such preferences as we can afford, the return to a complementary and reciprocal economy between the United States and the Philippines."

Any future relationship between the two peoples must be worked out with the "enduring safety and welfare of both countries" as the "paramount consideration," McNutt declared.

America's 40-year rule in the Philippines has been a model of colonial administration, he maintained, while pointing out that "the profit has not been all on one side."

The islands are America's seventh best customer, purchasing from 60 to 70 per cent of their requirements from this country, he stated.

Although United States imports from the Philippines exceeded the islands orders here by $41,000,000 in 1937, McNutt asserted that any one who considers that margin a loss to this country "has mistaken arithmathic for economics."

Before another Institute session, Percy W. Bidwell, of the Council on Foreign Relations, today reviewed extension during the last six years of "opportunities for the use of Government control of trade and finance as a means of influencing the policies of foreign countries."

"Curiously enough," Bidwell remarked, "the cry of dictatorship which has been raised against the wide use of Presidential powers in domestic affairs does not so often arise when he uses corresponding powers in foreign affairs."

In round table questioning after his address the foreign trade authority asserted that "it is pure mysticism to say that totalitarian and democratic economies cannot exist side by side in the world."

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Error At The Fair

The World's Fair director drove up to the building in a lather of perspiration, obviously in a high state of confusion and began his speech. "Ladies and gentlemen," he beamed, "this is an auspicous day at the World's Fair. It reflects happy auguries for the World of Tomorrow. I am very elated to join in this gesture of good will to both peoples . . ."

"You go on in a minute," whispered a concessionaire in his shirt sleeves to a young lady at his side.

"It is of the utmost importance today," continued the director, "that we do everything within our powers to preserve our great institutions of democracy . . ."

"Was he talking about me?" asked the little lady.

"Keep quiet," said the man in the shirt sleeves. "I'm trying to get the drift of this myself."

"Looking about us today what do we see?" demanded the orator. He took a look and seemed a little muddled by what he saw. "What do we see?" he whispered to his secretary. "Civilization threatened," prompted the secretary.

"We see civilization threatened by the dark forces of many strange cults and isms," continued the speaker, mopping his brow.

"Is that a dirty crack?" asked the little lady. "And what's he mean, dark forces? Does he think this is the Cuban Village?"

"Keep still," insisted the man in his shirt sleeves. "I don't get him, but he must be leading up to sumpin'."

"At this moment we see law and order threatened by disorder and violence. We see traditions sneered at. We see old and tried institutions tossed aside for the untried and the experimental."

"Is he hinting I ain't got no experience?" demanded the little lady, throwing off a flimsy cape and revealing herself as quite naked.

"It's double talk or sumpin', but he'll get to us in a minute," said the shirt-sleeved one.

"All over the world today people and nations are troubled. These are hazardous times. There is misunderstanding everywhere."

"You said it," leered the little lady.

"In many parts of the globe people are starving," resumed the speaker.

"I could stand a sandwich myself," said the little lady.

"Millions are without food and without clothing," continued the orator.

"He's getting to us now," said the man in the shirt sleeves.

"It's about time," said the little lady, throwing off all restraint and bursting onto the platform.

An orchestra struck up a hooch number. The nude lady went into her number. The orator stopped, aghast and befuddled.

"Is this the British Pavilion?" he demanded of his secretary.

"Come on boss," whispered his secretary, "we're at the wrong exhibit. This is that new dove dance palace!"

President Quits Over Denial of Syrian Autonomy

Damascus, July 7 (AP).—President Hashim el Atassi of Syria resigned today in protest against French failure to grant independence to the republic which forms part of France's Syrian mandate.

The President's action left Syria without any central government, since the cabinet already had resigned for the same reason.

Syrian nationalists expressed belief the French high commissioner would dissolve Parliament and rule the country directly.

A. B. Campbell to Present Two Cousins to Capital

Misses Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser Are Expected to Be Enthusiastically Received Here on Arrival From England

By Dudley Harmon

BACHELOR UNCLES and cousins are going to play leading roles in next season's debutante whirl, it would seem. Earlier in the summer, Clarence Hewes told friends that his niece, Miss Ellen Hewes Flowerree, will make her bow here under his auspices, and now from London comes the news that Arthur Bradley Campbell will present his two young cousins, the Misses Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser, to Capital society next winter.

The two girls should be welcomed enthusiastically to the ranks of the 1939-40 debs, for our correspondent reports that they are very "jolly" (British for attractive). Then, too, they will find here many friends of their family, for they are the nieces of the late Marchioness of Huntly, who formerly made her home in the Capital.

Mr. Campbell will arrive in Washington early in November with his two charges, and proposes to give them a whirl throughout the winter. The Misses Meuser have spent most of their lives in England with their late uncle, the Marquis, and their aunt. Their cousin, Mr. Campbell, who is a son of the late Marchioness by her first marriage, visits Washington practically every winter, usually after spending a few weeks in New York, where he puts up at the Hotel Ambassador. He was here last November and was feted at lots of parties.

It is not known whether Mr. Campbell will take a house here, but it's pretty safe to guess that he will do a good deal of entertaining for his cousins, and his program may even include a large ball. Mr. Hewes has already planned a reception and dance for his pretty, blonde niece, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Flowerree, of New Orleans. Since "Buzzie" Hewes makes a fine art of entertaining, Capital society is already looking forward to these two parties. Later next year he will take his niece to London, where he always spends the season.

Marchioness Was Well Known Here

The death in May of the Marchioness of Huntly was a distinct shock to members of Capital society who knew her when she lived here as Mrs. James MacDonald, wife of a Standard Oil magnate. She occupied the handsome stone residence on Sheridan Circle which is now the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick. Born Isabel Fallon, of Paisley, Ontario, Canada, she was first married to Bradley Campbell, Chicago banker.

At the coronation of King George VI, this American born woman was the ranking marchioness. The marquis, whom she married in 1922, had 11 other titles besides. His wife restored for him Aboyne Castle, in Scotland, where they spent much of their time, and which was the scene of many elaborate parties for their British and American friends. They also had a country place, Orton Hall, at Peterborough, England. The marchioness numbered the Duke of Windsor among her friends when he was Prince of Wales, and was one of several rich American women who entertain sumptuously in Mayfair circles.

Further notes from our London correspondent say that the social season there (London has its whirl in the summer, unlike American cities) has picked up considerably since the return of the King and Queen from their visit to Canada and this country. However, continues the writer, some of the houses in the British capital have sandbags piled high outside, and the parks are torn up to provide air-raid shelters, so the atmosphere is none too reassuring.

Summer Debuts Popular Here

Next season's debutante crop is already well launched, as several mothers chose to present their daughters to Capital society at early summer parties, as is the pleasant custom on Long Island these days. First of the group to make her bow was Miss Joanna Huntington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Chapin Huntington, who gave a large tea for her early in June. Then, all on a Saturday afternoon and evening, three others made their debuts: Miss Nancy Glover, whose parents, the Charles Carroll Glovers, entertained at a garden party in her honor; Miss Joan Wilkinson, who was feted at a dance that night by Capt. and Mrs. Theodore Wilkinson, and Miss Rose Chatfield-Taylor, who bowed at a dinner given before the dance by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor.

Also in June Miss Patricia Hurley, daughter of the former Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick Hurley, was presented at a large reception at Belmont, the home of her family. Last week Miss Harriet Webster Dawley, daughter of Mrs. Webster M. Dawley, became Washington's first July debutante for many years.

Miss Jean Wallace, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace; Miss Mary Jackson, daughter of the Solicitor General and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson; Miss Patricia Prochnik, daughter of the former Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnik; Miss Bernice Wyeth Merchant, daughter of Col. and Mrs. B. T. Merchant; Miss Achsah Dorsey, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Benjamin Dorsey; Miss Lucy Clagett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hal B. Clagett; Miss Margaret Gordon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Gordon; Miss Catherine Reeves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Algernon P. Reeves; Miss Molly Stonestreet, daughter of Mrs. Esther Whiting Stonestreet, and Miss Billie Byrd West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. West, are others who will join next season's ranks of debs.

John Cudahy Goes to West

John Cudahy, United States Minister to Ireland, left yesterday afternoon for a trip to the West after a visit in Washington. Before departing he said Eamon De Valera, Irish prime minister, would visit the United States September 21. Mr. De Valera was to have come here last spring. Irish-Americans all over the country were disappointed when he canceled his trip at the last moment. The Irish Legation in Washington had spent several months arranging details of his proposed entertainment.

Mr. Cudahy, whose home is in Milwaukee, is an uncle of Mrs. Harold Ickes. Her marriage to the Secretary of the Interior took place at the legation in Dublin last summer. Another of his nieces, Miss Ann Dahlman, sister of Mrs. Ickes, also resides in Washington.

The envoy made the trip over here last week via the transatlantic Clipper, the officers of which, under the impression he was to go back on the return trip, held the ship half an hour for him at Port Washington. He remained in Washington, where he stopped at the Mayflower. Mr. Cudahy will leave the end of the month to return to Dublin.

Swanson's Death Causes Trujillo Fetes Cancellation

Because of the death yesterday of Claude A. Swanson, Secretary of the Navy, several important functions planned for Gen. Rafael Trujillo of the Dominican Republic had to be canceled.

The tea which the President was to have given in honor of the Dominican army chief was called off, as was the dinner which the commandant of the Marine Corps, Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, was to have held for him.

However, an official dinner for another visiting dignitary, Gen. Goes Monteiro, of Brazil, went on as scheduled. Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, was host, and the party was held at the Mayflower.

Their marriage took place in All Souls' Church, the Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a simple frock of mull over satin, a broad-brimmed white hat, and a corsage of lilies of the valley.

An informal reception in the court of the church followed the ceremony.

Mr. Mueller was recently graduated from the University of Maryland.

Bachelor, 86, Proposes Marriage to Thrice-Widowed Woman of 78; Should She Accept?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a woman of 78. All three of my husbands are dead. I have two fine boys who have splendid and devoted families. These boys are all I have in the world, except the faith. They are willing to support me, and since I have been married it is hard for me to live by myself.

I was wondering if it would be silly of me to think of getting married again. A gentleman has asked me and he seems to be one who would be faithful to the end. He is 86 and has never been married. I was wondering if people would think it was queer. I was also wondering if my family would agree, as I have not told anyone yet. I would be grateful for your opinion. You seem to be such a helpful, kind young lady. LONELY.

DEAR LONELY: Your first concern should not have to do with what people might think of you for taking a fourth husband at the age of 78, but rather—with how the marriage would affect (a) your economic security and (b) your peace of mind. It appears that you are now dependent upon your sons for support, and it is altogether unlikely that they would be willing to guarantee the support of an 86-year-old stepfather, in addition.

The first questions for you to consider, then, are these: Is the man financially able to provide lifelong maintenance for himself and a wife? And what of his health and disposition? Is he a semi-invalid who would be a heavy drain on your failing strength? Is he crochety or miserly, so that the alliance would be a travesty of real companionship? And what about his family entanglements? Is he completely hemmed in by managerial relatives, who would resent your intrusion and elbow you into the background with scant consideration?

Granted that widowhood must be tiresomely lonely for a woman of your age who has lost three husbands, and that it is hampering to initiative to be dependent upon one's children in one's latter years—still, these negative conditions of existence are preferable, after 70, to more positive conditions which impose acute strain, of a physical, mental or nervous kind.

If you would avoid the dual mistake, therefore, of jumping from the frying pan into the fire, and of playing the fool before your children and friends—you must obtain factual answers to the questions outlined above, and be guided by this information in framing your decision to marry or not to marry. Unless the answers are consistently favorable, I think you had better keep the secret of your proposal to yourself and enjoy the man's companionship on a friendship basis.

He might have only a slight income, be in rather poor health, grow irritable over trifles, be addicted to penny-pinching, and be constantly on the defensive against a thundering herd of relatives, and yet pass muster as an entertaining beau of an afternoon or evening. But if this description fits him, you probably would be embarking on a rocky last mile in marrying him. An aging man with his best foot forward often exerts considerable charm, but unless he is an exceptional and superhuman being, he presents a different picture lording it over intimates in a carpet-slipper tantrum.

In essence, then, my advice is this: If you decide to marry this man, be very sure you are right before you go ahead. But, if and when you have every reasonable assurance that you would be improving your lot by marriage, don't be stayed by any considerations of what people might think. What people think of what you do cannot greatly affect your happiness, at your age, one way or the other. M. H.

Vitamin B, Calories Galore Urged for Underweight Girls

IF YOU are overweight, don't read another word. This is for the thin girl! The hot weather that takes the edge off the overweight's appetite is apt to take away the thin girl's appetite altogether. To prevent the loss of precious pounds, the diet should be reinforced with vitamin B1 and extra calories tucked into the menus wherever possible.

Those who have a struggle to make themselves eat enough food will find that a little vitamin B1 in the diet works wonders. You can obtain this vitamin in the form of wheat germ, brewer's yeast tablets, or vitamin B1 wafers. The average adult needs about 900 units of vitamin B1 a day but does not get anything like this amount. If you are seriously underweight, ask your doctor's advice as to the quantity you need and the form in which it should be taken.

There are literally dozens of ways to reinforce the summer diet with calories. Since butter and cream are the most easily digested forms of fat, and since fat is the food element highest in calories, these two items offer the best means of increasing the calorie intake. Use butter and mayonnaise on sandwiches and cream on cereals and summer berries.

Peanut Butter and Raisins

Calories in the form of nut meats and cream mayonnaise can be added to any chopped meat sandwiches . . . and wouldn't the reducers go for that! If you like peanut butter sanwiches, toss in a few raisins for extra calories and flavor and use a little mayonnaise on the bread.

You need a vegetable or fruit salad every day as a source of vitamins and the addition of French dressing or cream mayonnaise can change a salad into a weight-gaining dish. When we're gaining weight, our favorite salad is made of luscious black cherries and banana slices. Take the pits out of the cherries and in their place slip nutmeats. Arrange on crisp lettuce with slices of banana and a cream cheese ball.

A snowball salad is another recipe that rolls up calories. Refill the halves of a fresh peach with creamed cheese and chopped nuts. Fit the halves together and roll first in mayonnaise, then in shredded cocoanut.

One Hot Food Helps

Do not let summer beverages crowd milk out of your menu. Get your three glasses every day and, if possible, pour in a little extra cream. For the sake of digestion and palatability, it is important to include one hot food with each meal. If you have a cold meat, have a hot vegetable.

One of the surest ways of building a normal appetite is to follow a normal diet and although you may take as many fattening foods as you wish, you must have daily two or three cooked vegetables, plus raw vegetables, fresh fruits, fruit juices, milk and eggs. Too many thin girls live on sandwiches and iced tea!

White Nail Polish For Sun-Tan Hands

New York (AP).—The newer shades of polish this season fall into three categories: pastel—meaning very light; real red—without so much of the orange and blue and purple casts we saw in them during the past seasons; and white.

White is the real news. It's true, white polish was used to some extent last summer. But that was a dead white—and tended to make suntanned hands look slightly dirty. This year it's modified with ever so little pink. The result—still white—is much more becoming.

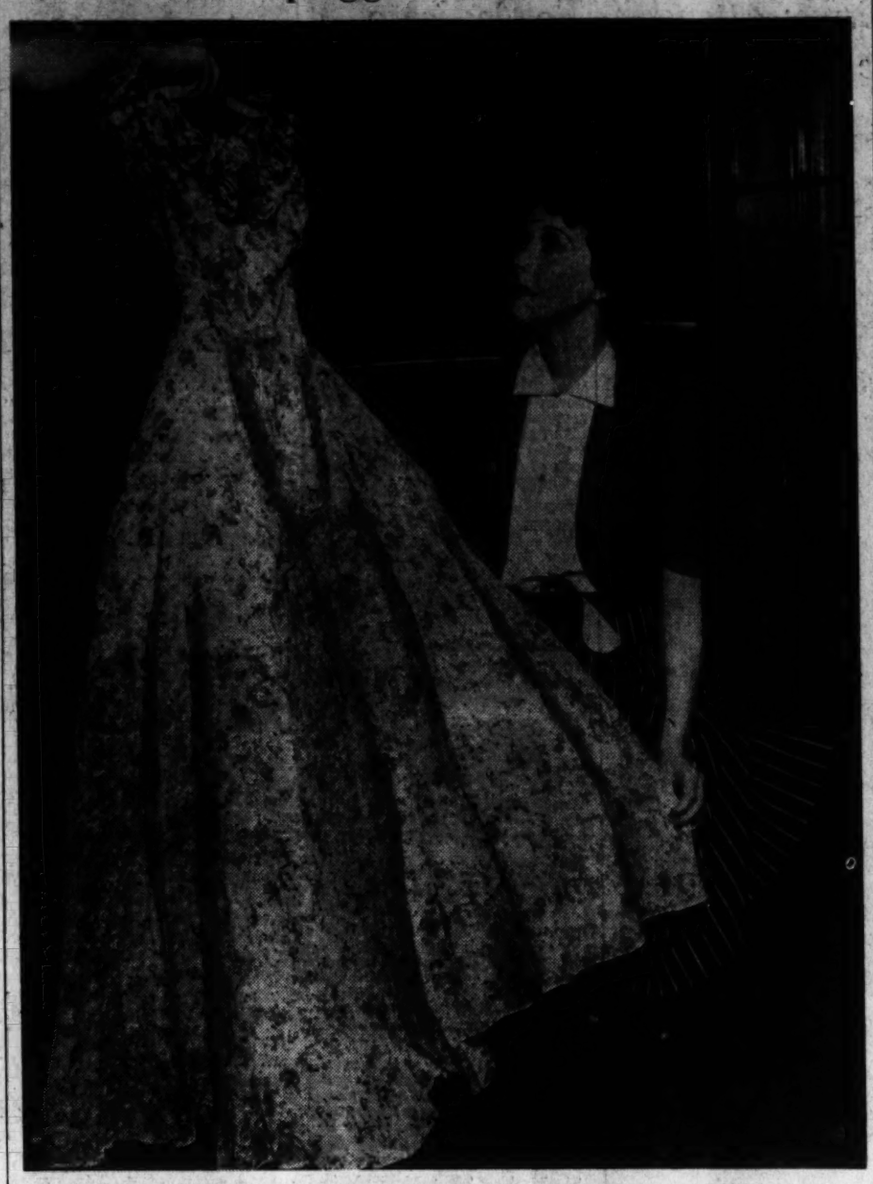
Flower Sprigged Frock for Actress



Here is Miss Helen Twelvetrees' idea of an appealing and feminine evening frock. The Hollywood actress who is appearing here this week selected this sheer flower-sprigged creation at a local store for her personal wardrobe. Minute orange and blue flowers weave an arresting pattern against the peach-colored background. Rosettes with tiny blue ribbon bows form a frill around the neckline

Today's Health Talk

Depression Diseases

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Walter Duranty tells that when he was in Russia the last time, a Russian said to him, "You Americans are really awfully clever to hide all the news of the typhus epidemic in your country."

Mr. Duranty protested that there was no typhus epidemic in the United States, but the Russian only smiled and said, "Oh! You can't fool me. Ten million unemployed—or is it twelve? We know what that means. There must be typhus and plenty of it, even if you don't mention it in your newspapers."

(Typhus is not the same as typhoid fever. It is a disease of poverty and crowding and filth and, true enough, is likely to occur in famine-stricken populations.)

The Russians, with all their brand-new perfected, modern Communistic state, are apparently not able to take care of an unemployment situation as well as an old established democracy. Of course there has been no typhus in this country; except for a mild epidemic reported by Brill in 1910, there has been no typhus in this country for over a hundred years. Poverty and unemployment, however, do cause disease. The survey made by the U. S. Public Health Service for 1935 and 1936, as yet unpublished, lists the condition of 750,000 persons. In families with no income except government subsidy, one in every 20 family heads would be unable to work anyhow on account of illness, while among families in comfortable circumstances only one in every 250 family heads is so disabled.

A Woman's New York

Mrs. Roosevelt's Teacher of Speech, Elisabeth von Hesse Trains Ego As Well as Voice; Stresses Attitudes

New York, July 7.

SINCE I have been traipsing around the country making little addresses here and there, I thought I had better do something constructive about my delivery. Like most people I have never undergone any professional training in speechifying—I have merely stood up and said my piece, hoping that it made sense and that all the folks could hear me.

ALICE HUGHES

Feeling thus, I crossed the trail of Elisabeth Ferguson von Hesse, whose specialty is filling her voice pupils with self-confidence, as well as teaching them to speak properly to any crowd from a small ladies club to a packed house at Madison Square Garden. Among the people she has helped vastly in this matter is Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

Although Mrs. von Hesse is essentially a tone technician, she does far more than teach her students to watch her vowels and consonants. She believes that by showing them how to use all their faculties advantageously, their attitudes as well as their voices will reflect a convincing and vital personality.

People who study with Mrs. von Hesse acquire, in addition to an excellent speaking voice a feeling of self-confidence that is really remarkable. Thus, if I take the course and prove to be an apt pupil, I feel certain that I can face any size or type of audience and make them listen and like it. At least, I hope I can.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—There is no woman in all the world of the theater who is more devoted to her art and livelihood than Katharine Cornell. When the hottest summer comes, other troupers insist on holidays away from Broadway, but when Kate has a hit on her hands she insists on playing right through the heat. With "No Time for Comedy" the success it is, the most she will do is to cancel both performances on four successive Saturdays.

In the New Zealand Pavilion at the fair is a statesque blonde named Nola Luxford, who sort of looks after everything. A few days ago a burly man rushed up to her and asked "Can you tell me, lady, where they keep the magic carpet?" This completely puzzled Miss Luxford. While she was still catching her breath, a small woman standing nearby tugged sharply at the burly man. "Don't be stupid, Henry it's the Magna Charta we want." With that the couple headed for the British Pavilion, and Miss Luxford took a drink of water and relaxed.

One of the handsomest sights of recent evenings was Mrs. Harrison Tweed, who used to be Mrs. John Barrymore. I saw her wearing a navy and white pin-striped dress with a square collar of white pique. Her hat was a navy cartwheel with a white pique bow.

THE CARDINAL rule for hair styles this coming fall is "show your hairline, no matter how else you wear your hair." Lura de Gez, noted hair stylist points to the hairline as the focus of coiffure fashions for next season. She has designed a dozen different ways of surrounding every type of face with an alluring frame of hair, and still marking the outline of the hair all around the head. She says that the brushed-up look is thus achieved without the harsh effect of previous seasons.

Dress Hints To Aid Charm Given by Star

Helen Twelvetrees Outlines Ways to Increase Glamour

By Genevieve Reynolds.

THE BOUDOIR and the ballroom are two places where a woman should go strictly feminine in her choice of wearing apparel, believes Miss Helen Twelvetrees, Hollywood actress. Appearing this week in the farce "Twin Beds" at the Olney Theater, Miss Twelvetrees carries out her ideas in her stage costumes, which she purchased at a Washington store.

"Lounging robes, pajamas, negligees should be chosen to emphasize, not to diminish a woman's glamour," she said. "And certainly the more feminine the lines the more flattering are the intimate clothes to the average woman. However, lines, rather than frills and furbelows, should be the guide to selection.

"Formal evening clothes should also be as feminine as the boudoir clothes. And the same general rules applicable when choosing evening attire hold good for a boudoir wardrobe."

Things to Remember

Here are some suggestions by Miss Twelvetrees for selecting negligees and formal evening frocks, according to types:

"Petite blondes can go the limit on frills, lace-trimmed or plumed negligees. They look best in soft pastel shades. In evening styles, the full bouffant skirt is most becoming to this type.

"Tall, slender brunettes should choose long, flowing Grecian lines in both negligees and evening frocks. White is the most mysterious color for those of this coloring and build.

"Medium-sized women, with no distinct coloring, should wear bright, all solid or contrasting colors for individual emphasis.

"Plump or stout women should avoid too much elaborate trimmings on negligees and dance frocks. They should stick to long, slenderizing lines, with no fussy details below the hips.

The Tailored Type

"The strictly tailored type should wear tailored lines with a few feminizing details. In negligees or pajamas, these details could include flowing sleeves, tucked or pleated bodice and a full but well-fitted skirt. For a formal ballroom frock, a long flowing or floating scarf or pleated shoulder line would give enough soft touches."

Prints, polka dots and stripes are recommended by Miss Twelvetrees for durability and general wear, for they do not show dirt or wrinkle so easily. But, for a more dashing figure, she thinks white, black or a combination of one or more primary colors would be far more striking and individual and equally as feminine as pastel shades or prints.

"Regardless of what is style in New York, London or Paris, each woman should choose the type of evening dress that would seem fashionable in her own section of the country," the actress added.

Dress to Please Men Styles Urged By Howard Shoup

Hollywood, Calif.—Women who admit they dress to please men can't go wrong in drawing inspiration from the fashions Howard Shoup of Wardner Brothers creates for the screen.

Shoup's test of clothes for "Daughters Courageous," starring the Lane sisters and Gale Page, was whether they would please the male audience. In his years of getting reactions from producers, directors and male critics, he has discovered that just as most men agree on masculine styles, they also agree on feminine. If a woman wants to please Mr. Average Man and yet be chic in 1939, Shoup herewith lists her best fashion bets:

The princess, Empire, or Grecian silhouette, a widely flared skirt and a semi-fitted bodice.

Crisp white collar and cuffs on a dark dress.

Bags so well fittted out a girl never has to search for a thing.

Jersey, taffeta and gingham fabrics—monotones, small checks, polka dots, faint stripes—white and everything in the blue or rose family.

Plain high-heeled pumps or oxfords without cut-outs.

Turn Nerves Into Charm

"TELL THEM I'M sick, tell them anything!" Smash go Helen's nerves just before her gala dinner.

A familiar experience if you're the nervous type. An important moment ahead, a vital decision to make and you go to pieces.

Understand your nerves! Yours is a sensitive, high-strung system which can be a source of more vitality, charm than is possible in cool, placid types. Know how to steer your energies along right roads—and instead of having "jitters," perhaps a breakdown, you'll win happiness, serenity.

When you can't come to a decision and brood until you are in a "state," do as the nerve specialists advise—take some definite action.

Go for a brisk walk, call a friend on the telephone or take a bus ride. Your nerves find release and in a calmer state of mind, you make decisions easily.

That big moment when you want to be at your best? Instead of worrying whether your dress is "right," the silver is "nice" enough, keep a sense of proportion by reading an amusing magazine—or think of something far away, something calm, majestic, an Alaskan glacier.

And so important not to narrow your interests. Give expression to your keen, imaginative self by doing or learning something new every week, every month. You have never played backgammon? Begin now. Marvelous, as you expand your activities, to see how you blossom out!

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

'All in the Bag'

(This is one of a series of talks by Miss LaJeanne DeSpain, fashionist, cosmetologist, speech expert, interior decorator, gymnast, horticulturist, and surrealist.)

"Today, ladies, in our pursuit of the Personality Glamorous, let us consider summer grooming. Now nothing is so distasteful to men as a woman who looks damp, shiny, faded on a hot humid day. How then are we to keep ourselves fresh, sparkling and lovely every minute of our waking hours? The answer is simple. By handbag preparedness!

"Now if you are a career woman, a housewife downtown on a shopping trip, or a vacationist on a travel tour it is most important that you have your means of loveliness always at hand. I am now going to outline a few of the simple basic beauty essentials that every well-groomed woman carries in her handbag:

"First, a diminutive toothbrush, with accompanying packet of paste or powder, with which she can thoroughly clean her teeth after each luncheon or visit to the soda fountain. Incidentally, a company whose name I will be glad to furnish upon request provides this little tooth-cleaning outfit in handy size for your handbag.

Advises Portable Beauty Parlor

"Next comes your make-up equipment, including a small bottle of cleansing fluid (you will, of course, never repair your make-up or powder your nose without thoroughly cleansing your face), astringent, foundation cream, rouge, powder, lipstick mascara (with accompanying brush), eyebrow pencil, lash curler and tweezers. Now, let me add that all of these necessary articles are assembled by one of our leading companies (whose name I will be glad to furnish in small make-up kit of handbag size.

"What next? . . . Oh, yes, your comb and brush! Now, no matter where you are, you will frequently have to groom your hair. You should also, of course, carry a supply of hairpins, several small tin curlers (you know how permanents will suddenly go straight in humid weather) and—oh, yes! A tiny folding triple mirror; Now these triple mirrors for handbags are one of the newest beauty inventions on the market and are simply indispensable for the woman who would properly repair her make-up in the restaurant, office, bus, street car, or automobile. I will be only glad to give you the name of the company which distributes both the triple mirror and the coiffure kit for handbags.

"You will, of course, keep your nail file where it can be easily found in your handbag. But better still, I would advise your carrying a small manicure set so that you will be fully prepared in case your nail polish is chipped or other disaster overtakes you.

And Now a Kit To End Kits

"Next is your perfume vial (remember men are very susceptible to perfume) and by the way there is a company now offering a twin set of perfume and cologne vials in handbag size. You will also want to include general emergency supplies—safety pins, darning cotton, thread and needles a roll of string, adhesive tape—all those little first aids that so frequently save embarrassment and insure a woman that neat appearance so admired by men. By the way, there is now on the market a new notions kit in handbag size containing all these articles.

"You will no doubt include in your handbag cigarettes and matches (remember, men are often irritated by women mooching cigarettes or borrowing matches) and it would be a charming little gesture to carry also in your handbag a cigarette lighter that you could graciously lend men acquaintances.

"Now those are all of the beauty aids I will suggest for your handbag. Since you will, of course, also include in it your pen, pencil, stamps, address book, notebook, bank book, motto-for-the-day book, identification card, calling cards, headache pills, vitamin capsules, breath sweetener, change purse, jewel bag and other minor essentials, I do not think it wise to make any more recommendations. For remember—no man likes to see a woman carrying a large clumsy, bulging, overstuffed handbag!"

Scalloped Crab Flakes

Pick over 2 cups crab flakes and remove all particles of shell and bony pieces from between the sections of meat. Spread the flakes in a thin layer in a greased shallow baking dish. Pour over it a sauce made of 2 tablespoons melted butter, 2 tablespoons flour, ¾ teaspoon salt and 2 cups cream. Cover the top with 1 cup buttered bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, until the crumbs are brown and the sauce bubbles up around the crab flakes. If desired, chopped pimiento or green pepper may be added to the sauce.

Businessmen Aid, 100 Children Daily Attend Anacostia Baptist Vacation Bible School

Volunteers Teach Scripture, Recreation, Patriotism, Handcraft

The Anacostia Baptist Church's recent initiation of a Daily Vacation Bible School is bringing a tremendous response from community residents, who are sending more than 100 youngsters to each day's sessions.

There boys and girls from 4 to 14 meet five mornings weekly from 9:30 a. m. to 12:30, and, under voluntary leaders, engage in a four-fold program emphasizing Scripture, patriotism, recreation and handcraft.

Moving spirits behind the project are Mrs. Isabel Shelley, school president and only paid worker; the Rev. Thomas E. Boorde, pastor, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Alexander, of Los Angeles, singing evangelists.

The Rev. James "Jimmy" Johnson, of Montgomery, Ala., who is conducting a revival campaign at the church until July 16, is helping support the school, which opened on June 26 and closes July 16. Evangelistic meeting are being held daily at 7:45 p. m., Saturdays excepted.

Department teachers include Mrs. Lee Caldwell, Miss Wilhelmina Van Slyke, Russell Henry, Russell Page and George Holland, beginners; Mrs. John Sisk, primary; Mrs. Marian Cundruff and Warren Taylor, intermediates, and Mrs. Shelley and Mrs. William H. Parsons, juniors.

The Rev. Mr. Boorde, who started one of the first local vacation Bible schools during his 1927-32 pastorate at Temple Baptist Church, said yesterday that many of the children are being taught to make small articles for distribution to hospitalized youngsters and other unfortunates.

There is no tuition charge for the school, which is open to all creeds, and which is receiving support from Anacostia businessmen, who have made it possible for wide publicity to be given the project without cost to the church.

The daily vacation Bible school movement in the United States is said to have begun in 1901, and by 1924, when the Baptist Sunday School Board created the vacation Bible school department, there were thousands of the units throughout the world.

When the Baptist Board began promotion of the schools in 1925, there were less than 200 Baptist schools. Today there are over 3,500 schools in the denomination, with an enrollment of over 110,000.

Another interesting activity at Anacostia Baptist Church is the Sunday school, which has made steady progress since John Schofield assumed the superintendency two years ago, during which time its enrollment has jumped by nearly 50 per cent.

Among the units and their leaders are the men's Bible class, Willis Dohl, president, and the Rev. Mr. Boorde, teacher; the adults' class, Mrs. E. M. Jett, teacher and president; the Philathea class, of which Mrs. John Sisk is president, and Mrs. W. H. Parsons, teacher; junior-intermediate department, Miss Mary Woodward, supervisor; beginners, Mrs. Elizabeth McMillan; cradle roll, Mrs. Joseph Boswell, and Missionary Society, Mrs. Oscar Rose, president.

Educated at the Western Pennsylvania Classical and Scientific Institute, Mount Pleasant, Pa., and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., the Rev. Mr. Boorde launched his ministerial career in Pittsburgh, serving there from 1906-12.

During the following 11 years he was engaged in evangelistic work under the Baptist State Boards of Virginia and Pennsylvania, and the American Baptist Publication Society of Philadelphia. From 1923 to 1927 he occupied a Virginia Beach, Va., pulpit.

Dr. C. E. Resser Will Speak at Columbia Hgts.

Tomorrow morning at Columbia Heights Christian Church will be "Education Sunday." The guest speaker will be Dr. Charles E. Resser, president of the District of Columbia Sunday School Association, and his topic will be "Christian Education." Dr. William Hill, superintendent of the Sunday school, will preside over the service.

The Woman's Council will meet Tuesday at 10:45 a. m. Mrs. J. A. Lessard is in charge of the program and the topic will be "World Interdependence." An "international luncheon" will follow.

National City—"I Appeal Unto Caesar; The Quest for Authority" will be the subject of Dr. Raphael H. Miller's morning sermon.

Dr. Miller will leave Monday to deliver a series of addresses before the annual convention of Churches of Christ of Southern California at Long Beach. He will return to his pulpit August 13. In his absence the Rev. Roy Rutherford, of the First Christian Church of Oklahoma City will supply the pulpit at National City Church.

Mount Rainier.—The Rev. Fred L. Miller, pastor, has chosen the words, "They shall be one flock, one shepherd," found in John 10:16, as the basis for his sermon at the 10:45 a. m. service. He will also deliver the sermon at the 6:30 p. m. union evening service on the lawn of the Mount Rainier Methodist Church. The Rev. Robert K. Nevitt, pastor of the latter church, will preside.

Christian Science Theme Deals With 'Sacrament'

"Sacrament" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday school is at 11 a. m.

The golden text is from Psalms 51:10: "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God; if any man minister, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth; that God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom be praise and dominion for ever and ever. Amen." (I Peter 4:11).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "To keep the commandments of our Master and follow his example, is our proper debt to him and the only worthy evidence of our gratitude for all that he has done. Outward worship is not of itself sufficient to express loyal and heartfelt gratitude, since he has said: 'If ye love me, keep my commandments.'" (Page 4).

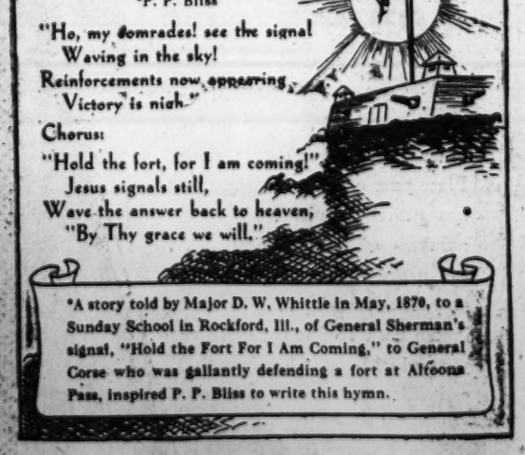
Little Stories about GREAT HYMNS



"HOLD THE FORT"
*P. P. Bliss
"Ho, my comrades! see the signal
Waving in the sky!
Reinforcements now appearing,
Victory is nigh."
Chorus:
"Hold the fort, for I am coming!"
Jesus signals still,
Wave the answer back to heaven,
"By Thy grace we will."

*A story told by Major D. W. Whittle in May, 1870, to a Sunday School in Rockford, Ill., of General Sherman's signal, "Hold the Fort For I Am Coming," to General Corse who was gallantly defending a fort at Altoona Pass, inspired P. P. Bliss to write this hymn.

75% of Maryland U. Graduates This Year Have Found Jobs

PRINCE GEORGES COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, 821 Rheems Ave., Hyattsville, Md. Telephone GReenwood 3559.

The college graduate who, several years ago, couldn't get a job for love or money, is now finding it possible to cash in on his education, results of a survey at the University of Maryland indicated yesterday.

More than 75 per cent of the members of this year's graduating class have found employment and practically all are expected to have work before fall, the survey revealed.

Those students who specialized in chemistry, engineering, home economics and agriculture are experiencing the least difficulty in finding employment, according to statistics.

Dean S. S. Steinberg of the college of engineering declared "the public works program is largely responsible for the immediate placement of my entire civil engineering class." He said all his graduates were "fairly well" located except for a few mechanical and electrical engineering students.

Miss Marie Mount, dean of the College of Home Economics, predicted every one of her graduates who wants a job will be employed by fall.

Seventy per cent of the graduates of the College of Commerce have found jobs and all are expected to be employed by fall, Dean Mackenzie Stevens said.

Dean Stevens said he had more calls for students trained in cooperative organization and administration than could be filled.

Department heads in the college of agriculture announced almost all their graduates had found employment. Dean Willard S. Small, of the college of education, said he was unable to give accurate figures on employment of his graduates since most teachers are not placed until later in the summer.

Montgomery Bus Fares to Rise July 16

Schedule Calls for Boost in Gaithersburg, Alta Vista and Washington Grove

MONTGOMERY COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST 8713 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone SHepherd 4200.

A new schedule of rates for the bus lines serving Bethesda, Alta Vista, Gaithersburg and Washington Grove will be placed in effect July 16 by the Capital Transit Co., D. J. Locke, staff engineer of the transit company, said last night.

The new rates will provide for approximately the same fare or a slightly lower one in the general Bethesda area but will show an increase for points beyond that area, which in some cases will amount to 50 per cent, Locke said.

The new rates will be placed in effect July 16 or as soon thereafter as the company can have the necessary tickets printed, Locke said, unless the Interstate Commerce Commission refuses to approve the rates, which have the approval of the Maryland Public Service Commission.

The company had refused to accede to a request of the Interstate Commerce Commission that the new rate schedule be held up until the commission had completed its preparation of an order in the case. The commission held a hearing at which objections to the new rates were heard but it findings have not been prepared for promulgation as yet.

The transit company contends that it is losing money by operating at the present rates and that better service will be furnished under the new rate schedule.

Beer Retailers Warned

Rockville—Montgomery County beer dealers were warned last night that the new State beer law does not permit them to sell beer retail without the county liquor control board stamp affixed to the case or barrel.

Violation of the law requiring the county stamp on the case or barrel is punishable with a fine of $1,000 and two years in jail, coupled with suspension or revocation of permit, liquor board officials declared last night. Revocation of license is mandatory in cases where the dealer is convicted, it was pointed out.

Liquor board officials estimated that the county would lose approximately $30,000 if the use of the stamps were halted. The stamps do not represent a tax, the officials said, but is the profit made by the county on the sale of beer. The liquor control board is the only authority in the county authorized to sell liquor to retailers for resale and proof that the county has received its profit is in the affixed stamps.

Meanwhile, beer dealers of the county were contemplating filing suit in the County Circuit Court challenging the power of the board to impose the handling charge. They have retained former State's Attorney James H. Pugh.

Shure at Silver Spring. The company is charged with operating a nuisance.

Purchase of the Pathfinder Publishing Co. by Emil Hurja, of Washington, was announced yesterday.

One possible innovation under the new ownership, Hurja said, will be frequent pollings of public opinion on national affairs. But, Hurja added, the publication will be independent in politics.

Nathan Straus, United States Housing Administrator, told the House Banking Committee yesterday he contemplated ear-marking $200,000,000 of a proposed increase in USHA's lending powers to build rural homes.

Pensioners, Needy Here Await Pay

U. S. Failure to Sign Warrants Holds Up Checks for Hundreds, Now Long Overdue

Government red-tape yesterday further delayed payment of more than 1,000 retired policemen and firemen, without funds since June 15, and more than 5,000 aged and blind persons and dependent children, without funds since July 1.

In addition, employes in the School Department, Board of Tax Appeals and Commission on Mental Health, will also have to wait, possibly until Monday, for salary money due them.

Funds for pensioners and employes were included in a deficiency bill, passed by Congress and signed by the President on June 30. Since then, two signatures, one from the General Accounting Office and the other from the Treasury Department, were needed to release the funds.

GAO Is Swamped

Although the Social Security Board yesterday released three months' funds for the aged, blind and dependent children, it was impossible to send the checks to the needy, because they lacked the signatures. A total of $183,609 is involved.

At closing time yesterday the signature of the necessary Treasury Department official had been affixed to the appropriation warrant, and it was immediately dispatched to the General Accounting Office.

Whether the warrant will be countersigned today by the General Accounting Office is doubtful, since one official there yesterday said he was "swamped" with similar warrants, and "each had to take its turn."

Meanwhile, the District disbursing officer continued to receive letters and telegrams from retired service men in other parts of the country, requesting their checks.

Donovan Prepared Bill

About June 1 Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, prepared a deficiciency bill totaling $67,500 with which to meet the pay rolls of the retired service men, as well as the employes of the Board of Tax Appeals, school department and Commission on Mental Health.

Enough funds were available to meet only a 60 per cent pay roll for the service men. They are now due the remaining 40 per cent for the first half of June, as well as the full check for the second half of June.

Other employes have also received partial payments.

Burton Beats Out Bulla for British Golf Title

Englishman Shoots 290, U.S. Ace 292

First Briton to Win Crown Since 1910; Courageous Battle Stands Off American

By Drew Middleton,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

St. Andrews, Scotland, July 7.—Bagpipes skirled and dour Scots cheered in the "auld gray toon" tonight for Dick Burton, iron-nerved, iron-wristed Cheshire professional who turned back the bid of America's Johnny Bulla and became the first Briton since 1910 to win his own open golf championship at storied St. Andrews.

The cheers that rippled over the emerald turf and out to sea as Burton drove home a long putt on the eighteenth green for a birdie 3 and the 71 that gave him 290 strokes for 72 holes were hard-won and well-deserved. Seldom has more raw courage been shown in winning this old, old title.

For Burton beat not only the grim bunkers, the shifting cross-winds and the chattering, cheering crowds that hemmed him in, but also Bulla's 292 and the tradition that says an American shall win at St. Andrews, just as they have done in every open championship held here since Jock Hutchinson came home ahead in 1921.

Two Strokes Behind

More than that, he licked some of the greatest names in British golf to a faretheewell. Two strokes behind Bulla, husky young pro from Chicago and Greensboro, N. C., in a tie at 294 were Reg Whitcombe, last year's winner; Alf Perry, champion in 1934, and three other crack English professionals.

Another stroke back at 295 was Martin Pose, of Argentina, the victim of the tournament's toughest break in the morning round. A rules committee meeting penalized him two strokes for grounding his club in a hazard and sent his score to 76 when a 74 would have kept him in the running very nicely.

"Eef Rule is there, they should tell me about heem," said Pose.

Cotton Gets 298

Farther down the list in the final recordings of a tournament that no one seemed to want to win were Bobby Locke, of South Africa, and Percy Allis at 296 and little David Rees at 297. The sturdy Welshman, a member of the 1937 Ryder Cup team, was the last threat to Burton's supremacy. But his bid died on the club-scarred bunkers of the back nine as Burton stood biting his nails on the clubhouse doorstep.

The biggest surprise of all was the presence of Henry Cotton at 298. The glamour guy of British golf failed signally in this tournament, trimming par only once in four rounds. The "Cotton-Is-Greater-Than-Jones" Society is not in session tonight.

Bracketed with the majestic Henry at this plebian figure was Jim Bruen, the young Irishman who made the best finish among the amateurs. He made a tremendous noise in the qualifying rounds with a pair of 69's but, like cotton, he beat par only once after that and took a 75 and a 76 today.

Sabin Earns Racquet Berth

Goes Into Semifinals Of N. H. Tournament

By the Associated Press.

North Conway, N. H., July 7.—After sizing up the well rounded attack of William Talbert, of Cincinnati, top seeded Wayne Sabin, of Portland, Oreg., today gained the semifinal round of the Gold Racquet Tennis Tournament with a 4—6, 6—0, 6—2 victory.

The seeded list of four suffered its first dent when Ernie Sutter, of New Orleans, ranked third, bowed to the powerful driving attack of Ladislaw Hecht, of New York, former Czecho-Slovakian Davis Cup player, by a 6—2, 6—3 margin.

Hal Surface, of Kansas City, seeded second, advanced by defeating Chauncey D. Steele, jr., of New York, 6—3, 9—7, after overcoming a 5-to-2 lead in the finale.

Defending Champ Bows at Haverford

Haverford, Pa., July 7 (AP).—Sixteen-year-old Earl (Tony) Bartlett, of New Orleans, scored a major upset today in beating the defending champion, Jack Kramer, of Montebello, Calif., 2—6, 6—2, 7—5, to enter the finals of the National Interscholastic tennis championships.

Ted Olewine, of Santa Monica, Calif., last year's runner-up, conquered Billy McGeehee, of Scarborough, N. Y., in the other semifinal, 6—2, 6—3, and will meet Bartlett for the title tomorrow.

Bob Lovelace and Bernhard Weil, of Corpus Christi, Tex., advanced to the finals of the doubles by beating Vic Seixas and Billy Vogt, of Philadelphia, 5—7, 6—2, 6—4.

Imhoff, Peacock In Doubles Final

Montclair, N. J., July 7 (AP).—Douglas Imhoff and Robert Peacock, of the University of California, national intercollegiate men's doubles tennis champions, reached the final round of the Eastern intercollegiate doubles title play today.

Imhoff and Peacock, seeded second, blasted Gerard Podesta and William Winslow of Princeton from the courts in straight sets, 6—4, 6—3, 6—1. Podesta and Winslow led at 3—1 and 4—2 in the first set, but could not hold their advantage.

Rallies to Win Crown At Wimbledon; Alice Marble Is Favored in Women'sFinalsToday

By Scotty Reston,

Wimbledon, England, July 7.—Robert Larimer Riggs, an impish and indifferent 21-year-old boy from Chicago, beat his roommate and doubles partner, Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Ore., 2—6, 8—6, 3—6, 6—3, 6—2, in the finals of the all-England singles championship today and thus staked a claim to No. 1 ranking among the world's amateur tennis players.

Trailing by two sets to one and fighting against a cramp in his right arm, Riggs started going to the net for the first time in the fourth set and rushed a weary but willing Cooke right off the center court.

Both were so badly seized by cramps at the finish they had to see a doctor and drink down a concoction of grapefruit juice and salt before they could continue in the mixed doubles championship.

Alice Marble Favored

Alice Marble is a strong 2-1 favorite to complete the United States slam in singles tomorrow, when she meets Kay Stammers for the women's title, and the United States also has a good chance of carrying off all three doubles championships for its second successive clean sweep.

For three sets today Riggs played like a piano tuner. He had all the shots, but couldn't put them together. In the first two games of the match, he got to 40-15 and lost them both, and thereafter games slippd away so fast that Riggs did not settle down until Cooke led at 5-2 in the second set, and had come within a point of winning the eighth game.

The only real climax of this match, strangely enough, came in the eighth game of the second set. Cooke, with advantage for the set, drove deep off his forehand to Riggs' backhand corner. When Bobby ran across and battered the ball back past Cooke to save the point, he really had won the match.

Gallant Player

Probably Wimbledon never has seen such a strange, paradoxical match as this. Here was Riggs, trailing all the way until the fifth set, and still there always was a feeling that Cooke was hooked and, after he had run away with the line, would be reeled in like a miserable fish.

This may be unfair to Cooke,

Allows Chicago Only Seven Hits; Whiffs Only Three; Halts White Sox's Streak

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 7.—Young Bob Feller pitched his Cleveland mates back into a tie with the Chicago White Sox for fourth place today by holding the Chicagoans to seven hits and beating them, 7 to 3, for his fourteenth victory. Feller, who has lost three decisions, fanned only three.

A ladies' day crowd of 18,000 saw the Cleveland star stop the White Sox' five-game winning streak and salvage the finale of the three-game series for the Indians.

Hal Trosky drum-majored Feller's 12-hit support with his ninth homer, a double and a single. Feller himself drove in the first Cleveland run with a double in the fifth inning after Oscar Grimes singled, and then scored twice, the second time after singling in the seventh.

Gallagher's Home Run Wins for Browns, 8-6

St. Louis, July 7 (AP).—Joe Gallagher made only one hit today but it was a life saver—a seventh inning homer driving in three runs for enough margin to give the St. Louis Browns an 8-to-6 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The victory broke a Browns' losing streak which had reached five and evened the two-game series.

But the game wasn't in the bag for the Browns even after that big seventh in which five runs came over the plate. In the ninth Earl Averill's home run scored the singling Cullenbine ahead of him before any Tigers were out.

John Whitehead was rushed to the mound, forced Rudy York to fly to center and made Slugger Hank Greenberg hit into a double play.

Red Loses 3d Game of Season; Bronx Bombers Outhit Bostonians but Dickman and Wade Keep Champions Well Under Control

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 7.—For the third time in their last four meetings the Boston Red Sox managed to trample on the world champion New York Yankees today, 4 to 3, to give Big Red Ruffing his third defeat.

The scoring was dribbled along no more than a run an inning for either club, and even though the Bronx Bombers outhit their foes, 10 to 8, Jake Wade and Emmerson Dickman kept out of serious trouble.

Dickman went to the mound in the sixth when the Yankees tied the score with a run on a walk, a single and Joe Gordon's double. He retired the champions with the bases loaded and got credit for the victory when the Sox pushed across the deciding tally in the eighth.

Boston took a one-run lead in the first on a single, a walk and a single by Manager Joe Cronin, who also hit a homer in the fourth. Jimmy Foxx's double and Ted Williams' single produced another run in the fifth.

Connie Mack Seriously Ill, Son Earl Says

Philadelphia, July 7 (AP).—An Athletics' victory after six straight defeats cheered ailing Connie Mack today but he failed to continue the steady improvement noted since he was stricken on a trip last week.

"He wasn't any better today, but his face lighted up when I told him we beat the Washington Senators last night," the son of the 76-year-old baseball leader reported. "It seemed to spruce him up a bit."

Emphasizing that Connie must remain in bed until his strength returns, Earl said it would be "a long time before he pulls out of this one."

Nats Send Bob Prichard To Springfield Farm Club

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Philadelphia, July 7.—The Washington club's lively trafficking in first basemen took a new turn today when Bob Prichard got the "go" signal and went to the Nats' Springfield, Mass., farm.

Another first baseman will be along any minute and his name will be James (Mickey) Vernon. He will join the Nats in time to play in tomorrow's doubleheader at Shibe Park.

Vernon is vacating the job at Springfield which Prichard is inheriting. The Nats are retaining strings on Prichard, who will get another tryout with the Washington club next spring.

When Vernon dons his mitt and takes up his duties for the Nats tomorrow, he will be No. 5 in the parade of first basemen Manager Bucky Harris has ushered to the bag this season and told to play the position.

Vernon's four predecessors were flops, Ossie Bluege did well enough defensively, but his hitting was no great asset. Jimmy Wasdell never could blend his hitting or fielding on any given day and went to Minneapolis. Sammy West, new to the first-base job, fielded well enough but promptly went into a hitting slump. Prichard couldn't hit big league pitching and left the Nats with a .256 average for 22 games.

The newest candidate for the job, Vernon, is not exactly a stranger to Manager Harris. At Orlando last spring Vernon was a despised rival to Jimmy Wasdell for the first base position, and was farmed out to

Texas League Officer Fined, Suspended

Salary Irregularity Draws $500 Fine for Dallas President

By the United Press.

Durham, N. C., July 7.—President George Schepps of the Dallas Club of the Texas League was fined $500 today and declared ineligible to participate in National Association affairs for two years, President W. G. Bramham of the National Association of Professional Leagues announced.

The ineligibility inflicted upon Schepps was suspended, however, and he was placed on probation during the two-year period.

The free agency application of Player Walter Cazen was denied in Bramham's decision.

The decision was an outgrowth of an investigation of the contractural relationship between Dallas and Cazen, Bramham said. His contract called for $250 per month, and an affidavit of the club president certified that the amount was all the player was receiving or had been promised in salary or otherwise.

Investigation revealed there was a side agreement between the club and the player under which the player was paid $150 per month on the side in cash, Bramham said.

This was discovered when the Fort Worth club claimed Cazen's contract under a waiver rule of the Texas League and tendered the player a contract at the same figure contained in the Dallas contract. Cazen refused to sign for less than he actually was receiving at Dallas.

In answer to an inquiry as to why the sentence was suspended, President Bramham said "there were extenuating circumstances connected with the case that in my opinion justifies this action."

Finn Sets Third World Track Mark

Helsingfors, Finland, July 7 (AP).—Taisto Maeki, of Finland, bettered his third world record in three weeks when he ran 2 miles in 8:53:2 today. The accepted world record is 8:56, made in 1937 by Miklos Szabo, of Hungary.

Maeki recently recorded marks of 13:42.4 for 3 miles, as compared to Lauri Lehtinen's record of 13:50.6, and 14:08.8 for 5,000 meters, bettering the record of 14:17, also held by Lehtinen. Maeki also holds the unofficial 10,000 meters record of 30:02, established last year.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Philadelphia, July 7.—Three items are on the big leagues' docket for next week, and the least important is the highly-published All-Star game at Yankee Stadium on Tuesday. Transcending that transient, one-day affair are two other questions for the majors to decide: (1) The future of night baseball and (2) the St. Louis situation.

POVICH

When the big-league big-wigs gather in New York on Monday presumably to attend the All-Star spectacle the following day, they will not idle away the hours. They will plunge into solemn conclave anent the twin clamor for night baseball and relief from scant gate receipts at St. Louis.

Current enthusiasm for night ball in the big leagues may not be reckoning with presence of powerful opposing forces. Philadelphia and Cleveland in the American League already have the lights, and Chicago is making plans for the installation, but standing firm in opposition to night ball are clubs which have a vast influence in league affairs and promise to prevent any stampede toward the night games.

Ed Barrow, general manager of the New York Yankees, is leaving no doubt as to his club's stand in the matter. Night ball will not be played in Yankee Stadium, he told Dan Daniel in a recent interview. "I will say quite definitely," stated Mr. Barrow, that we are making no plans for night ball here next year. I have yet to be sold even partially on baseball under the lights and we will move very slowly on the proposition.

Barrow Will Lead Fight Against Lights

Barrow will undoubtedly lead the fight against any attempt to expand the night game into an important feature of the American League schedule. He doesn't believe that the night-ball proponents could impose their will upon the league. "We could have mustered enough votes to stop night ball altogether at our meeting last December at Detroit. These votes can still be gathered to prevent a night-ball landslide."

The Yankees' boss is not taking too seriously Clark Griffith's manifesto concerning the Washington club's attitude on the night games. "I am sure that after I have talked with Griffith he will take a more rational view," said Barrow. "He is too wise a baseball man to bring up a proposition which would destroy the balance of our organization and ignore the fact that baseball always has been a day game."

Griffith, who had suggested that night baseball be played continuously during the hot-weather months of July and August, declared he was bowing to what seemed to be popular demand. But the Nats' owner is not a staunch supporter of night baseball and doubtless could be won over by his opponents.

When he returned from his first glimpse of night baseball in the American League last month, Griffith declared frankly that "I don't like it." The 69-year-old owner of the Nats doesn't, either. He believes that baseball is a daylight game and his chief joy at this stage of his life is watching the playing of the game into which he plunged 53 years ago. He wouldn't want to see his club play night games.

Barrow's threat to prevent the expansion of night ball is no idle one. The chances are that the Yankees could marshal enough votes at any league meeting to beat down the night-game proponents. Tom Yawkey, who has refused to put lights in Fenway Park, would be rallied by Barrow and at Detroit the Yankees' president would have another ally.

It is Walter O. Briggs, wealthy president of the Detroit Tigers. Briggs has never been vague about his stand on the night game. Last week at Detroit, he declared: "I have no idea of installing lights in Briggs Stadium." The Detroit owner declared he was "first of all, a fan. There may be developments that might cause us to change our minds, but I do not believe that a demand for night baseball exists among Detroit fans. Baseball loses much of its flavor in a Mazda setting and it might not be successful after it has passed the novelty stage."

Thus the three richest owners of the league, plus allies they may find, are arrayed against such as Connie Mack, Louis Comiskey, and the Cleveland club in the day vs. night battle. Griffith's may be the deciding vote and there is no certainty how he'll cast it.

St. Louis Situation Worries Club Owners

Anent "the St. Louis situation," the magnates of both leagues are anticipating a show-down either at the meeting in New York or next December. A man close to Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals, has admitted that "something has to be done. We can't go on this way, either the Browns will have to get out, or arrangements will have to be made to move the Cardinals out of town. There no longer is room for both clubs."

The latter statement, the owners of both leagues heartily agree with. Starvation gate receipts in St. Louis have soured the owners on the city. They would hail with joy any move to transfer one of the St. Louis teams to another city. A transfer of both would increase their delight.

Owner Breadon, of the Cardinals, is casting eyes toward Detroit, which all baseball men acknowledge could support two big league teams in profitable style. But Owner Briggs of the Tigers, is in no mood to permit the National League to move in on his fertile territory, to which he has exclusive rights.

Either big league could appropriate Milwaukee as a site for a new franchise upon payment of the Milwaukee club's claims to the territory and that may be the solution to the vexing problem of St. Louis.

Johnsen Beaten at Net In Astounding Upset

Hugh Lynch Wins D. C. Tourney Semifinal Match After Trailing One Set and 5-0; Meets Welsh for Title at 2:30 Today

By Jack Munhall.

In a startling reversal of form that left the gallery speechless, young Davie Johnsen faltered on the threshold of one of his most important victories yesterday and was eliminated at Columbia in the semifinal round of the District Men's Tennis championships by Hugh Lynch.

Holding a lead of one set and five games to love in the second set and appearing the complete master of his doubles partner and good friend whom he recently defeated for the City of Washington title, Johnsen suddenly lost his touch and the match, 5—7, 7—5, 6—4.

By his surprising victory, which paralleled the upset Johsen pulled on Lieut. H. C. Russell in the quarter-finals after trailing 5—1 and 40—15 in the deciding set, Lynch won the unenviable chance to meet Barney Welsh for the title at 2:30 this afternoon. Welsh, six-time defending champion, trounced Lynch in last year's finals.

Sluggish Start

Johnsen's collapse and Lynch's simultaneous spurt came at a time when it seemed inevitable that Davie would repeat his easy triumph of the City of Washington Tournament final when he won in three straight sets for his first major victory. After a sluggish start, during which Lynch built up a 3—0 lead in the first set, Johnsen played steadily and often brilliantly to take nine straight games with a withering barrage of volley and overhead placements that had Lynch muttering to himself.

In every way Johnsen looked unbeatable going into the sixth game of the second set. He had taken the first five games without any trouble whatsoever, meanwhile rolling up the staggering total of 14 placements, made mostly on running volleys at the net which Lynch was powerless to combat.

Then without warning Johnsen's game fell to pieces. First his vaunted overhead attack failed and he began flubbing shot after shot into the net and yards behind the side and base lines. Seeing that his young opponent was fast losing confidence, Lynch played smart defensive tennis, giving Johnsen every opportunity to err.

Errors Costly

And err the 19-year-old George Washington student did. Point after point went to Lynch as Davie did everything wrong. Hugh started his victory march in that second set by breaking through Johnsen's service in the sixt game with loss of only one point. He held his own in the seventh to cut the deficit to 5-2 and continued his streak with little opposition until the score was 5—5.

Johnsen picked up a little then and the rallies were long and savagely fought. Lynch, at this juncture, was superb. He made recoveries that bordered on the miraculous, and each time he returned one

Flock's Win Strengthens Hold on 3d

Cops Anticipate Busy Afternoon at Ebbets Field—but Nothing Happens

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, July 7.—Peace—but not quiet—reigned at Ebbets Field today while 36,444 iron-lunged fans, the largest crowd of the season in Brooklyn, watched their beloved Dodgers beat the Giants, 3 to 2, in the opener of their hed-hot four-game series.

The park was crammed with cops in anticipation of a busy afternoon, but nothing happened to mar the occasion, the local rooters apparently having been cowed by glaring signs warning them that the first spectator to toss a bottle would be jugged.

The victory, strengthening the Dodgers' hold on third place in the National League was the eighth straight pitched by Whitlow Wyatt, 30-year-old rookie from Milwaukee. He has yet to be defeated. The Dodgers scored all their runs off slim Cliff Melton in the first two frames, when they ganged him for five of their seven hits.

Tut Stainback was the Dodger batting hero. After opening the battle with a line double to left, he scored on Dolf Camilli's fluke two-bagger in the same direction. Pete Coscarart's double, followed by singles by Leo Durocher and Stainback, brought in the other two Brooklyn scores in the second.

After that Melton and Manuel Salvo, who hurled the last two frames, held the winners to an infield hit by Durocher in the seventh and a single by Art Parks in the eighth.

Melton struck out eight in the six innings he toiled.

As expected, big Zeke Bonura of the Giants, who had a brief fist fight with Manager Leo Durocher last week at the Polo Grounds, came in for a razzing every time he came to bat. However, the banana merchant singled Bill Jurges home with the Giants' first run in the sixth. Joe Moore's double and Jurges' single accounted for the other score after two were out in the ninth.

Triple Beats Phils For Bees, 7 to 3

By the Associated Press.

Boston, July 7.—With the bases full, the score tied and two men out in the sixth Max West slashed a triple to deep right center today to provide the Boston Bees with a 7-to-3 triumph over Philadelphia.

The blow came off Max Butcher, who relieved Walter Beck when the latter was ejected by Umpire Babe Pinelli for protesting too vigorously against the calling of a third ball on Bill Posedel.

Butcher completed the base on balls, however, and after Garms flied out, Hassett singled to center and Simmons beat out an infield hit to pack the bags and set the stage for West's game-winning blow. Maxie scored himself on the play when Young threw wild on the relay throw from the outfield.

Harvard Crewmen Reach Finals of Royal Regatta

By the Associated Press.

Henley-on-Thames, England, July 7.—Harvard entered the Grand Challenge Cup competition finals today by beating Jesus College, of Cambridge, in the Royal Henley Regatta.

The Crimson finished the mile-and-five-sixteenth contest two lengths in front and was clocked in 7 minutes 21 second. The United States eight will meet the Toronto Argonauts in tomorrow's final. The Argos won their semi-final heat against Sydney, Australia.

Joe Burk, of Philadelphia, entered the finals in defense of the diamond sculls when he finished approximately nine lengths in front of I. P. Allnutt, English sculler.

Kent (Connecticut) School won another heat in defense of the Thames Challenge Cup by defeating the Lensbury Rowing Club by three lengths.

Tabor Academy, of Marion, Mass., followed Kent, into the semifinals of the challenge cup by beating the Thames Rowing Club's "B" crew in 7 minutes 39 seconds.

Cubs Top Bucs In Eleventh, 5-4, on Error

Billy Herman Stars With Diving Stop Of Paul Waners Single

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, July 7.—An eleventh-inning error by Catcher Ray Berres, of the Pirates, lowered the bars for a Chicago Cub victory, 5-4, today, and sent the Cubs up to fifth place in the league standings and the Pirates back to sixth.

In the eleventh Stanley Hack raced from first to third when Berres threw low in an effort to catch him off base. Hack had singled with one out.

Billy Herman, who earlier saved the game for the Cubs with a diving stop of a grounder, sacrificed to Chuck Klein and scored Hack.

In the tenth, Paul Waner had singled with two out and Fletcher on second. Herman dove for the ball, knocked it down, threw to Hartnett and caught Fletcher with the winning run.

Army, Navy Start Leech Cup Play Today

One of Strongest Teams in History To Represent Army and Try to End Navy's Nine-Year Domination of Competition

One of the strongest tennis teams Army has assembled for Leech Cup play will be decided favorites to end Navy's nine-year domination in the biennial competition starting at 2:30 this afternoon at Army and Navy Country Club.

Headed by Lieut. Dolf Muehleisen, who has come from California for the event, the soldiers are confident of scoring their first victory over their service rivals since 1924 and 1925, when the matches were begun.

More than mildly concerned at Navy's repeated triumphs which have taken an edge off the traditional rivalry, Army this year has summoned its outstanding players from coast to coast. They have come from as widely scattered points as Texas and Alabama and California to reverse the tables on the tars who will be weakened by the absence of their ace and the illness of another good bet.

Lieut. James McCue, now stationed in California and generally considered the outstanding sailor netman, will not be here, while Lieut. Comdr. Morgan Watt, who has competed in all but one of the 11 previous matches, reports that he has played but little recently due to illness.

In the absence of Lieut. McCue and the uncertain physical condition of Lieut. Comdr. Watt, Navy will depend heavily on a pair of officers now stationed here and well known in District tournament play. Lieut. James M. Farrin, always a threat in local tourneys, will play No. 1 singles and will team with Lieut. Bill Howard, his partner of the last 13 years with whom he went to the finals of the City of Washington Tournament, in the No. 1 doubles.

The Army Band will be on hand to assist in the usual colorful ceremonies which will be climaxed when Clarence Charest, pinch-hitting for A. Y. Leech, jr., will present the cup to a representative of the service winner. This recipient will be either Gen. H. H. Arnold, chairman of the War Department tennis committee, or Rear Admiral Walter S. Arnold, Chief of Naval Intelligence.

Tribute will be paid to the memory of the late Secretary of Navy Swanson by a period of bowed silence and a band number.

For Navy: No. 1, singles, Farrin; No. 2, Johnson; No. 3, Grantham; No. 4, Watt. Doubles: No. 1, Farrin-Howard; No. 2, Smith-Johnson; No. 3, Moore-Laney.

Prichard Sent To Springfield

But at Springfield Vernon began to command new attention from the Nats. For a long spell he led the league in hitting and there never was much dissatisfaction with his fielding. He was still among the leading hitters of the Eastern League when he was called in today by the Nats.

Vernon's chief sin in the eyes of Manager Harris is that he is not a power hitter. The 22-year-old rookie is of the slap-hitter type, punching sharp blows through and over the infield. But he is rated a sounder hitter than either Wasdell or Prichard.

He's a tall, stringy lad of 6 feet 2 inches and a bit on the fancy side defensively. He came into the Nats' farm system two years ago at Greenville in the Sally League, where he was one of the high-average men. He bats left-handed and throws that way, too.

The first-base situation is not the only problem vexing Harris as he prepared to send his club against the A's in a pair of double-headers starting tomorrow. The pitching situation is extremely crucial what with only seven hurlers on the staff since the departure of Harry Kelley for Hot Springs for treatments to his ailing knees.

Harris used up three pitchers in yesterday's night game here, leaving him with only four fresh hurlers to toss against the A's in four games during the next two days. Tomorrow, Walter Masterson and Joe Krakauskas will face the A's, with Dutch Leonard and Ken Chase due to pitch Sunday in the twin bill.

Indications are that Harris has definitely given up on George Case as a centerfielder and will play him in leftfield where the pursuit of ground balls and need for quick-throwing are less exacting. Sammy West will play center until reinforcements arrive, although where they will come from Harris has no idea. Taft Wright and Bobby Estalella will alternate as the third outfielder.

Pros Threaten to 'Strike' If Shute Can't Play in P.G.A.

Players Present Formal Petition Asking Heads To Reconsider Action

By the Associated Press

New York, July 7.—The peeve a number of leading golf professionals have hid against their own ruling body, the Professional Golfers Association, led to a "strike" threat today as most of the 120 entries in the annual P. G. A. tournament played practice rounds over the Pomonok Country Club.

Hinting darkly that they would refuse to play Sunday unless Denny Shute is permitted to play, the pros drew up a formal petition to the executive committee asking it to reconsider its action in barring Shute because he failed to pay his annual dues until two days after the deadline.

The movement, in which Gene Sarazen, Henry Picard, Dick Metz and Ralph Guldahl are among the leaders, had its inception at the recent Anthracite Open at Scranton, Pa. About 25 leading professionals signed the petition, which was presented to George Jacobus, P. G. A. president, and relayed by him to headquarters in Chicago. Jacobus recently polled the executive committee on the eligibility of Shute, two-time winner of the P. G. A. crown, and found the vote was eight to three in favor of barring him.

Their threat to withdraw didn't keep the stars from practicing, however. Picard had one of the day's best practice scores, a 68, over Pomonok's par 72 layout. Earl Martin, of Inglewood, Calif., was one stroke better, with 33—34—67, while Harold (Jug) McSpaden turned in a 68.

Riggs Beats Cooke, Wins Tennis Title

who is as gallant a fighter and as pretty a stylist as ever graced the center court. Nevertheless, everybody did have the feeling that Riggs was supremely confident in the knowledge he'd beaten Cooke 12 times in a row and would beat him again when the time came.

That, of course, is exactly what happened. At the opening of the fourth set Riggs started tugging on that fishing line. He got up to 4 to 0, and, though he purely and simply gave away the next two games at love, he soon had squared it up at two sets all.

Forces Pace

Away he went again in the fifth, breaking Cooke's service in the first game. Though Cooke did make one desperate drive to break Riggs' service and tie it at 2-all, this merely was the signal for Bobby to force the pace and bring a tiring Cooke to shore.

The treasurer of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association, Russell B. Kingman, of East Orange, N. J., sat in the royal box with Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy and kept a chart which pretty well summed up the match. Kingman kept a record of the number of times each player went to the net and what he did when he got there.

His chart showed that Cooke led at the start, because he was forcing the play and that when he got too tired to go to the net and Riggs started going up, the tide of the match changed.

For example, Riggs went up only once in the first set, which he lost, while in the fourth, which he won, he went in 11 times and scored nearly every time.

Miniature Dan Budge

You've not heard the end of this "cookie," though. He's just a miniature Budge out there, and there's that easy grace about everything he does that gives you a feeling he'll still have the strokes when less fluid swings have cracked.

When he gets a little better overhead, he'll probably do it. Meanwhile, the United States has a new Davis Cup singles player.

Riggs made two other appearances during the day, teaming with Miss Marble to gain the finals of the mixed doubles. First they defeated Britain's C. M. Jones and Ermyntrude Harvey, 5—7, 6—1, 6—3, in the quarter-finals and then eliminated Camille E. Malfroy, of New Zealand, and Betty Nuthall, of England, 3—6, 6—2, 6—4, in the semifinals.

Also in Doubles Final

Cooke also paired with Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan to go into the semi-finals with a 7—5, 3—6, 6—3 decision over A. D. Russell, of Argentina, and Mrs. Freda James Hammersley, of England.

Cooke and Riggs also are in the men's doubles finals against the English pair of Charles Hare and Frank Wilde.

The final brackets of the women's doubles were filled by Defending Champions Miss Marble and Mrs. Fabyan and the Anglo-American team of Helen Jacobs, of Berkely, Calif., and Billy Yorke, of England.

Two D.C. Players Named Alternates On Publinks Squad

Baltimore, July 7 (AP).—Five alternates for places on the Baltimore district public links golf squad were named today by Preston Pairo, United States Golf Association representative.

Pairo said the quintet would play in the national public links tourney here this month in the event any of the ten regulars who took places in last week's qualifying round withdraw.

Alternates named: Nelson Halsey, Joe Williams and Dick Arthur, of Baltimore, and Robert Burton and Al Shorb, Washington.

Mrs. Peabody, Allan Burton Win at Golf

Take Exhibition Match From Helen Dettweiler And Mrs. David Clark At Army-Navy Club

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

A pair of par threes on the last hole gave professional Allan Burton and Mrs. Hume Peabody a 1-up victory over the District's girl golf pro, Helen Dettweiler and club champion, Mrs. David Clark, yesterday at Army and Navy.

Mrs. Clark, also a former Middle Atlantic titleholder, played the most sensational golf of the day on the front nine, a one-under men's par 36 and was mainly responsible for their lead of 1-up at the turn. The latter had a 40, while Mrs. Peabody helped Burton with a 41.

Allan played the best golf on the return trip, however, to overcome the lead and he and his partner won the last hole with pars while the others were to the right and left of the green and failed to get down in two.

Miss Dettweiler had 41 on the back nine for 81; Mrs. Clark, with a pair of sevens dotting her card, went to 46 and 81, while Mrs. Peabody had 49 on the back nine, and 90. Burton was three over par with a 75.

CONGRESSIONAL

Mrs. Myron Davy's pet ambition of breaking 80 over the long Congressional course was held up still another day by a cloudburst early yesterday afternoon. Needing a 4 on the last hole for a 79, Mrs. Davy's hand slipped from the club in the hard rain and she finished with a 7 and 82, for low gross in the ladies' day event.

Mary Jane Lightbown won the blind bogey with 111—22—89, while Mrs. A. C. Paul and Mrs. H. H. Moffitt tied for second with 107—23—84 and 100—16—84, respectively. Mrs. C. J. Wilkinson had low putts, 29.

INDIAN SPRING

Mrs. Walter Stokes took advantage of a fine round of 80 to win the match play against par tourney at Indian Spring, finishing 1 down.

Mrs. H. O. Porter, Mrs. Richard Dunbar and Mrs. J. R. DeFarges tied for second, each 7 down. Mrs. J. T. Powell, Manor, led the visitors, event, 8 down to regulation figures, while Mrs. J. F. Gross was second with 9 down, winning in a draw with Mrs. H. A. Knox, Congressional.

WASHINGTON

Mrs. Warren Draper won the selective holes event at Washington Golf and Country Club, with Mrs. R. E. Hotze second and Mrs. Louise Merillat third.

Next week's exhibition at Washington has been changed to amateur-pro, and Friday instead of Tuesday. Helen Dettweiler and Marion Brown will pair against Mrs. Leo Walper, District champion, and Virginia Mapes, Ballston driving range professional.

MANOR

The first annual play for the Milton Schlosser Cup is scheduled for Manor's women golfers Monday and Tuesday, with a field of at least 30 expected.

Play will be over the 36-hole route, 18 each day, with the low net score receiving the trophy. Three other net prizes and low gross will be awarded.

COLUMBIA

Next Friday's 18-hole event will conclude the first-half schedule of the women's golf committee at Columbia Club. Mrs. W. B. Jarvis is the new chairman, succeeding Mrs. H. J. Brundage. A mixed Scotch foursome is scheduled at the club Sunday, July 16.

Johnsen Beaten In Tennis Upset

Evidence of this was seen in the twelfth game, which Johnsen lost after leading 40—0 on his own service. He double-faulted, he was passed at the net, and then he committed two straight errors to end the set and allow Lynch to square the match at one set all.

Natural Letdown

Both players suffered a natural letdown and the third set was sloppily played. Johnsen was not as erratic as before, but he could not regain his blistering pace and after trading Lynch games until the score was 4—4 he faded and it was all over. Johnsen had several chances to win the tenth game and deadlock the set at 5—5, and he also was presented good opportunity to win the eleventh, but he muffed them all. He lost the match point by netting a half lob that he usually would have bounced over the fence.

Badly as he must have felt at the turn of events in the singles, Johnsen returned to the courts after a brief rest and teamed up with Lynch to enter the final round of the doubles with a 6—0, 6—2 victory over Alphonso Smith and Dick Murphy, third-seeded duo.

The other semifinal match resulted in a default for the defending champions, Barney Welsh and Dooly Mitchell, over Lieut. H. C. Russell and Frank Shore. Russell didn't play because the captain of the Army Leech Cup team, which meets Navy today, didn't think it advisable. The difference between the har-tru courts at Army Navy and the clay surface at Columbia is said to upset Russell's game.

Louis and Pastor Signed for Fight

New York, July 7 (INS).—Contracts were signed today for Joe Louis and Bob Pastor to meet in a return match for heavyweight title honors in Detroit in September.

A definite date will be set Monday when Promoter Mike Jacobs confers with Walter O. Briggs, president of the Detroit Baseball Club, at the Hippodrome.

Pastor will receive 17½ per cent and the Brown Bomber 40 per cent.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, July 7.—Ralph Cannon, the Chicago sports writer, has a piece in the current issue of the A. A. U.'s house organ, "The Amateur Athlete," which says in effect that little good comes of turning pro and that those who do cash in on their prowess (instead of being gentlemanly enough to let the amateur sports bodies cash in on it) usually come to an unhappy end.

CONSIDINE

Viewing with an alarm which must have delighted the badge-wearing editors of the great magazine, Ralph points out a number of horrible examples of fine clean-limbed amateurs who lacked the character to ward off professional offers, and suffered heavily for their mistake. Among those listed are Bobby Jones, Bill Tilden, Red Grange, Vincent Richards, Gertrude Ederle, Jesse Owens, Helen Stevens and Jim Thorpe.

Now it so happens that Bobby Jones' income tax has been so big since leaving the amateur golf game that he has asked the Internal Revenue not to reveal it. He is one of the ranking officials of one of the world's leading sports-goods houses, and his suggestions have revolutionized the theory of merchandising golf materials, a many-million dollar industry.

Half Million for Tilden

Tilden is supposed to be broke, and may be, but he is no broker now than he was when the U. S. L. T. A. was supporting him. Between 1931 and last year he made—conservatively—$500,000 as a pro. If he had made it as an amateur, it would have been spent just as joyfully, so what's the dif? Vincent Richards is an executive of a sports-goods firm, and one of the most successful young men in the business.

Red Grange's professionalism brought him not only the financial security that his amateur days could never have given him, but also a considerable interest in the most valuable franchise in the National Professional Football League—the Bears. Cannon places Grange among the sad young men, but if the guy is sad he must be thinking of what a hell of a fix he'd be in today if he had stayed in the cloistered confines of the University of Illinois and not listened to C. C. Pyle.

Gertrude Ederle made in the neighborhood of $150,000, as a direct result of turning pro after swimming the Channel, and spent it. But just how this is a reflection on the general calling of professionalism is more than this one can see. Presumably she had a good time buying those clothes and cars—certainly she had a better time than she would have had playing tiddly-winks with her bronze A. A. U. medals and awaiting the day when the great amateur swimming clubs dropped her name from the list of invitees.

Tunney: Will-Powerless

Cannon joins the brass hats of amateurism in a united shudder over the plight of Jesse Owens who seems to have sunken to the level of a whisky salesman. This puts Jesse in a tragic group which includes millionaire Jack Dempsey and multi-millionaire Gene Tunney—a couple of regrettable fellows who lacked the will power to remain amateurs. If Owens has a job at all that should be something in his favor. He would never have run himself into one when he was being exploited without pay before audiences which paid to see him run.

The article points out that Helen Stevens now tours with one of those House of David sports teams, and that Jim Thorpe forfeited all his fine medals when he was discovered playing baseball for $125 a month in a North Carolina league. For all the dazzling athletic ability she showed, I think La Stevens is lucky to have a job. Thorpe, who was kept more or less illiterate while attending Carlisle, went from the Carolina league to the Giants, and became the highest paid man in the early days of pro football. He's broke today—as any happy-go-lucky Indian with dough in his pocket would be—but he had more laughs in life and more out of it than either Ralph or I ever will.

Professionalism gets only a few of the nation's [illegible] 100,000 tennis players there is only one Budge, and Budge, son of a laundry-truck driver, makes $100,000 in a single year as a pro.

Professionalism was the sturdy ladder which Babe Ruth used to climb out of the hopeless anonymity of an orphanage into a position of respect and admiration that will never die. Gene Sarazen and Sam Snead were barefoot caddies before they began to capitalize their growing skill. Johnny Weissmueller and Eleanor Holm, who are drawing as many as 50,000 customers a day to the New York World's Fair Aquacade, were about washed up as far as the A. A. U. was concerned, and about to be set out on the sidewalk of sports by amateur groups whose philosophy of "love 'em and leave 'em," is as harsh or harsher than anything professionalism can offer.

And oh yes, Ralph. There's a fellow around now in the pro game named Joe Louis. If he had lived up to your general theory he would still be having his head punched in Golden Gloves tournament, for the greater honor and glory of some newspaper's circulation department.

Johnny Burke Tops Golf Field

Mamaroneck, N. Y., July 7 (AP).—Two youngsters from Georgetown University and one seasoned tournament player, Tommy Goodwin, fought a three-way battle for the lead in the thirteenth annual Jess Sweetser Victory Cup Golf Tournament at the Winged Foot Club today.

John P. Burke, of Newport, R. I., former intercollegiate champion at Georgetown, tied with Goodwin at the 36-hole mark with a score of 149. Charles C. Pettijohn, Burke's teammate at Georgetown and registered with him today from the Green Meadow Club at Harrison, N. Y., was only two strokes behind.

Close behind them at the halfway mark were Dick Chapman of Greenwich, Conn., the current French champion and winner of the Sweetser cup in 1934 and Charles Whitehead of Plainfield, N. J., with 150's. Last year's winner, Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., had 153 and Morton McCarthy of Norfolk, Va., Mason and Dixon champion and rated a strong contender, had 154.

Burke had a fine 71, one under par, this morning despite a seven on the fifteenth hole but he wavered a trifle on the tough west course this afternoon for a 76. Goodwin tied him with a consistent 74-73. Pettijohn had 75-74 and Chapman a pair of 75's.

Whitehead and McCarthy, both near the top after the morning round, skidded badly in the afternoon heat. Whitehead went from 72 to 78 and McCarthy from 74 to 80.

Bryant A. C. Wins

Bryant Athletic Club won both halves of a doubleheader from Boulevard Barbers yesterday, 9 to 6 and 8 to 2, on the North Capitol Field. Bill Grousskurth went the distance in the first game and relieved in the second for a double victory. Games with Bryant can be carded by calling Dupont 0048.

Trainer Banned at Charles Town; Royal Cross Sets Mark

H. Hoffman Suspended For 150 Days

Saliva Test Shows Rare Gem, Winner On June 29, Was Cocaine 'Drugged'

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., July 7.—Held responsible under racing rules when a saliva test on a horse trained by him showed the presence of cocaine Harry Hoffman, conditioner of a large stable here, was suspended by local stewards today for a total of 150 days. Hoffman saddled Rare Gem, a filly owned by his brother, on June 29 and the chemist report revealed the narcotic. Despite tests on all winners and other horses designated by the stewards, this is the first stimulating case to come to light during the long session here.

Hoffman was given 90 days on the doping charge and an additional 60 days because of "false registration." The majority of horses in Hoffman's charge were registered as owned by the Hoffman brothers. Since the stimulating was revealed it has been determined that George Hoffman is the owner of the horses.

"The report of the chemist on Rare Gem, winner of the sixth race on June 29, 1939, was returned positive showing cocaine. H. Hoffman, trainer, is suspended for 90 days and denied the privileges of all tracks under the jurisdiction of the West Virginia Racing Commission.

"Hoffman is given an additional 60 days for false registration, his suspension terminating December 7, 1939. It is further ordered that the purse won by Rare Gem be returned to the association and disbursed as follows:

"First money to Endora, owned by Waterman and Calhoun. Second money to Margie Wrack, owned by Mrs. Claude Feltner. Third money to Lena Girl, owned by P. H. Faulconer. Fourth money to Adhelmar, owned by E. K. Hillman.

"The contract held by H. Hoffman on Jockey B. Hacker, is declared null and void, under rule 192, West Virginia racing rules.

"The horses owned by G. Hoffman, formerly trained by H. Hoffman, will be trained by Harry G. Huff, he having been appointed by G. Hoffman and approved by the stewards. The horses, Mr. Fingers and Royal Dot, owned by G. H. Richardson, are suspended until such time as a trainer is appointed and approved by the stewards or the West Virginia Racing Commission."

Wheat Tumble Follows Slump At Winnipeg

Corn, Oats, Rye and Lard Prices Also Yield to Selling

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 7.—A fresh wave of liquidation swept over the North American grain markets during the last two hours of trading today, lowering wheat prices more than a cent a bushel in Chicago and about 2½ cents at Winnipeg.

Selling centered on the Canadian exchange where many dealers dumped their holdings in anticipation of a bearish Canadian crop report after the close. Some of the orders came from American interests, according to reports from Winnipeg. Prices there sank to the lowest levels of the season while in Chicago futures were the lowest since April and the lowest for the first week of July in seven years.

Chicago wheat closed 1⅛ to 1½ cents lower than yesterday, July, 67⅜@67½; September, 68½@68⅝. Other grains weakened with wheat, corn closing ½ to ¾ down, July, 47@46⅞; September, 48⅝@48½; while oats lost ¼-⅝, rye 1½-1¼ and lard 3 to 8 cents.

Cotton Climbs 55 to 65 Cents In Late Trading

New York, July 7 (AP).—Cotton futures skipped up to final gains of 11 to 13 points in the final few minutes of trading today. The market, which had been coasting along a few points higher early in the day, came to life following Washington rumors that an export subsidy plan for the staple—when and if put into effect—would provide for a fixed rate of payment rather than the flexible scale as is the case with wheat.

October and December deliveries were quickly swept to new highs for the season and contracts became relatively difficult to obtain. The list easily weathered offerings from New Orleans, hedge sales and profit taking. Buying represented covering and professional and Wall Street demand.

Worth street cloth dealers were cheered by a Cotton Textile Institute survey which said unfilled orders for gray goods now exceeded present mill stocks. Buying, meanwhile, remained at routine levels.

Stocks March Time With Lack of Volume Profit-Taking Hits Rail Equipments Bond Market Holds Comparatively Firm

New York, July 7.—Share prices which managed to make headway on the upside earlier in the week despite puny demand, showed a tendency to retreat today as dullness was accentuated. Volume on the stock exchange contracted to 327,970 with fifteen issues accounting for more than a quarter of the dealings. Price changes in active descriptions were so small in most cases as to barely affect group standings, an exception being the rail equipment sector where profit-taking produced quite a drop. Only 566 of the approximately 1,260 listed issues figured in the day's sales. The composite for 100 leading stocks was 0.09 point down.

Far more interest was to be found in the action of grain and cotton markets than in securities. Wheat slumped here and abroad on heavy selling. The net decline at Chicago was more than a cent a bushel with December at a new low for the season. At Winnipeg losses ranged to 2½ cents. Officially, the Canadian crop prospects was given as the chief motive for selling.

More probably the speculative elements in wheat have come to the conclusion that war influences can be ruled out for the time being and so are liquidating. Cotton was buoyant, with gains of 55 to 65 cents a bushel. Manchester reported a shortage of American cotton and long delays in delivery on Government contracts due to the pressure of private orders, which are more profitable for the spinners and weavers.

News Reactions

Some of the brokers who are bullish on the near-term outlook for business expressed disappointment that certain stocks, including steels, rails and coppers, failed to hold up considering good news in those quarters. It was equally true, however, that adverse news had little effect on other groups, notably motors where intra-union trouble appears to be spreading to seriously affect current operations of a leading producer. Incidentally this company's appeal to the NLRB seems slated for delay while the board decides on the wording of its recently announced change in rules. Assemblies for the week were down to 42,784 units against 70,663, but this was accounted for by the Independence Day recess.

Strike influences may, however, be reflected in output figures for the current period although only tool and die divisions are affected in the tieup. General Motors was off ⅜ and Chrysler ½. Willys-Overland, another of the active motors, dropped ⅛ under 2.

Copper Activity

Copper news was assuredly good enough to encourage some further buying in this direction as domestic and export prices for the metal were lifted and fabricators also advanced quotations. Domestic copper sales Thursday were the largest in a year and the total purchases in the current movement in United States markets probably will be the most substantial since 1937. Some of the producers, it is said, have not too much copper for sale.

Johns-Manville, a good gainer Thursday, lost 1⅛. Commonwealth and Southern preferred advanced more than a point. Westinghouse, Goodyear and Consolidated Edison all lost fractions. Mercantile shares which have been reaching daily new highs reacted moderately. Sunshine Mining, again in the active list, failed to follow through on its advance of the previous day although it equaled its 1939 high.

Bond Market Firm

Listed bonds displayed a degree of firmness in another quiet session today. The gains were fractional but general. Investment securities began to suffer from their usual week-end neglect, but they were well maintained. The speculative groups reflected occasional buying orders, and in the current thin market the modest acquisitions brought about advances. Most foreign dollar bonds also were firm. Turnover amounted only to $4,630,000.

Long-term United States Treasury securities moved higher by small fractions, while intermediate-dated issues were irregular. The guaranteed bonds of the Farm and Home Corporations were neglected. Telephone bonds dipped slightly, but best grade power and light, railroad and industrial bonds held to former levels.

Traction Issues Higher

Speculative railroad bonds were quiet and little changed, gains and losses being about equally numerous. Holding company bonds did well, and industrial convertibles were maintained. Interborough and Manhattan Railway bonds were marked higher in the local traction groups, while B. M. T. 4½s fell fractionally. Some of the communications bonds advanced, but there was no enthusiasm.

Latin-American default bonds were in occasional demand, with Cordoba, Panama and Brazilian issues the features. German and Italian bonds were dull, but Polish issues advanced. The tone was fair in the high-grade foreigns of Scandinavia, Canadian and Australian origin.

Domestic Copper Up ¼ to 10¼ Cents

New York, July 7 (AP).—The price of domestic copper was lifted ¼ cent a pound today in two ⅛-cent jumps to 10¼ cents a pound. Trade circles had been predicting a rise, based on a sharp revival of consumer buying here in the wake of a big demand abroad, presumably for armaments.

Since last Friday, trade circles said, domestic sellers sold an aggregate 70,000 tons, the best volume since the commodity buying movement of early last summer. Thursday's transactions totaled about 36,000 tons, largest since July 1 last year.

The advance today marked the first change in the domestic copper price since last May. The quotation for export metal has moved up steadily over the last two weeks.

Under the terms of the reorganization the stock of the old New Jersey corporation will be exchanged for the securities of the Delaware corporation.

Shops to Occupy Part of Building Housing N. Y. Curb

New York, July 7 (AP).—They may not be selling many stocks in the New York Curb Exchange these dull days but soon they may be selling stockings, fountain pens, shirts and the like.

It was disclosed today that plans to convert the Trinity place front of the building into shops have been prepared and submitted to the board of governors. This would dispose of the two smoking rooms and lounges now used by the members and the entrance to the trading floor between them.

It originally was proposed to partition off half the trading floor itself for use as a moter display room, but this plan was altered on the argument that by the time rentals had paid for the cost of alterations business might revive and the floor be needed for transferring stocks again.

Fire-Cured Tobacco Sales and Prices Lower

By the Associated Press

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported yesterday grower sales of 1938 fire-cured tobacco totaling 78,954,287 pounds for an average price of $8.06 per 100 pounds. This volume was 37,500,000 pounds less than sales from the 1937 crop, which brought an average price of $10.60.

A decrease in acreage harvested and lower yields per acre counted for the substantial reduction in sales, the bureau said. Lower yields were reported in most fire-cured districts because of a wet growing season and the prevalence of plant diseases. The bureau said that in some districts the 1938 crop was considered the poorest in quality in years. The quality condition was reflected in the lower price average.

Montgomery Ward Sets New Sales Peak

Chicago, July 7 (AP).—Montgomery Ward & Co. reported today the highest gross sales in its history for June and for the first five months of its fiscal year. Sales for June totaled $41,301,572, an increase of $5,557,039, or 15.5 per cent, compared with sales of $35,744,533 in the corresponding month a year ago. Sales for the first five months of its current fiscal year—February 1 to June 30—totaled $185,913,831, an increase of $24,395,429, or 15.10 per cent, compared with sales of $161,518,402 in the like 1938 period.

Corporate Issues During June Set Peak for the Year

New York, July 7.—Large-scale refunding operations featured June's corporate financing, according to the monthly capital flotations study of the Commercial & Financial Chronicle, to be published tomorrow. Corporate security issues for new capital purposes, however, showed no inclination to expand beyond the generally low level of the first five months.

All corporate financing aggregated $282,039,488 for the month, the largest figure recorded this year. But $251,798,424 of the total was for the purpose of retiring issues already outstanding, while only $30,241,064 represented new capital.

It is hardly significant that new capital issues in June were nearly 50 per cent greater than the $20,990,443 placements in May, for the May figure was the third lowest monthly amount in the period 1937 to 1939, and the June figure is only better than five months in the same period.

In June, 1938, corporations raised $202,315,995 new capital through sales of securities and sold $98,791,000 of issues for refunding purposes. The total for that month of all issues was $301,106,995, and for the same month of 1937, $431,501,646.

In the first half year new capital issues aggregated $210,634,427, as compared with $362,885,875 in the first six months of 1938, and $828,965,679 in the corresponding period of 1937.

Plight of Small Cotton Mills Told

Atlanta, July 7 (AP).—Wage-Hour Administrator Elmer F. Andrews was told today the majority of the South's "small" cotton mills might be forced to close if he approved a proposed 32½ cents an hour textile wage minimum and business conditions did not improve.

The warning came from Mrs. Margaret Mager, of Nashville, Tenn., a statistician employed by Southern mills urging the administrator to reject the wage minimum recommended to him by the majority of a textile industry committee.

June Zinc Output 7 Per Cent Under May

New York, July 7 (AP)—June zinc production in the United States totaled 39,450 tons, 7 per cent less than the previous month but 28 per cent greater than a year ago, the American Zinc Institute announced today. Shipments during the month aggregated 37,284 tons, 6 per cent less than the month before but 27 per cent greater the same month last year.

Producers' stocks at the end of the month were 135,241 tons compared with 133,075 tons at the end of May and 149,671 tons a year ago.

Cotton Exchange Seat Sells at 33-Year Low

New York, July 7 (AP)—The New York Cotton Exchange announced today the sale of a membership in the exchange at $6,000, down $1,500 from the previous transaction to the lowest price recorded since 1906.

Incomes Gain 12 Per Cent Since Last June

Cash Intake Higher, Food, Clothing and Rents Are Lower

Minneapolis, July 7.—Consumers today are able to buy more goods and services than they could a year ago, because the public pocketbook contains $1.10 against $1 a year ago while living costs now are 98 cents compared with $1 a year ago. The public's "real income," therefore, is $1.12 compared with $1 a year ago, according to a monthly study of what people get and spend, made known here today by Investors Syndicate.

The "real income" is not a mere subtraction of cash income from cash outgo, which would be an index of savings rather than real income, but an average relative figure of income and outgo designed to show how the cost of living affects the adjusted dollar income.

"Wage earners at the start of June, 1939," explained the study, "were receiving $1.21 for every $1 at the same 1938 period. The salaried worker's check, as June, 1939, opened, was $1.08 compared with $1 for the same 1938 season.

"Farmers and business men likewise received larger incomes in June than in the same month a year earlier. Their cash incomes, classed as other income' in this study, were $1.04 at the start of June, 1939, against $1 at the same time in 1938.

Investment Income Down

"Investment income, in the form of dividend or interest payments, is the only laggard in the income group, and even here the comparisons are rapidly bettering. Investment income in June, 1939, was 88 cents compared with $1 a year earlier. An investor in May, 1939, had only 80 cents in contrast with $1 in the same month in 1938.

"Food is the largest single item in the average household budget. Therefore, the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Public could buy as much food of the same quality at the start of June, 1939, for 97 cents as they purchased for $1 a year ago stretched their pocketbook.

"Clothing, another important living expenditure, cost only 97 cents throughout May, 1939, as compared with $1 in the like 1938 month.

"Rents, whether for apartments, cottages or mansions, cost 99 cents at the start of June, 1939, contrasted with $1 12 months earlier. Sundry miscellaneous items, like automobile accessories, drugs and toilet articles, shaves, shampoos and theater tickets averaged 99 cents at the beginning of June, 1939, as compared with $1 a year earlier."

Week's Financing Drops to $26,977,644

New York, July 7 (AP)—Public offerings of new securities during the week ended Thursday totaled $26,997,644, and included about $6,500,000 of new money, Poor's Publishing Company reported today.

The amount was sharply below the previous two weeks which witnessed substantial refunding activities. Municipal financing was the lowest for any week this year.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Weird as the circumstances springing up from bridge may be, the complications of the game itself are even weirder. The strangest and most unpredictable department of the game is defense play. There

Today's Hand

	♠ Q 6 ♡ Q 8 4 ◇ K 8 5 3 ♣ K 9 4
♠ J 9 7 5 ♡ J 10 6 3 ◇ A 7 4 ♣ 8 3	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ 10 4 2 ♡ 9 7 5 2 ◇ Q 6 ♣ A Q J 5
	♠ A K 8 3 ♡ A K ◇ J 10 2 ♣ 10 7 6 2

seems to be no precedent which cannot be broken, no rule that has not many exceptions. In fact, only the vaguest of generalities can be applied in teaching the defense. Each hand, each situation, must be treated individually.

A provocative problem is presented today. It is taken from one of the British Waddington-Par Contests, which resemble slightly the Olympics and are so popular abroad.

♠ 10 4 2
♣ A Q J 8

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ◇
Pass	2 NT.	Pass	3 NT.
Pass	Pass	Pass

♠ Q 6
♡ Q 8 4
◇ K 9 8 5 3
♣ K 9 4

Declarer wins the heart lead in his own hand with the king and plays the jack of diamonds. West puts on the four, dummy plays low, and East wins with the queen. What card should East now lead? Make your decision, then look at the complete deal shown in today's box.

East returns the five of clubs. He reasons that if West has another club and one more entry, three club tricks are assured for the defense. If West lacks the entry, South cannot fail to make his contract anyway.

South's bidding strongly indicates four clubs, including the ten, so East must lead the five—not the queen.

Declarer cannot make his contract without winning two diamonds. After East's club return the diamonds are played again. West wins and returns the club. Declarer is powerless to stop the set and he loses two diamonds, three clubs to go down one.

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

FOR THE PARLOR ALBUM: We urge the picture of Percy Tetlow, because he has just been named by Secretary Ickes as technical advisor to the Bituminous Coal Division . . . but mainly because, as a boy of 12, he started out on his first job in a mine. Tetlow doesn't mind our using figures, so we can add here that that was in 1887. By 1900 he was president of the Ohio district of the United Mine Workers.

Less than a decade later he became a member of the Ohio Coal Commission and by 1913 he was State Representative Tetlow in the Ohio Legislature.

Tetlow stepped out of civilian life twice, doffing his miner's cap for a cap bearing the insignia U. S. A. First he fought in the Spanish-American War; later in the World War, as a captain.

From 1920 to 1921 he was a director of industrial relations for Ohio, with special emphasis on the State mining department.

Most of the rest is local history, with Tetlow's appointment in 1935 to the membership of the National Bituminous Coal Commission.

We also urge the picture of Martin Riger, because he has just been made assistant director of the Securities Commission reorganization division . . . but mainly because he had only been out of Columbia Law School a short time before he came to Washington in December, 1934, to take a responsible position with the SEC.

Riger, working with the budgetary committees of both Senate and House during 1937-1938, helped to make possible the Chandler act, of June, 1938, dealing with corporate reorganization.

AT THIS MOMENT, Pilot Ken Baily, of the Interior Department Recreation Association, thinks one boat may be enough for the IDRA's cruise down along the Potomac on July 18. But with all the requests for tickets, the gunwales may be slightly strained.

The IDRA's own orchestra will alternate with professionals on the cruise, and it's also planned that Interior's music makers shall stroll around the decks during the evening in case any of the passengers develop an uncontrollable desire to vocalize. Grace ("Hap") Hazard, who lifted the laurels in last year's popularity contest, is on the entertainment committee this year.

Others helping Ken Bailey work up steam for the cruise include J. Leland Acuff, entertainment chairman; Dorothy Richardson, PWA; Lingham Mack, Frank Rose and I. E. Peterson, all USHA; R. L. Dunbar, PWA; Addie A. Hughes, Geological Survey; Helen Cranston, National Park Service; Tommy Hampton, Indian Office; Henry Billings, Land Office; Evelyn Gliem, USHA; Paul Bergh, office of Secretary, and John Wilkinson, Division of Territories.

Bailey says there may be others later.

FISH WILL NOW be hatched at Carbon Hill, Ala. (near Birmingham), on a Fisheries Bureau allotment of $30,000. They will dip and dart in 18 acres of ponds. The output will be used to stock Lake Bankhead, and Lake Bankhead, as we understand it, also is well stocked with anglers.

If you have a good idea for a name for anything under the sun, don't be bashful. According to the Official Gazette of the United States Patent Office, everybody else has ideas, too, and they don't mind seeing them in print.

Sweet Sue is not a popular song. It's a brand of hosiery. Hum is for cheese; and Alfa, in plain English, is a ribbon fly catcher. Nodtime stands for blankets; Magic Symphony is the trade mark for one kind of ladies' dresses; and X-Sol is a preparation for athlete's foot.

KEEP YOUR HAND OFF those scales: Weights and measures, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, are up in one State and down in the next. Take the case of the sweet potato. A bushel of them weighs 60 pounds in one State, 56 pounds in five States, 55 pounds in five other States, 54 pounds in ten States, 50 pounds in 14 States, and 46 pounds in one State. In fact, a bushel of sweet potatoes is a peck of trouble.

Cantaloupe crates are also temperamental as to size. In some places, they're measured according to their outside dimensions; and, in other places they aren't.

Youth Group to Report

Thirty-five members of the Washington Youth Council who attended the Congress of Youth will give a report of their activities at a meeting in the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest, Monday at 8:15 p. m.

NUTS AND JOLTS

PULITZER PRIZE NOVEL

THE YEARLING

By Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings

Chapter XXXII

THERE was no question but that the fawn did require a great deal of milk. It undoubtedly got in her way. It came into the house one day and discovered a pan of cornbread stirred up, ready for baking. It had cleaned the pan. Since then it had eaten—green leaves, cornmeal mixed with water, bits of biscuit, almost anything. It had to be shut in the shed when the Baxters ate. It butted and bleated and knocked dishes out of their hands. When Jody and Penny laughed at it, it tossed its head knowingly. The dogs at first had baited it, but they were now tolerant. Ma Baxter was tolerant, but she was never amused. Jody pointed out its charms.

M. K. Rawlings

"Ain't his eyes purty, Ma?"

"They see a pan o' cornbread too fur."

"Well, ain't he got a cute, foolish hail, Ma?"

"All deer's flags looks the same."

"But Ma, ain't it cute and foolish?"

"Hit's foolish, a'right."

The sun crept toward its zenith. The fawn came into the sweet potatoes and nibbled a few tender vines, then returned to the hedgerow and found a new place of shade under a wild cherry tree. Jody checked his work. He had a row and a half yet undone. He would have liked to go to the house for a drink of water, but that would cut down his remaining time too sharply. Perhaps dinner would be late. He pulled the hoe as fast as he dared without cutting the vines. When the sun stood overhead, he had finished the half-row, and the full row stretched mockingly before him. In a moment now his mother would beat on the iron ring by the kitchen door and he would have to stop. Penny had made it plain that there would be no quarter as to time. If the hoeing was not finished by dinner time, there would be no visit to Fodder-wing. He heard steps on the other side of the fence. Penny was standing there, watching him.

"Hit's a mort of 'em."

"Hard to think, this time next year, there'll not be one left. That baby 'o' yours there, under the cherry tree, he'll be wantin' his share of 'em. Remember the time we had, two year gone, keepin' the deer out?"

"Pa, I cain't make it. I ain't scarcely stopped all mornin', and I've yet got a row."

"Well now, I tell you. I ain't fixin' to let you off, for I said I'd not. But I'll strike a bargain. You go fetch fresh water for your Ma from the sink-hole, and I'll finish the 'taters this evenin'. Climbin' the walls o' that sink-hole purely beats me. Now that's a fair deal."

JODY DROPPED THE HOE and started on a run for the house to get the water buckets.

Penny called after him, "Don't try to tote 'em plumb full. A yearling ain't got a buck's strength."

The buckets alone were heavy. They were of hand-hewn cypress, and the ox-yoke from which they hung was of white oak. Jody hung the yoke over his shoulders and trotted down the road. The fawn loped after him. The sink-hole was dark and still. There was more sunlight in the early morning and at evening, than at noon, for the thick leaves of the trees cut off the overhead sun. The birds were still. Around the sandy rim of the sink-hole they were nooning and dusting themselves. In late afternoon they would fly down for water. The doves would come, and the jorees, the red-birds and the bee-martins, the mocking-birds and the quail. He could not be too hurried to run down the steep slope to the bottom of the great green bowl. The fawn followed and they splashed together across the pool. The fawn bent its head to drink. He had dreamed of this.

He said to it, "Some day I'll build me a house here. And I'll give you a doe, and we'll all live here by the pool."

A frog leaped and the fawn backed away. Jody laughed at it and ran up the slope to the drinking trough. He leaned over it to drink. The fawn, following, drank with him, sucking up the water and moving its mouth up and down the length of the trough. At one moment its head was against Jody's cheek and he sucked in the water with the same sound as the fawn, for the sake of companionship. He lifted his head and shook it and wiped his mouth. The fawn lifted its head, too, and the water dropped from its muzzle.

Jody filled the buckets with the gourd dipper that hung on the rim of the trough. Against his father's warning, he filled them nearly full. He would like to walk into the yard with them. He crouched and bent his shoulders under the yoke. When he straightened, he could not rise against the weight. He dipped out part of the water and was able to stand and pull his way up the remainder of the slope. The wooden yoke cut into his thin shoulders. His back ached. Halfway home, he was obliged to stop and set down the buckets and pour out more of the water. The fawn dipped its nose inquisitively into one of the buckets. Fortunately, his mother need not know. She could not understand how clean the fawn was, and would not admit how sweet it smelled.

THEY WERE AT DINNER when he reached the house. He lifted the buckets to the water shelf and shut up the fawn. He filled the water pitcher from the fresh buckets and took it in to the table. He had worked so hard and was so hot and tired that he was not particularly hungry. He was glad of this and was able to set aside a large portion of his own dinner for the fawn. The meat was a pot-roast from the bear's haunch, pickled in brine for keeping. It was a trifle coarse, with long fibers, but the flavor, he thought, was better than beef and almost as good as venison. He made his meal on the meat, with a helping of collard greens, and saved all his cornpone and his milk for the fawn.

Penny said, "We was mighty lucky 'twas a young bear like this un come scaperin' under our noses. Had it of been a big ol' male, we couldn't of et the meat this time o' year. The bears mates in July, Jody, and allus remember the meat o' the males ain't fitten when they're matin'. Don't never shoot one then unless it's botherin' you."

"Now I don't know. But when they're courtin', they're mean and hateful——"

"Like Lem and Oliver?"

"—Like Lem and Oliver. Their gorge rises, or their spleen, and seems like the hatefulness gits right into their flesh."

"Well Pa, do the male bears fight?"

"They'll fight turrible. The female'll stand off and watch the fightin'—"

"Like Twink Weatherby."

"—like Twink Weatherby, and then she'll go off with the one wins the fight. They'll stay in pairs all through July, mebbe into August. Then the males goes off, and the cubs is borned in February. And don't you think a male, like ol' Slewfoot, won't eat them cubs do he come on 'em. That's another reason I hate bears. They ain't natural in their affections."

Ma Baxter said to Jody, "You look out, now, walkin' to Forresters' today. A matin' bear's a thing to shun."

Penny said, "Jest keep your eyes open. You're all right as long as you see a creetur first and don't take him by surprise. Even that rattlesnake that got me, why, I takened him by surprise, and he wasn't no more'n lookin' out for hisself."

Penny said blandly, "He finished his contract."

He winked at Jody, and Jody winked back. There was no use in trying to explain the difference to her. She was outside the good male understanding.

He said, "Ma, kin I go now?"

"Let's see. I'll need a mite o' wood toted in—"

"Please don't think up nothin' long to do, Ma. You wouldn't want I should be so late gittin' home tonight the bears'd git me."

"You be later'n dark gittin' home, and you'll wish 'twas a bear had you, 'stid o' me."

He filled the wood-box and was ready to go. His mother made him change his shirt and comb his hair. He fretted at the delay.

She said, "I jest want them dirty Forresters to know there's folks does live decent."

He said, "They ain't dirty. They jest live nice and natural and enjoy theirselves."

SHE SNIFFED. He let out the fawn from the shed, fed it from his hand, held the pan of milk mixed with water for it to drink, and the two set off. The fawn ran sometimes behind him, sometimes ahead, making short forays into the brush, bounding back to him in an alarm that Jody was sure was only pretended. Sometimes it walked beside him, and this was best. He laid his hand, then, lightly on its neck, and fitted the rhythm of his two legs to its four. He imagined that he was another fawn. He bent his legs at the knees, imitating its walk. He threw his head up, alertly. A rabbit-pea vine was in blossom beside the road. He pulled a length of it and twined it around the fawn's neck for a halter. The rosy blooms made the fawn so pretty that it seemed to him even his mother would admire it. If it faded before he returned, he would make a fresh halter on the way home.

At the cross-roads near the abandoned clearing, the fawn halted and lifted its nostrils into the wind. It pricked up its ears. It turned its head this way and that, savoring the air. He turned his own nose in the direction on which it seemed to settle. A strong odor came to him, pungent and rank. He felt the hair prickle on the back of his neck. He thought he heard a low rumbling sound and then a snapping that might be of teeth. He was tempted to turn tail and head for home. Yet he would always wonder what the sounds had been. He moved one step at a time around the turn in the road. The fawn stayed motionless behind him. He stopped short.
